SCHOOL, MUNICIPAL COSTS

Home Tax Soars: Who Is Villain?

Are you working longer today than in past years to pay your property taxes? Are they soaring faster than wages and other living costs? Are other provinces ahead of us in needed tax reforms? Times reporter Pete Loudon gets answers to these questions in this series—answers every voter should hear.

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria and district property owners soon will open those dreadfully familiar tax notices—and blink.

If the trend of recent years continues, they're going to be increased again.

Poor blinking taxpayer.

Or is he?

Municipal officials claim they've cut costs to the bone and they're giving good value for every dollar spent on civic services which they control.

Loudon

They say if property taxes seem too high blame the provincial government for not handing over more of those juicy provincial revenues.

On the other hand, Premier Bennett boasts that his government provides municipal aid more generously than any other province.

Who are you going to believe?

The only thing most of us know for sure is that each year we're digging a little deeper. The average homeowner knows of course that he's paying more for everything as a country-wide inflation continues. And most of us are earning more too.

But what is our actual position on taxes in relation to other living costs and income? Are we gaining or losing? And if we're losing, what's to be done about it? And who's the villain in the piece?

These are the questions the Times took to municipal and provincial officials and here are some of the differing replies.

First of all, if you think property taxes are getting worse, you're right.

In Victoria, a home now assessed at $10,000 was taxed $104.89 back in 1950. Fifteen years later, in 1965 the tax, after deducting the $100 homeowner grant, was $266.91.

That's an increase of 154 per cent.

During the same period the average weekly wages and salaries in this area increased from $45.68 to $89.64. That's an increase of only 95 per cent

Three Week's Pay At Stake

This means a man earning the average pay in 1950 could earn enough to pay his property tax in roughly two weeks.

Last year he had to work more than three weeks to settle the bill.

In the same 15-year period that home taxes more than doubled, the cost of living generally (the consumer price index) was increased by only 32 per cent. Taxes far outstripped the upward climb of almost all our other expenses.

Is Victoria an isolated case? Let's look at some figures representing the property tax gross payments for all of British Columbia.

The department of municipal affairs last year published figures showing that between 1957 and 1964 the value of all taxable properties in B.C. increased from $2.3 billion to $3.5 billion.

That's an increase of roughly 50 per cent.

But in the same period tax revenues from this property increased from $78 million to $155 million.

That's an increase of 100 per cent.

The table indicates that the costs of local government have increased at double the rate of community growth.

And where the tax revenues nine years ago represented 3 1/3 per cent of assessed values for all B.C. in 1964 the rate had climbed to 5 1/3 per cent.

The municipalities admit that in recent years the province has been paying an increasing share of costs facing municipalities. Ten years ago, Vancouver City Hall reports, provincial aid represented 44½ per cent of school operating costs. Today the figure is 54 per cent.

Aside from increased contributions to school costs the province also has increased its assistance to other municipal expenditures in the past 10 years.

Pack Up Your Scouse In Your Old Kit Bag

LONDON (AP)—Englishmen contemplating a trip to the United States were urged today to speak up and not be shy, because "the Limey lingo can open every door."

This advice was offered by Alec Snobel, an editor of The Sun, in a column telling his countrymen how to get along while touring the U.S.

"Talk, ask questions. Argue. Chat 'em up. Babble to taximen, bartenders, cops. Speak like Laurence Olivier or Ringo Starr; speak Oxford or Cardiff; speak Cockney, Scots or Scouse (lingo of Liverpool, home of the Beatles.) But speak. The Yanks love a Limey."

Snobel said his English accent "won me juleps in Georgia; daiquiris in Delaware ("Yes'- let me hear you say "cawfee" again, feller"); bourbons in Baltimore ("I guess you noo Churchill?"), and more dinner invitations than I could handle in a lifetime."

CHURCHILL ANNIVERSARY

WOODSTOCK, England (AP) — The first anniversary of the death of Sir Winston Churchill will be remembered Sunday at his birthplace, Blenheim Palace. A concert will be held in aid of the Churchill memorial fund.

Churchill died a year ago Monday. He is buried at Bladon, in a churchyard a mile from the palace.

Motorist Sees Body In Bushes

LAGOS (Reuters) — Prime Minister Abubakar Tefawa Balewa's body was found Friday 27 miles from here near the western Nigerian town of Abeokuta, it was announced today.

The new military government, which reported the death but gave no details of how Balewa died or where his body was found, ordered offices to close and flags to be flown at half-mast as a mark of respect for "this great son of Nigeria."

Informed sources said the body of the 53-year-old premier was found around Abeokuta, the same area where finance minister Olotie Eboh's body was found with gunshot wounds Wednesday.

Balewa and Eboh were kidnapped and had been missing since elements of the army staged an uprising last Saturday.

Balewa, who was prime minister since 1957, was to be buried today in his hometown of Bauchi, northern Nigeria.

BODY FOUND IN BUSH

His body was seen by a passing motorist lying in a bush about 25 yards from the main road between Ilo and Sango-Otto. Nearby was another body, not identified.

Eye-witnesses said the two bodies were in an advanced stage of decomposition.

They were near a pool where the local village women did their washing, and it appeared they had been brought to the spot Friday. Villagers notified the police and the bodies were removed this morning.

Gen. Johnson Aguiyi-Irsonsi took control of the country following what his military regime called "a general disorder in the Nigerian army," a week ago.

RETURN TO CAPITALS

Meanwhile, the four regional military governors appointed by the new regime now have returned to their capitals after referring in Lagos with Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi-Ironsi.

The West region's Lt.-Col. Adekunle Fajuyi said on arrival in Abadan Friday the country must now embark on reconstruction.

"For too long, peace, which is the fruit of freedom and liberty, has eluded Western Nigeria," Fajuyi said, adding:

"For too long we have lived in fear of one another. I am sure we have all had enough of this.

"I emphasize the supreme commander's order that murder, looting, arson and all acts of public disorder be stopped immediately."

Grim Details Of Killings Described

TORONTO (CP)—The killing last week of Nigeria's Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tefawa Balewa and two other government officials is described in detail in The Star in a story by a staff writer Mark Harrison from Lagos.

Harrison says the three were killed by soldiers who struck at the same time in two different locations in a coup that led to establishment of a military government.

Harrison flew to Lagos last weekend, a few hours after Balewa's government was overthrown. For days, The Star says, attempts to file his story were blocked by censorship. He left Nigeria Friday night and filed his story from London.

Harrison's story on Balewa's killing included these details:

"Armed conspirators broke into the home . . . overpowered his police bodyguard, and carried off the man regarded as one of the most respected leaders of the Commonwealth.

". . . His body was hidden and it was not until Saturday that the new military government confirmed his death.

"Next door, another group of soldiers hauled Finance Minister Festus Okotie-Eboh from his bed.

"The quaking minister pleaded for his life and offered his captors up to $1,000,000 to spare him, but in vain. His bullet-riddled body was found four days later in a shallow grave . . ."

10,000 Homeless

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — About 10,000 persons were left homeless Friday when a five-hour blaze destroyed about 1,000 slum huts near the Bangkok waterfront. Officials estimated damage at $1,500,000.

SAIGON (AP) — A terrorist bomb blasted a U.S. serviceman's billet in Saigon early today, killing an American sergeant and a Vietnamese woman, as the lunar new year truce passed the halfway mark.

Two Die in Fire

MONTREAL (UPI — The bodies of two men were found by firemen in a west side apartment building today after a stubborn blaze whipped through upper levels of the structure and forced 40 tenants to flee.

Authorities said the victims, about 26 and 50 years old, have not yet been identified.

Prices Pushed Down

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Indonesian government slashed prices of gasoline, kerosene and railway fares today in an attempt to get over an economic crisis.

Decision Due On Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is expected to decide next week whether to resume bombing North Viet Nam now that his peace offensive apparently has failed to open any doors to negotiation.

Some military authorities were reported to have proposals prepared for a revival of air strikes by mid-week and some of these at least were said to favor direct attacks against the area around the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi and its port, Haiphong.

Margin of Nine Votes Saves Pearson Gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson and his four followers saved the minority Liberal government from defeat in the Commons Friday by voting against a motion for $100 old age pensions.

The Social Credit quintet made the difference as the government survived its first test of the new Parliament by a nine-vote margin. Mr. Thompson said his group favors $100-a-month pensions, but will vote against non-confidence motions to ensure stability and prevent an early election.

A New Democratic motion criticizing the government for failing to boost pensions by $25 and pay them at age 65 immediately instead of at age 69 was turned back 126 to 117.

The NDP maintained its motion should not be considered as one of non-confidence, but Prime Minister Pearson rejected the universal $100 pension as not feasible now and indicated there would be a new election if his party was defeated in the House.

The motion was supported by 89 Conservatives, 20 New Democrats and eight Creditistes. J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres), a former Liberal sitting as an independent, voted with the 120 Liberals present.

FURTHER VOTE TUESDAY

A similar Conservative motion favoring $100 pensions comes to a vote Tuesday night.

Commons standings are Liberals 131, Conservatives 97, NDP 21, Creditistes 9, Social Credit five and independents two for a total of 265.

Friday's vote came on the second day of the eight-day throne speech debate. Backbenchers discussed a wide variety of issues, including organized crime, divorce laws, medical care and safer cars.

Had the five Social Credit MPs voted for the motion, the government would have been defeated 122 to 121. The rules require all MPs present in the Commons to cast a vote, unless they are paired with a member of another party who is absent.

Opposition members hooted, jeered and banged their desks as Mr. Thompson and his four colleagues stood up to vote with the government.

Before the vote, Mr. Thompson said the Conservative motion reflects Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's desire to topple the Liberals and become prime minister again.

The real issue at stake was political stability, not higher pensions.

WILL BLAME THOMPSON

Hugh Horner (PC — Jasper-Edson) said Mr. Thompson should be held responsible if the Commons rejects a motion in favor of $100 pensions.

He and Creditiste Leader Caouette said pensioners can no longer get by on $75 a month because of rising costs. Mr.

PERSONAL CAMPAIGN BY DOCTORS URGED

Dear Patient: Medicare Bad Medicine

TORONTO (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Medical Association has sent a letter to 7,500 association members urging them to enlist their patients' help in the fight against the federal government's proposed national health plan.

The letter, signed by R. E. Brownridge, assistant secretary of the association, provides doctors with a draft of a letter to be sent to patients.

In an interview, Glen Sawyer, general secretary of the OMA called the letter "an effective way of getting across to patients our views on the proposed medical care scheme."

"A patient appreciates what his own physician tells him," he said. "All patients think their doctor is a great fellow."

The letter, sanctioned by the OMA's executive, suggests doctors tell patients:

"I would become virtually an employee of the government and not be free to care for your family as I have done in the past if the national medical care plan is accepted."

The letter also says doctors' visits would become "shorter and shorter" because more patients will be "demanding more service—in order to get their money's worth from the government."

The letter calls the medical care scheme an "attempt to impose socialism on an unsuspecting populace."

Accompanying the proposed draft letter to patients is a copy of a strong anti-medicare speech by Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta. The OMA said the speech was sent to all members to "inform them about the federal plan."

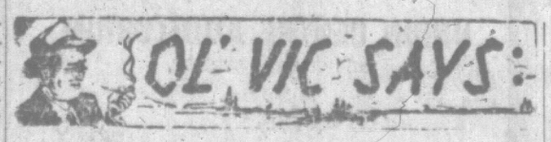

"The OMA board of directors feel greater use should be made of this speech which reflects the philosophy of the medical profession with regard to medical services insurance."

Also enclosed in the letter to OMA physicians is an association postcard addressed to Prime Minister Pearson protesting the federal medical plan.

In the suggested draft letter, Mr. Brownridge says the main reason for writing is "to warn you (patients) that the Ontario plan might be changed to fit with a national health plan proposed by the federal government.

"Prime Minister Pearson, for reasons best known to himself and his advisers, has said the federal government will contribute funds to provincial medicare plans only if the plans are compulsory for everyone and operated by the government."

Mr. Brownridge says he is "deeply concerned" about the government's proposal because a compulsory government-operated plan "could adversely affect our relationship."

War On Crime Needed, Tory Tells Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Erik Nielsen (PC - Yukon), calling for a royal commission on crime, says Prime Minister Pearson must look beyond the RCMP if he wants to find out why crime isn't being fought effectively.

"If the prime minister wants to find the source of lethargy and lask of interest in the face of criminal infiltration in this country, he must look a little higher than the RCMP," Mr. Nielsen told the Commons Friday during the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

The Yukon Conservative's questions about bail for Lucien Rivard broke that spectacular Commons issue in 1964.

Defending the RCMP, Mr. Nielsen said the force told the federal-provincial crime conference here earlier this month the situation is urgent.

Criminal organizations "connected with the octopus of international crime" had grown tremendously in Canada. They were engaged in narcotics, arson, bankruptcies and organized murder.

"This alone ought to be enough to prod this government into moving," Mr. Nielsen said

WANTS INVESTIGATION

He said the RCMP report emphasizes the need for a royal commission. Bankruptcy frauds had become tremendous in magnitude.

"Not only has the government failed to apprehend the wrongdoers, but they have acted as though the wrongdoing does not even exist."

The government had to do something about documented charges by the RCMP, Justice Minister Wagner of Quebec, responsible organizations and many individuals that a vast criminal network was operating in Canada.

"The present division of authority in the administration of justice will make it difficult to achieve anything," he said.

Under a reorganization last month, Solicitor-General Pennell had become responsible for crime enforcement and rehabilitation, Justice Minister Cardin dealt with administration and Privy Council President Favreau with companies.

"The throne speech promised a revision of the Bankruptcy Act but under which minister will that come?"

The Commons would need a great deal more information before it could take steps to revise and tighten the act.

The only way to get this information would be through a royal commission.

LOSE MILLIONS

"Business is being mulcted of millions upon millions of dollars annually, not only in Quebec but in every province," he said. "Narcotics are being pushed . . . throughout the country.

"In Quebec we have witnessed the wholesale extermination of witnesses.

"In Ontario, Quebec and other provinces there has been evidence of a movement into Canada of individuals . . . well known in the field of crime.

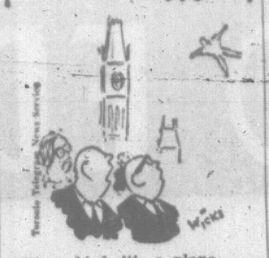

"But where there is evidence of international criminal conspiracy having links with the international Mafia and engaged in a whole gamut of criminal activities, a situation is created that cannot be met by the activities of individual police forces.

"Organized crime must be fought on an organized basis."

Mr. Nielsen said the Mercer report on bankruptcies in Quebec indicated "that it is not so much amendments that are necessary as the manner in which the Bankruptcy Act is to be administered.

"A great proportion of that responsibility lies at the federal level."

FIRST CALL with Bowwaks

"It's a bird, it's a plane . . . It's the new dynamic Mr. Pearson."

Manitoba Pilot Awarded Trophy

. . . HOME TAX

that in 1955 the province paid 10.75 per cent of the city's budgeted costs and in 1965 this had grown to 15.65 per cent.

But the budget in the 10-year period jumped from $6.5 million to $12.8 million — an expansion of almost 100 per cent.

So the rate of increase in provincial aid here represented is dwarfed by the percentage increase in the load on the taxpayer.

Why are taxes increasing so fast? Municipal officials say a combination of several factors is at work.

First of all there's the national inflation which affects wages and costs of materials used in civic projects. If that was all we had to contend with however, the added taxes would more or less keep pace with our own salaries and wage rates.

But we are also becoming a more affluent society. More of us are living in better homes. New neighborhoods are opening every day and the initial cost of supplying services is higher than maintenance of services in older areas.

And because we have better homes in many cases, we aren't disposed to wait for services such as sidewalks, street lighting and sewers. We want them now. We want adequate schools and recreation centres and parks.

New municipal halls, fire stations and police station have been blossoming wherever we look in the capital area. More recently voters have considered municipal swimming pools.

Well, why not when we live in a province as rich as British Columbia? But one of the troubles, according to many municipal spokesmen is that we are not arranging things so that those rich provincial resources are paying the cost of our higher communuity living standards.

Let's take this in small bites and examine this aspect of the taxation problem in the next chapter.

Caouette defied the prime minister to try to live on $75 a month. Mr. Pearson, whose annual salary is $40,000, will become eligible for the pension when he turns 69 April 23.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) urged the Liberals to vote for the NDP motion. It might mean an extra $855,000,000 a year, but he was sure the money could be found.

Harry Harley (L — Halton) urged the government to be flexible in implementing a national medical insurance program to respect the rights of the medical profession. He also called for a free vote on "our archaic divorce laws" and abolition of the law banning the dissemination of birth control literature and devices.

Heward Grafftey (PC—Brome - Missisquoi) advocated federal legislation requiring automobile makers and importers to add safety features to all cars as standard equipment.

POLITICAL DISCUSSIONS will mean busy weekend for Italian President Guiseppe Saragat as he searches for new premier to succeed Aldo Moro who resigned Friday. It was considered possible that Moro might be asked to form another government.

Queen Orders Second Commutation

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has ordered the death sentence of a second Negro in Rhodesia commuted.

The announcement Friday night came after the rebel white regime in the breakaway colony had refused to recognize one royal reprieve.

The Commonwealth relations office said royal clemency had been extended to Simon Runyowa, who had been convicted of attempting to set fire to a building in Rhodesia.

The decision to commute Runyowa's sentence was taken before the rebel white Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith had charged that the reprieve to another Negro named Lazarus was an "illegal act."

The two were convicted and sentenced before Smith declared Rhodesia independent in a break with Britain.

Sources here said the rejection of the reprieve in Lazarus' case did not mean that he would be hanged.

The Smith regime accused Britain, however, with trying to "embroil Her Majesty the Queen in politics."

Quebec Demands 'Not Resented'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The great majority of English-speaking Quebeccers do not resent French Canadians asserting themselves, George C. Marler, former federal and Quebec cabinet minister, said here Friday.

"It must be obvious to all Canadians that a vigorous and progressive Quebec is and always will be an asset to Canada," he told the Women's Canadian Club of Vancouver.

Mr. Marler said those who say Quebec has been given a special status among the provinces misundertands the aims of the province.

Referring to opting out arrangements allowed for the Canada Pension Plan and tax sharing arrangements, Mr. Marler said:

"If a province wants to exercise in its own way the powers the constitution gives it, no one ought to object.

STROKE OF GENIUS

"Opting out arrangements were a stroke of genius. They allow federal-provincial programs to satisfy those content to go on as before and those who prefer a do-it-yourself program."

Mr. Marler said opting out arrangements have promoted harmony between Quebec and the rest of Canada while not diminishing the power and prestige of the central government.

He said that English-speaking Quebecers understand the outlook of their French-speaking counterparts.

Past 'Horrors' Now Forgiven

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN (AP)—German churches are joining a highly unusual initiative in central Europe to bring together not only the peoples of Communist and anti-Communist areas but also those much more ancient enemies—the German and the Pole.

German Roman Catholic bishops have accepted an invitation from the bishops of Communist-ruled Poland to help celebrate the 1,000th anniversary next spring of Poland's Christianization.

Acceptance came in a letter signed jointly by the bishop of West Germany and of Communist East Germany. They don't often get together publicly.

With both the invitation and acceptance went warm words of forgiveness for the horrors of the past.

A few weeks ago the Protestant churches of West Germany approved a call for a new spirit of co-operation between Germany and Poland. They urged review of the troubled questions of frontiers, exiles and refugees in "a true dialogue and an expression of the will to reconciliation."

WORDS HAVE IMPACT

This may sound like vague parson's talk in the West. To the Poles whose families were massacred by the Nazis, and to Germans driven from their homes in eastern Europe, it cuts close to the bone.

The trouble goes back for centuries. Poles and Germans have educated, converted, loved, married, despised, brutalized and exterminated one another over the ages.

They have invaded and counter-invaded so many times that arguments over which province should belong to whom are endless and almost insoluble.

The Second World War only made things worse. First Hitler's armies over-ran western Poland, while the Soviets invaded the east. Then the Germans advanced almost to Moscow.

Then the Soviets returned to take all of Poland and eastern Germany as well.

A new Poland was set up, including much land that had last belonged to Germany. Other former German territory was annexed to the Soviet Union. The Soviets organized a large German Communist state.

The present West German government officially recognizes none of these Soviet acts. It stands for a restored, reunited, democratic Germany within the borders it had before Hitler began his conquests.

Until recently, to advocate anything else in West Germany was a sure way of being denounced as a Communist and a traitor

DIET COURSE PROVES FATAL

REHAU (Reuters) — A 21-year-old West German woman died of malnutrition Friday after a one-year slimming course, police said. They said the girl, afraid of growing too fat, practically stopped eating and took excessive doses of slimming pills. She weighed 70 pounds.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

In coastal areas precipitation from a complex storm dwindled to a few showers by early morning as the system moved off into the northwestern states. Some sunny periods are expected in coastal districts before the next disturbance spreads rain and cloud along the coast Sunday. A minor weather disturbance brought light snow to the interior overnight. There was to be clearing in most valleys this afternoon when the system moves into Alberta.

'TOO MUCH TRUCK AND TRADE WITH COMMUNISM'

Canada, U.K. Blasted by U.S. Right Wingers

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States support for Britain's efforts to break the Rhodesian rebellion has revived an old complaint on the right wing of Congress about Canadian, British and other Allied trade with Communist countries.

Why has President Johnson "joined with the leeching British monarch in an outrageous attempt to strangle and destroy the government of Rhodesia, which seeks its independence as our forefathers did 190 years ago?" asked Republican H. R Gross of Iowa.

Gross, quoting statistics to contend that British-flag vessels supply North Viet Nam and carry British goods to China and Cuba, led off a recitation of similar views from about a dozen House of Representatives members as Congress resumed.

It illustrated a periodic eruption of right - wing criticism here, inside and outside Congress, about "too much truck and trade with communism" by Canada and other American allies.

Just recently, syndicated columnist John Chamberlain in the Washington Post assailed Canada, France, Britain "and other 'allied' nations that are currently being defended against the spread of communism by American efforts in Viet Nam and the Caribbean."

However, State Secretary Dean Rusk at a press conference Friday played down the significance of British-flag vessels calling at North Viet Nam. He said "the number of vessels from the free world has very drastically been reduced in the last several months."

Rusk said he knows of no strategic goods involved. Some vessels went in empty to take out fruit or other cargoes, and some British ships were on charter to Communist countries and therefore only partially controlled by their owners.

Chamberlain said in The Post that "Canada is right in there pitching to help Castro stay alive" with wood pulp, eggs, breeding cattle, fertilizers and agricultural machinery. He also charged some U.S. subsidiaries in Montreal with violating U.S. regulations in trade with Cuba.

Congressman Gross was followed by Republican John Erlander of Illinois, who said "now that the U.S. has agreed to co-operate fully in the embargo on Rhodesia, the time has come to halt British and other free-world shipments of vital supplies to Communist Cuba."

Erlander said the "shipment of British oil and Canadian wheat to Cuba strengthens that Communist base just off our shore, a base from which terror and revolution are being exported. . . ."

Republican William Dickinson of Alabama put on the record assorted critical newspaper editorials, some of which reflected southern U.S. opposition to British efforts to smash the Rhodesian revolt.

IN RUSSIA

American Dies; Probe Ordered

MOSCOW (AP)—The foreign ministry informed the United States today the body of Newcomb Mott, the American prisoner whom the Russians say committed suicide, will be brought to Moscow for an autopsy Monday.

This announcement by the U.S. embassy followed a U.S. demand for full investigation into Mott's death on a prison train. The Russians claim he committed suicide by slashing his throat in the washroom of the train during the night of Thursday-Friday.

MOTT
. . . suicide?

Mott, 27, of Sheffield, Mass., had been sentenced in November to 18 months in a labor camp after conviction on a charge of illegally entering the Soviet Union. He was arrested Sept. 4.

The U.S. Embassy said it will be represented at the post-mortem in Moscow. It said First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler "a medical examination, including an autopsy, as required by Soviet law," will be performed.

An embassy spokesman said Kohler read to Kuznetsov a U.S. government statement saying the death, "under circumstances not yet fully clear, has naturally caused deep sorrow and shock to the public in the United States and elsewhere."

The spokesman said the phrase that circumstances were "not yet fully clear" meant the U.S. government was neither accepting nor rejecting the Soviet report that Mott killed himself.

The embassy tried to send two consular officers to Kirov, about 500 miles northeast of Moscow, where the body was held after Mott died. But they missed a plane and the embassy cancelled their trip when the Russians said the body would come here by train, arriving Sunday.

Mott's mother, Mrs. Howard Mott, said at her home in Sheffield:

"I think the Russians killed him. How could he commit suicide if he were on a train surrounded by Russian guards? I'm pretty sure they would have searched him thoroughly for any weapons."

She said she "began to get more suspicious" after she had talked to the Soviet embassy in Washington about returning the body and was told it might not be possible.

Mott, a book salesman, was convicted Nov. 24 of illegally crossing the Norwegian-Soviet frontier Sept. 4 and sentenced to 18 months—a sentence the U.S. government labelled extreme and harsh.

He would have been eligible for parole next June 4. His parents attended the trial at Murmansk.

In Washington Friday night, the state department said:

"It is indeed a matter of deep regret and concern to the U.S. government that the numerous appeals to the Soviet government for a reasonable, humanitarian disposition of the case were not heeded before it came to this tragic end."

The embassy in Moscow said it had inquired at 3 p.m. Friday on the status of a clemency appeal filed with Soviet authorities on behalf of Mott's parents when an earlier appeal against the sentence had been denied.

Three hours later an embassy representative was called to the Soviet foreign ministry and was told Mott had committed suicide.

★ ★ ★

Mott, a bachelor, was on vacation in Norway when he crossed into Soviet territory at an enclave near the town of Borisoglebsk. Norwegians are allowed to enter the enclave without visas under a Norwegian-Soviet agreement.

He testified at his trial that he hoped to find the Soviet border control point and ask permission to enter the enclave but became "hot, tired and lost."

The court deliberated for two hours and 23 minutes before finding him "guilty of illegally crossing the frontier."

"I consider the sentence unjust," Mott told two American reporters who covered the trial.

In a four-hour meeting with his parents and a U.S. embassy official after the sentencing, Mott said prison officials had treated him kindly.

Suave U.K. Actor Dies In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Herbert Marshall, 75, fifty years in show business, died today.

The handsome actor led an adventurous life. He lost a leg during the First World War when he and Ronald Colman were in the 14th London Scots Regiment.

He was married five times.

Three marriages ended in divorces; to model Lee Russell, actress Edna Best and model Molly Maitland. His fourth wife, ex-showgirl Boots Mallory, died in 1958. He married his fifth wife, Mrs. Dee Anne Kahmann, a department store buyer, in Los Angeles in 1960.

Marshall was born May 23, 1890, in London, the son of an actor.

His movies included Secrets of a Secretary, Blonde Venus, The Dark Angel, A Bill of Divorcement, Razor's Edge, Duel in the Sun, Virgin Queen and Portrait in Smoke.

$500,000 Gem Theft

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The villa of a wealthy New York socialite was rifled of $500,000 in jewels Friday while she was at a race track. Police said Mrs. Frederica Emert, 56, took the loss calmly. She insisted on eating her dinner before she would allow detectives and FBI agents to question her.

Canada's Indians Must Prove Worth to Society, Parley Told

TORONTO (CP) — Elliot Moses, a member of the Six Nations Indian reserve, says it is a myth that his people are downtrodden and discriminated against.

Tapping his head, Mr. Moses told about 200 persons at Trinity College's conference on the Canadian Indian Friday: "If there's any discrimination it's all up here."

Mr. Moses, who lives on the big reserve near Brantford, Ont. said during a panel discussion at the two-day conference that Indians can have the best jobs in the land if they will prove their worth to society.

But Mamie Smallface, 21, a third - year university student from Edmonton, disagreed with him about discrimination.

"I'm just as qualified as anyone in Alberta to vote but I'm denied that right," she said.

Miss Smallface, a major in sociology and anthropology at the University of Alberta, added: "The Alberta government passed legislation to take away our voting rights. We had them before and we want them back. We won't go and beg the government for that privilege because it's already ours

'COULD SWING VOTES'

"There are 23,000 Indians living in Alberta. We would swing the vote in 11 constituencies in the provincial legislature (which has 63 seats). I think that's why the government won't give us the vote."

Fred Kelly, a Kenora Indian who lost his job with the Children's Aid Society in that city after he led 400 Indians on a protest march last November to Kenora city hall, also was a member of the panel.

He said Canada has no Indian problem, only a social problem with two aspects—white and Indian.

"There is nothing wrong with the whites," he said, "except that they're over-fed, oversexed and over here. It is their apathy that leads to the voice of ignorance."

The third Indian on the five-man panel, law student Howard Staats, said the Indian wants to get away from the image the white man still holds of him. For example, he quoted a Toronto newspaper headline referring to Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker: "Dief on warpath for Liberal scalps."

Abbey Sermon By RC Priest Sparks Fight

LONDON (Reuters) — Protestant churchmen exchanged blows with a man under the ancient arches of London's Westminster Abbey Friday night when a Roman Catholic priest delivered a sermon there for the first time in 400 years.

Police and four vergers battled with the man, who shouted protests after the priest, Jesuit Rev. Thomas Corbishley, had preached from the pulpit—on Christian unity.

Matthews Perkins, who described himself as general director of the National Union of Protestants, was led out shouting: "I stand for the faith of our Protestant queen."

The trouble started when the vergers approached Perkins and asked him to leave.

MINISTERS PROTEST

About 50 Protestant ministers from all over Britain staged a demonstration outside the abbey to protest Father Corbishley being invited to preach as part of the abbey's 900th anniversary celebrations.

While several hundred people—including Roman Catholic nuns — worshipped inside, the Protestant ministers waved placards saying: "No Pope for us" and "Protestants awake to the danger of unity."

It was the first time a Catholic priest had preached in the abbey since the 16th century Reformation when Queen Elizabeth I was ex-communicated by the Pope.

Free Enterprise

Think how wonderful it is to be living in a free enterprise country. In Canada any family who has initiative, and intelligence; and who is willing to accept a heavy work load, may have any standard of living their abilities can produce, and more power to them!

There are no government restrictions on ambition! Today, because automation has released a tremendous labour and intelligence force in the emancipation of women, one in every three families has two bread winners. This fact has created a whole new class of specialists—the floor polishers; window cleaners, coin laundry operators, frozen food vendors and hot meal dispensers. Today housewives are becoming excellent doctors, engineers, lawyers, pharmacists and teachers. However in a recent article in a B.C. publication, a local Realtor suggested that housewives should not be Realtors if their husbands were gainfully employed. In other words, out of all the professions being entered by women in this emancipated world, the Real Estate profession must be "singled out" and a "closed shop" maintained to protect the male realtor from competition. How about that? The Real Estate Council of B.C. on recommending an applicant's licence (male or female) determines first that he or she will work full time. If later the reverse is found to be true, under the Real Estate Act, that licence can be suspended or revoked. The Board of Industrial Relations considers full time a 40 hour week. Adults usually sleep 56 hours, which leaves a total of 72 hours a week for the lady realtor to press her automatic stove and laundry buttons. It would be as ridiculous to suggest that a male realtor is not working full time because he mowes his lawn, washes his car or plays ball with junior. And if two incomes are in question—how about the male realtor whose wife is working? How about those who have pensions and still sell real estate? We, as Canadians, must not impose restrictions on ambition or intelligence nor upon the democratic rights of any individual to work, lest we return to the dark ages from whence we've come.

The Pensions Gambit

MR. DIEFENBAKER AND MR. Douglas appear determined to start the 27th Parliament off with the same charade of hypocrisy that characterized the first months of the last Parliament. We are apparently to be treated to a display of theatrical votes of no-confidence, as on Friday, carefully calculated to shake the government without actually toppling it.

What political credit is to be gained from such a game, Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas will attempt to harvest. But they should quickly find that the public of Canada is fed up with political shenanigans of this sort and would appreciate some statesmanship instead.

The last Parliament during its early days was continually placed on the brink of dissolution by motion of no-confidence, but it soon became evident that in some strange way there were always just enough votes thrown into the balance with those of the minority Liberal group to keep the government in power. Now we have the same situation, with Mr. Thompson and his handful of Social Credit members taking the sensible course of refusing to defeat the government on trumped-up issues and thus bring on another election.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas both knew in advance that the Social Credit votes would sustain the government. Their great foray was thus a sham. Considering the Liberal absentees, there were enough Conservative and NDP votes absent from the House to have defeated the government, even with its Social Credit support.

The subject of the balloting is itself an indication of the opportunist nature of the opposition attack. Pensions are one of the most obvious and most abused issues on which to attack a government. No one can argue that still more dollars from the public coffers would not brighten the lives of the elderly folk, but to make the pensions issue a political gimmick is to descend to the most cynical of parliamentary levels.

Mr. Diefenbaker wants to raise the existing $75 pension to $100 payable at age 69. Mr. Douglas wants the $100 paid immediately at 65. They both combed through what they called a poor throne speech and found pension reform to be the only item missing. And this in the face of the government's program, now under way, for a national contributory pension plan and payment of the old age grant speeded up to age 65 over the next five years, to say nothing of a federal offer of still further aid, in conjunction with provincial grants, for those needing it.

They are creating a phoney issue to precipitate a phoney vote. Whether or not pensioners like to be used as pawns in a game of party chess, the voters of Canada as a whole do not welcome the sight. There are enough pressing and vital matters before Parliament to demand all the time and ability that opposition members can muster.

Among Those Present . . .

PRIME MINISTER PEARSON'S casual remark during a television interview that he would have no objection to opening some federal-provincial conferences to press and public from time to time leads to some interesting conjectures.

The suggestion is topical in view of opposition attacks on the government over the role of these continually multiplying conferences in governing the country. The opposition claims—and there may be some merit in the claim—that Parliament can be put in the position of merely rubber-stamping legislation decided on jointly by federal and provincial authorities.

In some areas of federal-provincial discussion—those where premature disclosure of matters could lead to financial upheaval—the need for secrecy seems obvious. But there is a wide category of legal, educational, health and welfare matters in which there might be some benefits to the public if discussions were not hidden. The meeting of attorneys-general on law enforcement recently, for instance, has led to public confusion because some of the participants gave out varying versions of what went on and there is no way for the public to check the accuracy of these accounts.

One can't help wondering, too, how often provincial spokesmen who head for these conferences breathing fire and announcing publicly that they will demand this or that from Ottawa actually carry out their promises—or threats—when they get into the meetings. For that matter, how effective are the provincial officials in dealing with their federal counterparts, and vice versa? Opening some of these meetings to the public gaze might be most enlightening—or disillusioning. At the least it would force all participants to prepare themselves adequately for conferences.

There's no disguising the fact that allowing press and public into federal-provincial conferences could also complicate matters. Providing a forum for politicians is always an invitation to bring out the worst in them. Still, on the principle that the public's business in a democracy is best conducted in public, there's merit in giving Mr. Pearson's casual suggestion more thorough consideration.

They Can Be Convinced

TWO AUTOMOBILE MANUFACturing executives have told an Ontario road safety group that the public is unwilling to pay for safety features which could be incorporated into new cars.

"We have to convince a large portion of the public that this is what they need and want," explained one of the industry's spokesmen. No doubt he is correct and no doubt inclusion of some built-in safety elements would raise the cost of constructing cars.

What the executives failed to point out, however, was a practice familiar to any sensible member of the purchasing public. For years the industry, through sales promotion, has been persuading the buyer that he wants any number of things in a modern car for which a strictly cultivated and whimsical desire has been manufactured—tail-fins a few years ago, for instance.

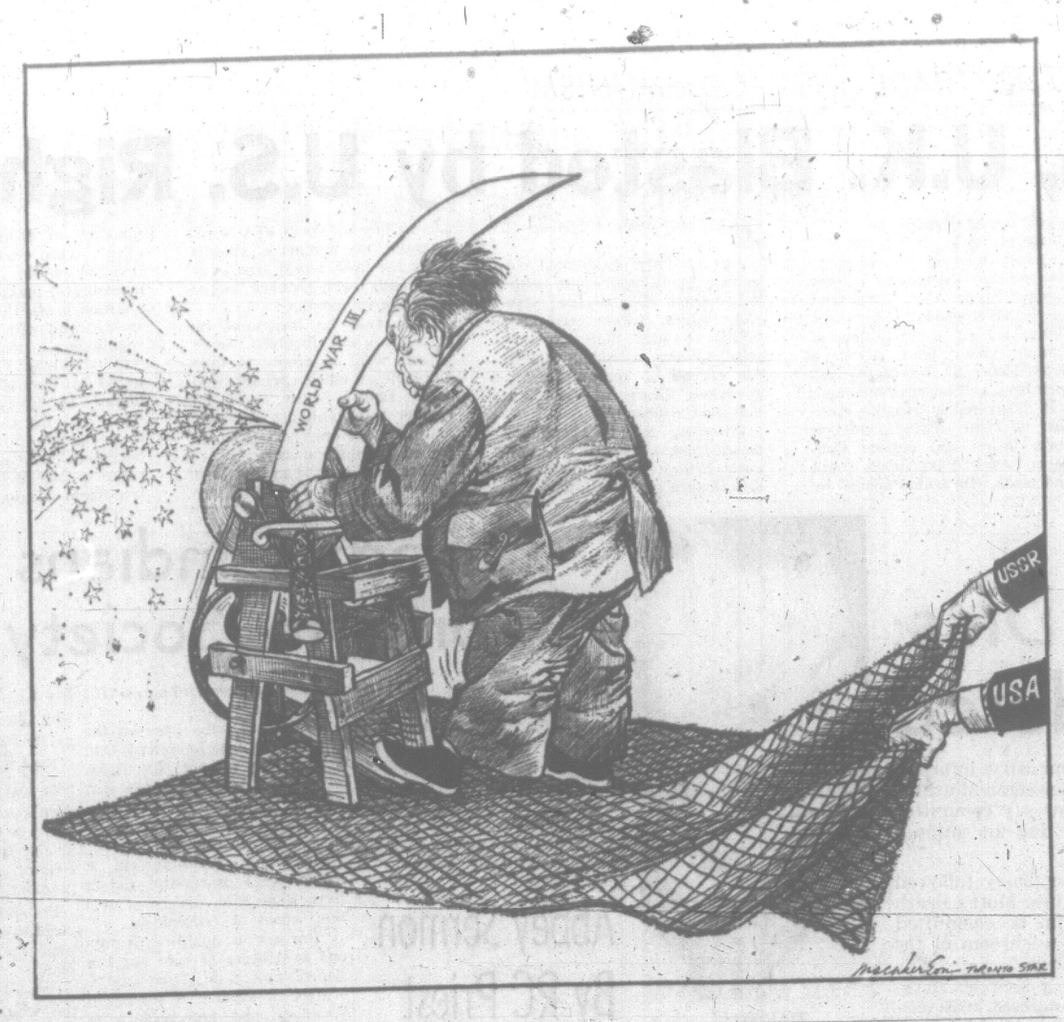

Each year's new models are unveiled with their quota of gimmicks that are represented as new elements in comfort, style or efficiency. Obviously some of the devices have limited value—may serve, in fact, only to distinguish the new year's model from its predecessor without conveying any particular benefit.

Just possibly a sufficient number of prospective purchasers would be more impressed by the inclusion of a factor which promised him greater chances of survival than one which made it easier for him to fit his ignition key into its place in the dark.

Estimating While Impaired?

A FAMOUS BRITISH BREWING firm has poured down the drain about $750,000 worth of its product. This is the excess it brewed for the Christmas season on the advice of a computer—a margin of error far surpassing any mistakes made on other occasions by mere human estimaters despite the heady nature of their computations.

Which may go to prove the sensitivity of computers. A few whiffs of malt and bang goes three-quarters of a million.

GOP Play Just Funny On TV Show

By RICHARD PURSER
from Washington

PITY the poor Republicans. This is an election year, and the opposition party is desperate to do something — anything — to significantly whittle down the huge Democratic majorities that swept into Congress on President Johnson's coattails in 1964. Democrats outnumber Republicans by 294 to 141 in the House of Representatives and by 68 to 32 in the Senate. The President's coattails will not be available in November, nor will there be the same tide of revulsion against Barry Goldwater that brought 50 to 60 freshmen Democratic representatives to the House from normally Republican districts in 1964. So the limited gains traditionally made by the opposition in an "off year" election are expected to occur again this year.

Purser

But limited gains are not enough this time to give the Republicans a presidential springboard in Congress for 1968. They want to make a decent enough showing to suggest the beginnings of public dissatisfaction with the President. Their problem is that they can find almost no way to seize the initiative. Take the opening gambit of the Republican congressional leadership, which was a conspicuous failure.

Televised Reply

Following the President's annual state of the union message, Republican leaders Sen. Everett Dirksen and Rep. Gerald Ford requested television time to give their own answer to Mr. Johnson's prime-time, full-color, one-hour spectacular. The resulting off-time, black and white, half-hour production turned out to be a silly parody of the state of the union address, with Republican congressmen assembled in serried ranks, a pompous announcement of the entrance of the leaders, and unoccasioned and obviously staged "standing ovations."

The state of the union address is not a party affair: it is an institution, enshrined in the words of the constitution, which says of the President: "He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient." The opposition's right to reply on television is not similarly hallowed, and the Republican attempt to cloak its reply in the trappings of a state occasion was merely funny.

If the "Ev and Gerry show," as joint appearances of the Republican leaders have been dubbed, had any substance to it, the occasion might have been saved. Mr. Ford made a fighting speech, admittedly well-received by the partisan audience in the hall. It contained ritual political denunciations of heavy federal spending, the threat of inflation, inefficient bureaucracy, and mismanagement of government programs. But he neglected to provide evidence for his charges (in contrast to a Republican senator who, in a speech on the Senate floor earlier the same day, gave a well-documented account of the administration's sins).

Foreign Policy

Sen. Dirksen, who spoke on foreign policy, showed even more clearly the problem Republicans face in trying to present an alternative to Lyndon Johnson. He favored continuation of the peace effort, and an intensified military effort if required. This happens also to be the President's policy.

There was not much else Sen. Dirksen could say—as he found out two weeks ago, when he tried. He told the press on January 7 that he favored a complete U.S. military victory before any negotiations with North Viet Nam are begun. Whether he was only stung by the subsequent headline in a leading paper—"Dirksen Breaks with President on Viet Nam War"—or was telephoned by Mr. Johnson is not known. But a few days later he returned to his original Johnsonian tune on Viet Nam, pointedly cautioning against hawkish outbursts.

Even if the Republican leaders had turned in a better performance in their 1966 political season debut, it wouldn't have done them much good. President Johnson upstaged them by the same evening assembling leading cabinet members before the press and releasing a barrage of important announcements which chased Ev and Gerry out of the next morning's headlines.

FROM OTTAWA

We Don't Like You, But Don't Go

By MAURICE WESTERN

MR. T. C. DOUGLAS, the leading Canadian exponent of minority parliaments, has proposed a revision of conventions to make life safer for minority groups within such parliaments. Not every vote in the House of Commons threatens the life of the government. But in the opinion of Mr Douglas, there are too many which do. While the NDP feels strongly on the subject of pensions, "We do not consider," he says, "that an expression by the House of Commons in a matter such as old-age pensions necessarily or inherently represents a vote of no confidence in the government."

Western

Unless a motion is specifically framed as a confidence vote, Mr. Douglas feels that the government in the event of defeat, should have three alternatives. It should be able to accept the policy; to state that it considers the motion an expression of Parliament's opinion but not as a vote of confidence; or to test the House with a second vote on the specific issue of confidence.

Different Approach

Whatever the merits of this case, which will no doubt be argued in scholarly fashion by Mr. Stanley Knowles, it indicates an interesting progression of thought on the part of the New Democrats. On June 24, 1963, Mr. Douglas was confronted with an amendment to Mr. Gordon's first and least fortunate budget moved on behalf of the Conservatives by the late Mr. George Nowlan. There was no doubt that this posed an issue of confidence and it presented Mr. Douglas with an unhappy problem which he solved by leading his party in a mass abstention.

The NDP leader stated his position at that time in memorable words. "By abstaining from voting," he concluded, "we are saying to the government that we are prepared to see you stay in office in the hope that you will do something to implement the promises you made to the people of Canada. But, by abstaining, we are also stating that we have no confidence in this budget; that we will not be associated with this dismal budget and the disastrous consequences which we believe will flow from its implementation."

One or two New Democrats felt then that what they were witnessing was not the party's finest hour. For, on the one hand, Mr. Douglas was saying that the budget would have "disastrous consequences" while he declined, on the other, to vote against the government which was fashioning the disaster.

With the revised doctrine (and possibly a more prudent choice of words), the NDP would not have to abstain. They would presumably vote against the budget while inviting the government to follow one of the three courses outlined by Mr. Douglas. They could be against sin without risking disastrous consequences in a political sense.

Favorite Theme

In fact the doctrine is not new; it was a favorite theme of the old Labor party and may be found in a speech by Mr. William Irvine in the debate of March 1922 (when there was also a minority Parliament). But Mr. Irvine, unlike Mr. Douglas, did not believe in oppositions. He thought they undermined popular confidence in governments and he favored a theory of group government then popular in Alberta.

One reason why the doctrine has never been accepted is that, in a minority Parliament, it would ensure captive government. If the ministers accepted the counsel of Mr. Douglas (in any of the three forms), they would have to carry on with policies in which they did not believe, policies manufactured by the opposition. This accords entirely with the view, implicit in some of Mr. Douglas's other statements, that the government should do the bidding of the NDP despite its failure at the polls to win anything like the popular support of the present administration.

More Persuasive

It may be that Mr. Knowles, with his great knowledge of Parliament, will so refine the doctrine as to make it more persuasive. Some refinement is certainly needed. The NDP is seldom reluctant to accuse the government of shirking its responsibility in one field or another. Mr. Douglas is apparently seeking, however, to find a means by which the New Democrats may escape from the sometimes unpleasant responsibilities of opposition groups.

If this was a majority Parliament, the problem would not arise. But it is the sort of Parliament which Mr. Douglas himself earnestly recommended to the country. Not satisfied with the cake, he now wishes to have it and to eat it too. While this may have appeal for other political fragments in a similar position, it is unlikely that it will commend itself to members generally. The likelihood is that Mr. Douglas will have to vote confidence (fractional though it may be) or else fall back on his own precedent of mass abstention, painful though this on occasion will certainly be.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

THE Goldstream River at the picnic site has changed its course, owing to the heavy run-off of rain and melting snow.

Just below the bridge it has created a new island and many sand bars and ridges. At the bend it took to the bush and made a new outlet to join the main stream farther down.

The main stream is now running "white water"—full of silt, branches of trees and other debris.

At the bridge one can see where there were log jams that piled up against the supports.

There are many large old trees that have been broken off or uprooted; some have created fantastic shapes, many of them are covered with bright green mosses or have poly-pody ferns growing from them.

Where the water has cut new channels you can see the root system of many of the shrubs and trees mingled in a network of many colors and shapes.

Here one can see how erosion takes place, how the age-old battle between the land and the elements is proceeding. You can see how deltas and bars are formed at the mouths of rivers.

Just south of the bridge, where the rocky bluffs rise to 200 feet, there are several waterfalls that tumble in some places for a hundred feet or more. Against the background of the bright green mosses the white spray of the cascading waters makes a very pleasing sight.

As you look around you find that mother nature has already commenced to repair winter's damage; the Indian plum and the salmon-berry shrubs are showing the bright green buds of a new life.

One wonders what has happened to the thousands of salmon eggs that were deposited in the stream during the fall.

Canada's Indians—Youth and Opportunity

By Arthur Stott

TWENTY or more years ago the progressive and educated young Indian offered a credible explanation for his people's apparent reluctance to abandon their special status in order to assume full citizenship, with its rights, opportunities and responsibilities.

The young ones appreciated the advantages and would change, he'd say. But the old ones—they were more fixed in their ways, distrusted change, were caught in the glories and familiarities of the good old days. It would take time.

Now that progressive and educated young Indian is 20 or more years older. Age conventionally brings its trend to conservatism.

Furthermore, the Indians can say honestly that our present whiteman's affluent and acquisitive society falls short of perfection. Ethically, in some respects, the Indian way of life is superior.

True. But the affluent and acquisitive society is here. We have to live in it and with it. So do the Indians.

How can they make the transition?

The 1965 year book of the Canadian Association of School Superintendents and Inspectors: "The Education of Indian Children in Canada", a symposium written by members of the Indian Affairs Division, suggests a characteristic answer—through education.

Younger Trend

The Indian population of Canada is roughly 200,000, about one per cent of the national total. Approximately 57 per cent of all Canadian Indians are under 21 years of age, 70.3 per cent under 30.

If education can transplant them to the general standard of living and to acceptance of the rights and privileges of citizenship, the vast bulk of the people are young enough to learn.

Their expanding numbers and the encroachment of civilization on former wild lands combine to make the old way of life — trapping, hunting, fishing — inadequate to sustain them. To survive they have to accept the general society and way of life of the majority of Canadians, or at least equip themselves to compete with it.

Cannot Compete

In a technological age they cannot compete when, as was the case in 1956, over 25 per cent of the adults on half the reserves in Canada were illiterate—and 85 per cent of all Indians live on reserves.

The avenue of survival and improvement of their lot—at least improvement in material terms—is the pathway to the school.

The year book cited above shows an appreciation of that fact by Indians who are showing a greater determination to send their children to class and keep them there longer.

There have been schools for Indians in Canada from the time of early French settlement, notably those established by the Ursulines and Bishop Laval in Quebec. Those forerunners of continent-wide training and teaching centres have shown pathetically limited results. Few Indians go beyond elementary school. A minute fraction only enters and passes through university.

The obstacles to progress have been daunting. The children come from environments and cultures vastly different from those of their white teachers. Often —and this appears to be a major hurdle— they come as tiny tots without even the language in which they must be taught. The hours spent learning the language are that much time taken away from learning the courses. In the primary grades this appears relatively unimportant. Halfway through grade school, as the work grows harder, they begin to drop out, discouraged, bewildered, dissatisfied.

Federal government expenditure on Indian education, meagre before the '30s, has multiplied in recent years. According to tables in the year book, it had reached $34,615,000 in 1964-65.

No reflection is cast upon the honest and conscientious efforts of special groups, church and missionary endeavors, to provide schooling. These efforts were heroic, the difficulties enormous.

Better Training

But perhaps there has never been a time in Canada's history of greater promise to Indian education than today. The attempt is being made to equip the small ones more adequately with the ability to learn to read and to master the tongue of the teacher. The federal government seems to spare no pains to carry the Indian pupil as far as he can go, on the basis of ability and interest. In fact the Indian is probably the only class in Canada that receives "free" education.

Moreover, the trend now is toward integration—a valuable educative policy through which the Indian child learns to mingle with, to accept and to be accepted by, his non-Indian fellows, to develop a sense of belonging to the society which exists today and to grow away from those inclinations to absenteeism and early termination so apparent in the history of Indian education.

Beyond this, there is increasing development in adult education for the Indian—a process which should do much to discourage retreat into an apathetic or hostile attitude among the older, under-educated members of the bands.

Teaching staffs are being improved by stricter accreditation, higher requirements.

Promising Outlook

The outlook holds promise and problems. Provinces, led by British Columbia, are bringing more integration into the schools and the federal government is increasingly generous with its financing. The Indians are a young people, by the accident of an exploding birth-rate. They know there is not enough room in the wigwam for all. They appreciate the need for education and training to give them economic health.

Ultimately the problem of Indian education is the problem of all Canadians. Education, social acceptance, professional and industrial encouragement must come from all the peoples who make up the nation. How they react to their particular Canadian problem of a depressed minority will determine the advancement of the underprivileged group. And the eyes of the world are fixed on all materially successful nations with minority problems.

Of course the critical factor in the whole issue is the attitude of the Indians themselves. They will progress, in our terms, only if they desire and are determined to progress. But we can do a lot to nourish that desire and determination.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

It was a week of transition for the Commonwealth.

Leadership of three of the largest members changed hands—two by peaceful process and the other through violence.

In India, the most populous Commonwealth nation, history was made when a woman was chosen as prime minister, the first in modern times to lead a major power.

She is Mrs. Indira Gandhi, a 48-year-old widow, daughter of Jawaharlal Nehru, and no kin to Mohandas Gandhi.

She is India's third prime minister since Gandhi guided the nation to independence in 1947. The first was her father who served until his death in 1964. Nehru was followed by Lal Bahadur Shastri who died last week.

Mrs. Gandhi has been a member of the cabinet as minister of information and broadcasting, and became prime minister when the Congress party elected her leader of its majority faction in Parliament.

The choice of the party's "kingmakers," she easily defeated her only challenger, right wing leader Morarji Desai. Other cabinet ministers mentioned as potential candidates dropped out of the running earlier.

Leaders of India's opposition parties were highly critical of the manner of Mrs. Gandhi's election and served notice she can expect a rough time in Parliament.

She faces mounting antagonism within the country over the peace accord with Pakistan signed by Shastri just before his death.

Other critics claimed Mrs. Gandhi would be under the thumb of Congress party bigwigs, but being a strong-minded, independent woman, that situation isn't likely to last long.

In Australia the Commonwealth's longest-serving prime minister, Sir Robert Menzies, stepped down after 16 years in office.

Menzies, 71, passed the mantle on to Harold Holt, deputy leader of the Liberal party since 1956 and a member of Parliament for 30 years.

For the last eight years Holt, 57, has been federal treasurer.

As new leader of the Liberal party, he will head the ruling Liberal-Country party coalition and faces a general election later this year.

The Opposition Labor party is troubled by internal strife and is not expected to upset the coalition.

Nigeria, the largest Commonwealth nation in Africa and once considered one of the most stable on the continent, came apart at the seams.

After weeks of bloody rioting over regional rivalries the army rose up and deposed the government.

The man who emerged holding the reins of power was Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi Ironsi, the flamboyant army commander who at one time headed the UN force in the Congo.

Trained as an officer in Britain, Ironsi became the first African to command the Nigerian army.

The revolt was actually triggered by Maj. Chukwuma Kaduna Nzugwu, but he quickly gave way when Ironsi asserted his authority.

Premier Sir Abubakar Balewa was kidnapped during the early hours of the uprising and slain.

Just two weeks ago Balewa was host to leaders of the other Commonwealth members meeting in Lagos to discuss the Rhodesian crisis.

Ironsi said he intends to have a committee draw up a new constitution and national elections will be held when it is completed.

Asked if he expected to be still in control after that Ironsi replied, "I hope not."

The speech from the throne launched the first session of Canada's new 27th Parliament and it promises to be a long one.

Most of the legislation forecast is left over from the last Parliament or arises from election campaign promises, and it comprises a lengthy list. Included is increased aid for higher education, creation of the Canada Development Corporation, and medicare.

Another highlight of the session will be a free vote on the question of capital punishment.

This week the cabinet commuted the death sentence of 19-year-old Reginal Colpits of Moncton, N.B., who killed a Dorchester Penitentiary guard. He was the 20th condemned man to be spared since the last hanging in 1962.

Bloody Nigerian Revolt Blow to African Stability

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS — The explosive revolt in Nigeria this past week, coming soon after army coups in several other African states, could have a profound impact on the Rhodesian crisis and fundamentally change the pace, if not the course, of history in that part of the world.

Frye

Nigeria was considered a showcase of parliamentary democracy in Africa. It was, perhaps, not as true a democracy as it was credited with being; the last elections, for example, may well have been rigged in some parts of the country.

—But even where democracies are rooted in centuries of tradition and practice, they are often defective; and Nigeria had gone a remarkably long way in a very short time.

Its collapse has saddened friends of Africa and left them dismayed about the future of parliamentary government on a continent where such government is in tragically short supply.

More serious still, it has given powerful ammunition to the white rulers of Rhodesia and South Africa, who say disorder of the same kind would prevail in their countries if majority rule—one man, one vote—were to be instituted there.

Leave us in power, they argue; Africans are incompetent to rule themselves, let alone to rule us; we provide "islands of stability" in a "sea of Red-tinted chaos."

Some Truth

The painful thing about these taunts from Salisbury and Pretoria is that they have an element of truth to them. They grossly exaggerate the defects of black Africa, but their basic thesis — that Africa has not yet proved itself — is an obvious fact.

It does not follow that the contrary is also true, that is, that if the whites in southern Africa were to be left alone in positions of authority over black majorities, all would be tranquil and orderly.

Ready or not, Africa is determined not to be governed by white minorities any longer. These minorities have exercised power with cruel disregard for Africa's sensibilities and aspirations, and their days are clearly numbered.

The real need — emphasized, rather than disproved, by what has happened in Nigeria — is for peaceful and evolutionary change, carefully prepared and based on educational growth. Change there obviously must be; but if it is too sudden, the result will be disruption and bloodshed.

Not Academic

The point is by no means academic in Rhodesia. It is the core of the crisis. The real issue in dispute is: how fast the transition to majority rule?

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson has been careful to make clear in virtually every public statement that black rule would not come immediately if the Ian Smith rebellion were ended. He has kept the door open for compromise.

Until this past week, Smith had taken the rigid position that black rule would not come at all in his lifetime. He still has not explicitly modified that view, but this past week, it seemed that at last he was beginning to come around.

Sanctions were beginning to hurt, as witness the 50 per cent slash in the gasoline ration; and in a carefully guarded move, Smith offered to resume negotiations with Wilson, provided Rhodesia continued independent. Such negotiations could only be on African participation in the democratic process.

Wilson had just come from a Commonwealth barbecue at Lagos, where he himself had been on the spit. A compromise with Smith on these terms was out of the question.

But compromise there could be. Some other Rhodesian government—a coalition, perhaps, of all significant forces—could be set up to prepare the way for independence. At last a little light was beginning to appear at the end of the tunnel.

Africans, too, were showing signs of a slightly less frenetic approach to the Rhodesian crisis. Talk of war was moderating. Confidence in economic sanctions — and in Britain's sincerity in applying them—was increasing; Wilson had been given until July to test their efficacy.

There was reason for realistic men to hope for a sensible, negotiated outcome to the crisis.

Frightening

Then came the Nigerian upheaval. Africa's largest country, the continent's principal showpiece of democracy, crumbled in violence. The sight could not help but frighten Rhodesian whites.

If their reaction was to stonewall once again, earlier elements of rigidity in the crisis could return. The opportunity for progress could be lost.

Diplomats and observers in many parts of the world held their breaths and watched the weathervanes. All that could be said immediately was that the logical course — evolution and peaceful change — had been made incomparably more difficult to follow. Wise men in both Europe and Africa nevertheless struggled to stay on that road.

Spy Film Passion Reveals Much Of World Today

By RICHARD L. COE
The Washington Post

There is more than meets the dazzled eyes in this current passion for spy films.

The film world's structure always has been built on cycles, one company following another in trends from Biblical or Civil War epics to private eye or pillow talk hanky panky.

But today's craze is something else again and from the storming popularity of these exercises one can gauge a great deal of the society which produces them.

With the impetus of the first three James Bond films, "Thunderball" has been breaking records of astounding proportions everywhere. The Bond series is fantasy touched with realism, a reasonably clear conflict between two civilizations. The hero is of enviable prowess, a highly-tuned male animal addicted to the best things in life, which he uses to thwart those who threaten such luxuries.

The Bond impact inevitably has brought imitations of amusing variety. There are those who claim to be "the second best secret agent in the whole wide world" or "Agent 008½" and such fellows as the reluctant hero of "The Ipcress File" or TV's gallant team, Napoleon Solo and Ilya Kuryakin, the men from UNCLE.

To these add a razzle-dazzler, "Our Man Flint."

All-Out Dream

This makes no pretense of suggesting the realities which pepper the Bond fantasies. It is all-out dream-world. Flint has found a way to live with four beauties at a time, even a bed to hold five friendly folk. His private fortune supports a custom-built jet in which, to teach the Bolshoi occasional new steps, he is wont to fly to Moscow. Flint has it made, the independent's daydream in an affluent, gadget-filled society.

Only because a poisoned dart twanged from a night club harp was clearly meant for Flint does he condescend to join the team to which an army of computer machines has assigned him. This is for ZOWIE (Zonal Organization World Intelligence Espionage) but once within it he refuses to be of its team play, relying wholly on himself.

While Flint, then, is wholly endowed with all material and sensual means, he further has the advantage of the purely spiritual, the Orient's yoga. This rescues him from certain death in his solo struggle to keep three placid, gentlemanly scientists from controlling earth's weather, hence the earth itself.

The fantasy, then, contains the major elements of today's subconscious, the facts of affluence and sensuality. Living within these, man is conscious of the power of science, believing that through it anything can happen, from the hold computers can have over an individual's fate to the possibility that all the elements can be controlled.

Nerve-Wracked

It is this consciousness of what he cannot himself control as an individual which gives today's human his nerve-wracked fear. It is the expression of Flint, as a single individual against the burgeoning masses, which satisfies the longing to be, at all odds, the individual removed from the mass.

Viewed in this light of the individual trying to keep his material-sensual luxuries against scientific mysteries, the craze for this type of film becomes meaningful, even awesome.

Far more than such cycles have done in the past, this present vogue is expressing, without baldly saying so, the inexpressible.

That these films are created in the spirit of laughter and fantasy and have been drawing phenomenally large audiences around the world suggests that they are stating anxieties and fears which are very much a part of a common, worldwide malaise.

While their glittering ingenuity, staggering violence and reckless insolence are making us laugh, they are striking a common chord of shocked recognition. One superficially enjoys their fabulous escapism, but they are not true escapism at all. They engross us because they put into other terms the chill of widespread nightmares, only dimly realized.

THE GALLUP POLL

Kennedy and Humphrey Public Images Studied

By The American Institute of Public Opinion

More than half the American voters do not want to see Vice-President Hubert Humphrey as president of the United States. And just under half say they do not want Senator Robert Kennedy as president, either.

In surveys, recently completed, the U.S. Gallup Poll sought to shed light on the public's image of Messrs. Humphrey and Kennedy. What is liked best and least about them? Do they want the presidency? And does the public want to see one of them become president?

Taking Vice-President Humphrey first, he is lauded for his eloquence, for his dedication to the job, for his personality and intelligence. On the other hand, he is branded as "too wishy-washy," too aggressive and not qualified.

A great majority (72%) of the public is convinced that Mr. Humphrey wants to be president and another majority (58%) does not want to see him president.

Senator Kennedy's intellect, personality, education and the "Kennedy name" are mentioned most often as the things people like best about him. However, another segment of the public believes the senator capitalizes on the Kennedy name, that he is too pushy and power hungry.

As with Vice-President Humphrey, many Americans (74%) believe Senator Kennedy wants to become president of the United States. But only 40% of the voters would like to see him president and 46% are against it.

Canadian Expert Sees End Of Viet Nam War This Year

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—After the peace push, what?

The answer, according to a highly qualified external affairs department source, is a continuation of the war in Viet Nam, probably followed in six to eight months by yet another major U.S. effort to transfer hostilities from the rice paddies to the conference table.

Waring

The Canada-India-Poland commission set up in 1954 to oversee the armistice that ended the war before this one has been overtaken by events, but it still maintains a presence in Saigon and Hanoi that is of some significance. This truce commission is a pin pricking the world's conscience over Viet Nam. The list of Canadians who have served on the commission is long and distinguished, and my source is one most currently knowledgeable of this list.

Despite the seeming failure of President Johnson's efforts to start negotiations with the Hanoi government, my source believes that the new peace offensive he foresees in late summer might be fruitful, for two reasons. One is the softening effect on Hanoi of the current U.S. overtures. The other is the prospect that the Russians will help Hanoi correct its completely wrong assessment of U.S. intentions, of the meaning of domestic American anti-war agitation, and of the will of the U.S people to continue the war.

When Washington abandons hope for the current peace drive the war will be further intensified, my source predicts. This would perhaps include a resumption of bombing, "but not a rapid escalation."

The great obstacle, he believes, is that the North Vietnamese leaders have been misled by wishfully thinking that the U.S. people will lose heart for the war, just as the French people lost heart after Dien Bien Phu, and that Washington will then abandon South Viet Nam. The anti-war agitation in the U.S. led by intelleotuals like Prof. Staughton Lynd of Yale, which gained enormous publicity through university teach-ins, is mistaken by Hanoi as the volce of the American people.

★ ★ ★

President Ho Chi Minh and Premier Pham Van Dong are "isolated from the rest of the world, and not in a good position to analyze United States intentions and reactions. They are just dreadful on Washingtonology."

"It's a great setup for the Chinese," my source said. "They're able to cause acute embarrassment to the United States and a degree of embarrassment to the Soviet Union, at no cost to themselves."

Adding to the problem is the character of the North Vietnamese. They are very proud, nationalistic and suspicious, and loath to believe even friendly foreigners—for example, Russia's Alexander N. Shelepin, who visited Hanoi last week—whose interpretation of U.S. intentions and war-will differs from theirs.

"I definitely think there could be an end in '66," my informed source said. "It depends on the assessment of American intentions by Hanoi and the Viet Cong. They can't go on indefinitely misinterpreting the Americans."

Not Yet Convinced That Exams are 'a Bad Thing'

By ART STOTT

MY friends at the school board office have introduced a plan to permit recommendations in Grades 8, 9 and 10.

Stott

A few years ago this would have brought from me the supercilious and exaggerated comment that it is now possible to pass from the cradle to the university without being subjected to an examination. I'm not quite so supercilious now. But I still have to be convinced that examinations are a bad thing.

Let's admit that there are in the examination process all sorts of flaws difficult if not impossible to eliminate. The experts will point out to you that preparing or marking examinations is a subjective matter. One examiner may set a hard test, another a soft one. One marker, in anything but an objective test, will be very strict, another compassionate. Hence, a relatively bright boy might fail an examination produced by a tough examiner and a tough marker. A dull boy might pass a less exacting exam more sympathetically marked.

That's one of the problems. Another is the unfortunate reaction of a number of students to examinations. Some who are reasonably well versed in their subjects go to pieces under the pressure of a test. Others who have grasshoppered through most of a year and worked like an ant in the cramming sessions show up almost brilliantly in the papers they write.

Furthermore, in any prescribed course of study an examination pattern develops. A good producer in a "cram school" can analyze these, sift them and equip a student with enough answers to virtually assure a pass. This is the procedure of some highly successful, and occasionally expensive, institutions which push the laggard over the hump raised to determine his academic capability. You can know the answers without knowing the subject.

So why do I hang on to my approval of examinations? It isn't merely because I sweated through my own share of them before recommendations became popular. It is because I think it part of the training a youngster needs in his preparation for the competition he's going to meet when he leaves school.

If you're sensitive enough, you can find a crisis in almost everything you do in a day. You can get yourself into a dither over whether you can cross the intersection before "Walk" turns to "Don't Walk"—or is that an issue for the track coach? You can get all fussed up, if that's your nature, over what to order from the restaurant menu. You can be thrown for a loop by a salesman who calls on you to make a decision. And your mental processes can blow up a storm when you have something more important to consider—a job, a significant commitment of your time or money, or the course you should follow on a matter of major concern.

Just possibly, if you've become experienced in school to facing the crises which are exams, you may have developed—as I think you do — the ability to think a problem out calmly and deal with it to the best of your abilities. Sooner or later, in school, also, you are going to be confronted by examinations. A little familiarity with the way to handle them might be worth 10 or 15 per cent in the mark you score—at a time when 10 or 15 per cent is vital.

That's figuring examinations in terms of exams for their own sake. It's important, I think; important because it helps to teach a person how to marshal facts and faculties for lucid presentation. Surprising as it may seem to the Grade 8 student, facility in organization and in communication is a big help in the business of making a living. In later life things can't be left to the intuition of the listener, like the shrill cackle of teen-age girls discussing teachers, boys, clothes, and homework at the back of the 4:30 bus.

There's another point to the argument. How do the recommending teachers reach their opinion on the right of a child to be promoted without writing an examination? Perhaps from the written submission of assignments during the year and the small tests conducted in class —and they still have written assignments and tests.

Maybe I'm an old mossback. I still see virtue in having a pupil set down in writing what he knows about a specified question presented to him by an examiner. Among other things, it's a useful exercise in what we used to call composition.

Kremlin Lifts Ban on Two Stalin Works

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities will shortly publish two banned books authored by Josef Stalin in an apparent Kremlin effort to give credit where credit is due to the former ruler, informed sources said.

Both books are early works by Stalin, considered "classics" in their field, and are apparently non-controversial to the present Kremlin leadership. One deals with the question of nationalities and the other basic ideological problems.

But the sources pointed out that the publication should not be considered political rehabilitation of Stalin.

Historic Role

Instead, they said, it is intended to introduce a measure of objectivity on the major historic role he played during his lifetime despite his lust for power and the bloody purges of the late 1930s.

Publication of Stalin's works have been banned since 1956 when former Premier Nikita S. Krushchev launched a de-Stalinization campaign which depicted the man who ruled Russia for almost 30 years as a common criminal.

One of the books to be published again, "Marxism and the National Question," was written in 1912 at Lenin's behest. "Problems of Leninism" first appeared in 1924.

Pool Capital Of The World

An estimated 86,000,000 gallons of water are required to fill the 3600 swimming pools of all sizes and shapes that have earned for Palm Springs, Calif., the undisputed title of swimming pool capital of the world."

The official estimated population figure for this desert oasis stands at 20,000. This indicates a pool for approximately every six persons, by all odds more per capita than any other community on this planet.

CALLING SNOW-BLOWN SUNBATHERS

You Don't Need a Bikini!

San Diego, with winter temperatures never much below 60 degrees, is the latest retreat for rained-on, snow-blown sunbathers whether they come out in polka-dot bikinis, Brooks Bros. swim trunks, or size two playsuits.

But you don't have to put on a bikini or even be with a gal who does to cash in on the pleasures along San Diego's 70 miles of beaches this winter. San Diego offers something for everyone.

There are sandy beaches for sunbathers, 10-foot waves for surfers, clear water for skin divers, bonita for fishermen, light breezes for yatchtsmen, plus whale hunts for sightseers.

★ ★ ★

Sunbathers find their "place in the sun" on the grassy slopes or warm sand at Crown Point or De Anza Cove. Wind-breaks at these two popular beaches shut out the light breeze and make barbecuing on open fire rings a pleasure.

For those who want to get into the swim, ocean beaches where lifeguards are on duty year around are first choice.

Surfers vote La Jolla's Windansea Beach second only to those in Hawaii. Biggest waves—often 10 feet—roll in during the winter months. Surf shops not only rent insulated suits and boards for $1 an hour, but also advise where waves are breaking best. One shop sends scouts out three or four times a week to check the best places for catching big waves and for the warmest water.

The fisherman in San Diego this winter can cast off from the shore or take advantage of the department of fish and game's artificial reef program. With the help of man-made fish houses, sportsmen pull in halibut, perch and bass at the piers at Shelter Island, Imperial Beach and Oceanside.

★ ★ ★

Deep sea anglers bring home such favorites as rock cod, halibut and bonita. Charter boats leave for full or half day fishing trips from Shelter Island or Quivira Basin on Mission Bay. Tourists can rent everything and even have their catch canned or smoked at Quivira Basin for at home consumption.

Skin divers find wintertime the ideal time for their sport in San Diego because the water is at its clearest, calmest best. La Jolla is one of the most famous grounds where the brilliant gold Garibaldi fish, vari-colored rock formations, reefs and even sunken vessels can be seen underwater. Divers supply shops rent all equipment, give free maps, and provide daily information as where water is warmest.

Yachtsmen consider San Diego climate equable enough for all-year sailing, Mission Bay, where 14-foot sloops and catamarans can be rented for $3 an hour, is sheltered, traffic is limited and the wind is steady but not strong.

For the non-sea going spectator Cabrillo National Monument atop Point Loma, has a whale-watching station where official census takers expect to spot 6,000 whales this winter.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Satire and Lyricism in Bates' Reflective Drawings

Skelton

The earliest drawing in the Maxwell Bates Exhibition at the University Gallery is dated April 1964 and the latest May 1965. During these 13 months Mr. Bates created a series of works which he has called the "Grand Hotel" series. They are part drawings, part paintings, and part prints, and the three media are made to blend with and counterpoint each other with astonishing success.

It is not, however, the technical expertise of these works which fascinates me, but the individual, not to say idiosyncratic vision they present.

Mr. Bates has taken the stock characters of the Europe of the thirties and presented them to us with a savage humor and a pathos that combines both satirical and lyrical moods.

In Masquerade the vivid colors clash and dance with a harsh gaiety that only just fails to conceal the vacuity of the persons involved.

The curlicues and twists of yellow imposed upon the original work by printing with a plastic table-mat appear to add a jazz-like gaiety to the scene while still reminding us of chickenwire and all entangling and confusing forces.

One might say that this image, one of both gaiety and imprisonment, dominates the show, were it not that every now and then dark areas of wash suggest a desperation and anxiety of quite another kind.

There is little gaiety, for example, in Chambermaid's Attic, which in its posing of the two maids against a robot-like figure in a context of claustrophobic and, finally, paranoid intensity of Jean Genet's play, The Maids.

Such a literary comparison is more valid for Mr. Bates' work than for most; his title for the series is itself a literary reference, and many of his drawings look as if they are illustrations to some as yet unwritten novel. Some, indeed, are frankly anecdotal.

Of these Art Nouveau Reception is perhaps the most amusing. The people portrayed are as shrewdly typical as those presented by George Grosz in his own commentaries upon the folly of his times. They are, however, given an appropriate rigidity and monstrous elegance by the use of large areas of fragmentation suggests the

DOMINATED

Thus the towering woman, whose face reminds me faintly of Oscar Wilde, is dressed entirely in black and the man beside her, so much smaller, appears almost to be dominated by her darkness.

In the bottom right-hand corner of this picture is a small man, sitting in a chair, holding a stick, one arm posed a little awkwardly, his head tilted downwards in apparent diffidence, a small secret smile upon his face.

It is the artist himself, a little apart, a little withdrawn, but all-observing.

The chattering connoisseurs tower above him, and strike poses meant to impress. He is not impressed, except perhaps by the infinite capacity of the human creature for pretension and wickedness.

The word "wickedness" had to occur sooner or later, for Mr. Bates is a moralist. His portraits of folly and viciousness, however, are quite as often rueful as they are savage.

AN IMAGE

In The Roue of Room 523 he presents us with three faces, each placed in a window-shaped area at some distance from the others; the remainder of the drawing is all curls and confusions of wire, an image of spiritual condition of our sophisticated outlook.

In another drawing a girl in bed waves a gay and hefty hand out at us, ignoring the anxious part-naked man on a bedroom chair engaged in pouring himself yet another little drink.

The sadness of lust is implied over and over again in these drawings. The women may be "swingers" but they are dissatisfied. Their mouths, their postures, their very shapes suggest the tension between fantasy and fact.

"Between the desire And the spasm, Between the potency and the existence . . . Falls the Shadow" as T. S. Eliot commented in his portrayal of another "dead land."

And yet, in Mr. Bates' work, as in Mr. Eliot's, gaiety keeps breaking in. It is easy to see, on some faces and in some postures, flickers of self awareness. The darkness is not quite everywhere, the imprisonment is not total.

Though Maxwell Bates has based his series upon the imagery of Europe of the twenties and thirties, he has, in doing this, merely given his commentary a little distancing to make us understand it the more clearly.

These are drawings about our own time and our own place. That quietly smiling figure in the corner of the sophisticated gathering is a figure in the corner of our own room. We must be grateful for his presence.

This is a brilliant exhibition.

New Era for Sightless Blinded Veteran's Gift

NO COMPROMISE by Marjorie Wilkins Campbell. McClelland & Stewart. 217 pp., $6.50.

Reviewed by Anne E. Olsen

"The difficult we do now. The impossible takes a little longer."

This classic statement was to become a basic premise in the philosophy of Colonel Edwin A. "Eddie" Baker, founder and architect of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Recently retired from official responsibilities, his monumental work on behalf of all people who must adjust to severe physical handicaps, particularly blindness, can now be portrayed and assessed as a great social achievement.

Marjorie Campbell brings to this work the necessary and unique background of professional knowledge in the highly specialized clinical problems of eyesight.

She is the widow of a professor of otolaryngology and is herself a graduate in optometry.

In her latest book, No Compromise, the author has muted her usual vivid prose and the enthralling immediacy of her historical subjects; she has adopted a style that is forthright in factual simplicity but with warmth and empathy more fitted to this work.

It is not the biography of a great man in the usual pattern; rather it is the story of an exceptional personality who became great through the acceptance of his own blindness and his dedication to the task of helping others similarly afflicted. Most important, he managed a satisfying private life for himself and family.

This impressive record of achievement emerges as a forthright inspiration to all people.

Blinded with terrible suddeness by a sniper's bullet early in the First World War, the popular Lieutenant Baker was the first Canadian officer admitted to St. Dunstan's, London, where he received the best medical and training care in existence at that time. This small and unique institute was the founding work of the blind Sir Arthur Pearson who became the friend and mentor of the young Canadian.

This happy circumstance served to hasten through the initial struggle of adjustment to blindness and to give direction and purpose for his life's work. From that moment a new era dawned for sightless people the world over.

When Eddie Baker returned home, he found the existing services for handicapped veterans in a very primitive state.

He became a passionate advocate for rehabilitation and training for, not only the returning veterans, but for all blind citizens of all ages.

He was, instrumental in securing welfare, training and hospitalization changes that were to have world-wide repercussions.

His energy and tact in coordinating the services of government, sighted people who wished to help and blind people who wished to help themselves, led to the incorporation in 1918 of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Through Col. Baker's inflexible belief in unity of effort and purpose, the CNIB stands as a government supported privately owned institution, affiliated with the World Council for the Welfare of the Blind, the universal organization where he presided and served for thirteen years, winning many honors and awards.

But perhaps his most dynamic achievement is his work for the prevention of blindness.

The comprehensive records and vital statistics kept by the CNIB of every blind person associated with them provide an essential basis for research into the causes of blindness.

The establishment of "eye banks" and a fund for the training of ophalmologists were among the many blessings Col. Baker helped to initiate.

Marjorie Campbell's book tells an absorbing and inspiring story. It is a book that many people have been waiting for.

Commemorative Collection Fine Achievement for OHS

THE DEFENDED BORDER: Upper Canada and the War of 1812, edited by Morris Zoslow. Macmillan Co. of Canada, 1965. 370 pp, index, maps, bibliography, illustrated. $7.50.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

The 150th anniversary of the War of 1812-14 has only just passed. To commemorate it, the Ontario Historical Society sponsored the collection of a volume of articles dealing with the war written by well-known military and naval historians, both past and present.

The result is an exceptionally good book which covers not only the various land campaigns and naval battles, but one which includes as well the effects of the war on the people and its general political impact on Canada.

In effect, this is a collection of articles which have appeared in journals ranging from Military Affairs to the "Papers and Records" of the Ontario Historical Society.

As such there is little that is new, but rather the value of the work lies in the fact that, for the first time, these articles are brought together in one volume for readers who otherwise might find the originals unobtainable.

Further, the selection and arrangement of this collection is exceptionally well done — with but very few exceptions, all are well written, interesting, and historically accurate.

One cannot help but admire the amateur and professional historians of the Ontario Historical Society who are responsible for producing this excellent volume.

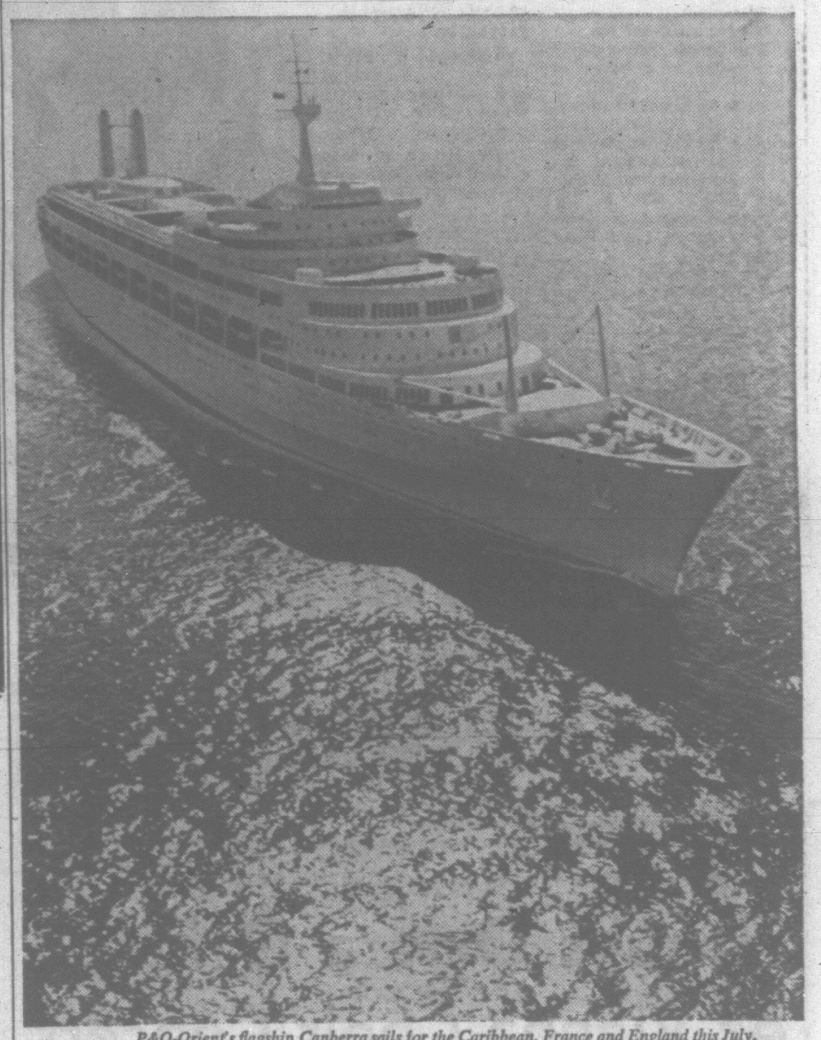

Even if comparisons are odious, the B.C. Historical Society should hang its head in shame that nothing comparable has ever been produced in this province, not even on the gold rush.

Rehearsal of Act I ups anchor as Capt. J. M. Gayfer conducts with Major Alex Cummings, stage director, appraising the action, far left. Naden bandsmen John Forbes is at the piano with Lieut. Len Goodman, who will presently take stage as Sir Joseph, turning pages. Centre, Helen Thornton wonders why she is called "Little Buttercup."

Costume fittings are conducted by Eleanor Zala, left, while Pinatore's hero, Ralph Rackstraw (Sgt. Bob Malanson), admires the results. Charming models in the modified bustle dresses are two of flock of "sisters and cousins and aunts," Rose Thomas, standing, and Laurie Greene. (All photos by Bill Halkett.)

THE SOUNDING BOARD

Naden Prepares to Launch HM(C)S Pinafore

. . . ON A TRIAL CRUISE

By AUDREY St D. JOHNSON

From the old gymnasium at Naden these winter nights, issue strange, haunting echoes.

Within there is a stirring and a vibrating of the cold air as sailors swab decks, paint superstructure, line up for inspection in their pea-jackets and broad-brimmed hats and cheer an old-style Royal Naval captain.

Ghostly visitations? No.

These are no shades caught and isolated in a bubble of time.

This is no monkey business, but simple, honest show business which has brought Department of National Defence personnel to dabble their official toes in the nonsense of Gilbert and Sullivan's version of Royal Navy hankey-pankey.

You've probably guessed. It's HMS Pinafore being given the full treatment by a preponderantly naval dockyard troupe.

KIBITZER

Rehearsals have been under way for a couple of months and the general public will see the result when the show goes on at McPherson Playhouse, Feb. 15 to 19.

In the meantime, having been invited to kibitz on proceedings I found myself thoroughly enjoying the unique situation in which Dockyard naval and civilian personnel and wives, aided by a sprinkling of army ditto, are fashioning the entire production.

I hope that Capt. Jim Gayfer, the musical director, and Major Alex Cumming, the stage director, do not object to being referred to as a "sprinkling," when actually they reign from the very top of the totem over all that goes on beneath and around. (May I be forgiven the pun.)

The undertaking offers certain whimsicalities that probably would have piqued even the thorny W. S. Gilbert.

For instance Capt. Gayfer is a doctor of music, presumably a good thing where musical direction is involved; Major Cummings is a doctor of psychiatry which is undoubtedly a good thing as anybody who has ever undertaken stage direction will emphatically agree!

LIVING IT

Overheard during the evening: A member of the cast approached Capt. Gayfer with "Sir, I have a problem . . ."

"See your psychiatrist," quipped Capt. Gayfer, waving his baton in the direction of Dr. Cummings.

Then there is Naden school instructor Lieut. Len Goodman who is seen around the dockyard and in his classroom these days with a monocle firmly screwed into his eye. He's getting accustomed to the glass.

In fact, he's getting into character so earnestly that it wouldn't surprise some people if he started signing papers "J. Porter, KCB."

And Lieut. Gerry Lavole, RN, who at odd moments may be observed to slip a patch over his eye, go into a gorilla crouch and utter growling sounds.

Programs will inform the audiences that HMCS Naden Amateur Concert Society presents Pinafore.

This society, PO Jim Clark tells you, grew out of a talent show that was staged at Naden last year and produced some remarkable results. Those responsible felt that something should be done to occupy all the youthful, exuberant talent.

What better than a musical show?

And what more apt than HMS Pinafore with its nautical naval flavor — even though a flag now foreign must be displayed.

I don't know whether any thought was given to making it HMCS Pinafore with a few minor changes such as switching Sir Joseph into Minister of Defence Joe Porter, MP, and Ralph Rackstraw into "a Canajun tar" — but I don't believe so.

Conferring on set details are design and construction crew, PO Les Pelletier, Randi Johl and Chief PO Bill Shipley who is in charge. Much of the painting has been done by Karen Cameron and Linda Scherk.

There would be certain rhythmic difficulties.

If the cast is largely inexperienced — most will admit that up to now they were simple bathroom baritones and tenors — the two fully experienced directors are doing yeoman work in making the production shipshape.

And the young lady who is singing the gentle heroine, Josephine, is making the task quite a bit easier. Eleanor Kosolofski, a registered nurse in the RCN hospital (and soon to make a real-life naval marriage) had training and performance experience at an early age.

UNTRAINED SINGER

Quite untrained, but with a fine natural tenor, Sgt. Bob Melanson of the RCA Medical Corps sings the socialistically-minded hero, Ralph.

The Captain, who struts superbly in his genuine period uniform, is PO Les Pelletier; Bos'n, PO David Fitzgerald of the Fleet School, and the Carpenter, Lt.-Cmdr. Bert Shirley.

Helen Thornton, a service wife, sings Buttercup and Sheila Allard of Veterans' Hospital staff, takes the part of Hebe, the chief cousin.

The Naden Society has been equally fortunate in assembling a large chorus as well as back-stage and front-of-house personnel.

Scenery has been constructed under direction of Chief PO Bill Shipley with Linda Scherk, Karen Cameron, Randi Johl and PO Les Pelletier assisting.

Another service wife, Evelyn Zala, is wardrobe mistress, assisted by Barbara Logie, Ruby Turner and Gwen Simpson.

First horn from HMCS Naden Band, John Forbes, has turned to the piano keyboard as rehearsal accompanist, but a 21-piece orchestra will accompany the five performances.

All the firepieces used are genuine antiques, PO Clark pointed out as he gave me a conducted tour of the production.

"We have had all the help we required in research and other matters from people at the Maritime Museum," he commented, adding that part of the funds resulting from the production are to go to the Museum.

SHADES OF PAST

Later, as "Refrain, audacious tar," echoed among the rafters, as the huge antique pistol glinted wickedly from Ralph Rackstraw's hand and the Captain paced in indignation in his gold-laced, old-style uniform, I began to wonder,

Weren't the shades of another day present after all?

There was a time when Royal Naval ships stood in the Roads and ships' concert parties presented similar entertainments for the pleasure of personnel and public and no doubt with much the same aim as that expressed in the Naden Amateur Concert Society's constitution:

Quoted to me by memory, it goes something like this: It is the intention . . . "to foster and develop talent within the personnel and command for their entertainment and that of the people of Greater Victoria."

NORTH BREEZES

Messrs. Toone, Bryant, Cox and Curtis are urging "Why wait for spring—do it now."

This approach might be a necessity in the frozen East—but have you been out the last couple of Sundays?

The birds are singing, the forsythia buds are quivering, peonies are stretching their red fingers out of the ground, the pussy willows are purring and the daffs have fixed bayonets.

Tonight it will still be light at almost 5:30. We might be snowed upon before this gets into print, but there's hardly a job that couldn't be done right now. In fact, we're going to wash the car—right after we have a little nap.

IMPERIAL congratulations to new Goodwill director Robert Dudley; new director of Canadian Mental Health Association Mrs. Joan Dumka; new Saanich police commissioner J. H. McClinton and tour drivers touring East for tourists, John Bamford and Wayne McArthur.

Your host,
Nick North

Strauss Opera Offered At Vienna Choir Concert

A feature of concerts by the Vienna Choir Boys is the fully costumed performance of a short operetta.

On their program at the Royal Theatre, Jan. 31, the second part of the three-part concert will be devoted to presentation of Tales from Old Vienna, a one-act comic opera based on motifs by Johann Strauss.

Part One will consist of liturgical music including compositions by Palestrina, Bach and Bruckner. In Part Three the world-famous ensemble will sing folk songs of many nations, among them Germany's Heidenroslein, England's Greensleeves, Japan's Sakura, Australia's Waltzing Matilda, and America's Oh Susanna.

Concluding item will be The Beautiful Blue Danube.

Tickets are available at Kent's, Fort Street. Curtain time is 8:30.

New Stars Sparkle In Spring Thaw Sky

New faces as well as new material will sparkle from the McPherson Playhouse stage next week, as Spring Thaw '66 premiers Tuesday night before starting on its annual cross-country tour.

Spring Thaw veterans who will be on hand are Marylyn Stuart, Jack Duffy, Dean Regan and Peter Mews.

Wide-eyed Miss Stuart, nimble-footed Regan and whimsical Mr. Duffy are favorites not only with Spring Thaw addicts but to Canadian televiewers.

Alan Lund is still in the saddle as director.

Among the newcomers, is one New Canadian. Robina Beard came from her native Australia only two months ago. Behind her she trailed a reputation in Sydney and Melbourne as a top ranking performer in musicals, revue and television.

An associate of Wayne and Shuster and also a former Australian, Bob Ainslie is a singer-dancer who has followed his professional career in London before coming to Canada.

Betty Hader, a Manitoba girl, toured the United States with the national company of The Unsinkable Molly Brown and appeared in the Tom Kneebone musical, Evelyn, at the Crest Theatre in recent months.

On the male side of the cast, there is John Rutter, who has a way with all kinds of songs, from folk to rhythm and blues.

Harrah's Club at Lake Tahoe and the Fremont in Las Vegas have featured him and he has been singer, actor and songwriter for CBC-TV.

Sets for Spring Thaw '66 have been designed by Pierre Gelinas. The son of famed Gratien Gelinas, Pierre has foregone the last part of his final year as a design student at the National Theatre School in order to take on the Spring Thaw assignment.

The traditional Canadian revue will play two nights at the McPherson, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is presented under auspices of Famous Artists.

Gleason to Drop Series

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Comedian Jackie Gleason, announcing he will not have a regular television show next year, says he has "done to death" his current series and wants time off to develop new ideas. Gleason has been off television only one season since 1952.

'WOOLF' A SHATTERING PLAY

A New Approach to the Arts at Simon Fraser

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

"We want to open their minds . . . closed minds make people dangerous and boring."

This arresting statement was made by Michael Bawtree, who is in charge of drama at Simon Fraser University.

I had gone to look over this fabulous new university, and was shown around the impressive 520-seat theatre where the walls and ceiling move at the touch of a button.

It is part of the Centre of Communications, which is another name for the arts, through which, after all, man communicates with man.

'THE LAW IS AN ASS', says an often-used quote, and in his play, One Way Pendulum, N. F. Simpson makes law one of the targets for his acerbic wit. This comedy of the absurb is Victoria Theatre Guild's bid for Dominion Drama Festival entry. It will open at Langham Court Theatre Jan. 29. In this scene are, left to right, Dougal Fraser, John Drean and Robert Lutes. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

Mr. Bawtree is an immensely tolerant and wise young man. He is not only a graduate of Oxford University, but also an actor, television personality, writer, scholar and assistant at Stratford, Ontario. He has had the exciting job of turning "three sentences in a brochure" into a university department.

Faculty-student divisions are out of date, he says. Therefore he has set up a new type of university theatre company in which everyone is equal, and it is run as a democracy.

He cited two members of the faculty who are working in the costume and carpentry divisions under student supervisors.

Their first play, A Man for All Seasons (for which they borrowed the props from our University of Victoria), was directed by a student, albeit an experienced one — Tom Kerr, holder of a Dominion Drama Festival Award.

Also at the Centre of Communications is Canada's foremost electronic composer, Murray Schafer, whom Mr. Bawtree calls "one of the most brilliant minds on campus."

Mr. Schafer believes that in 10 years there will be Sunday composers, just as now there are Sunday painters.

Apparently he loves to shock his students, with the idea of releasing their originality.

For example he handed out to his class blank pieces of paper. The students began slavishly to copy down something he had written on the blackboard. He soon inquired what they thought they were doing. This was not the idea at all. The object was to take the piece of paper and make a musical instrument out of it!

Another day he gave them the word "credo" and told them to go home and set it to music.

All this is enormously stimulating to the students. Many of those who are most creative are mature people who have given up good incomes and jobs for the opportunity to acquire just this sort of vision that SFU is offering.

As Mr. Bawtree says, they are getting away from their natural fear of an object and into doing something with it.

Whatever their bent, whether writing plays or music, all concerned agree that the superb architecture of SFU, modelled as it is on the Greek Acropolis and the Roman Forum, is an inspiration in every phase of their endeavors.

★ ★ ★

I realize they're fighting words, but since I don't expect that Albee's Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? will ever be produced in Victoria, I went on purpose to Vancouver to see the Arts Club Production directed by John Brockingham.

This shattering play is strong meat. Two university professors and their wives spend the night drinking, talking and sleeping together.

It is shocking not only from the sex point of view, and that things are said and done that have not been said and done before on stage.

But more important it is mentally shocking with a Freudian sub-current and clarity of vision that sweeps aside all artifice and hits below the belt.

It is summed up by one of the four characters . . . "We all peel labels, and when you get through . . . and down to bone . . . there's something inside the bone."

The Vancouver production was superbly done, and far exceeded my expectation. Since it was theatre in the round, it can't have been easy, with the first row of the audience so close that their chairs were on the edge of the carpet which marked the "set."

Victoria's Blain Fairman played the difficult part of the younger man, Nick.

I was told the actors preferred the beginning-of-the-week audiences, who were sophisticated and intellectual enough to appreciate the subtleties to Virginia Woolf.

Weekend audiences, who tended to be more prudish, spoiled with their embarrassed titters the terrific emotional impact of the play.

'ONE OF THE GREATEST'

Former Victorian Returning for Recital

MALCOLM HAMILTON
. . . recording artist

A native son of Victoria who has become a distinguished artist in the United States, will visit the city Feb. 1 in the course of a recital tour.

The performance of Malcolm Hamilton, harpsichordist, at McPherson Playhouse will be under the auspices of Victoria Musical Art Society.

Mr. Hamilton is now completing his doctorate at the University of Southern California, but his phenomenally busy life also includes recitals and other concert engagements as well as recording sessions.

Aside from the complete Bach "Well-Tempered Clavier," recorded previously for Everest of Hollywood, during the recent Christmas season, Mr. Hamilton fulfilled a second recording contract, this time the complete Handel sonatas for violin and harpsichord in collaboration with noted violinist Henri Temianka.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton of Victoria, the gifted artist was educated at Victoria High School and Victoria College and studied piano with Marjorie Tebo, Stanley Shale, Mary Wood and Mary Munn.

Madame Alice Ehlers, world-renowned harpsichordist, with whom Mr. Hamilton frequently forms a unique (on this continent) duo harpsichord team, has said that the former Victorian is already "one of today's greatest living harpsichordists."

Czech Folk Dancers Offer Vivid Spectacle

The long and beautiful tradition of folk art of the people of Czechoslovakia is a permanent source of inspiration for their artists.

Famous poets, painters and musicians emanated from this tradition as well as the founders of Czech music — Bedrich Smetana, Antonin Dvorak, Leos Janacek and others.

Love of this music and the songs and dances that are traditional among their people, inspired the formation of the Czechoslovakia State Folk Dance Troupe.

The ensemble was founded in the autumn of 1948. Poets, choreographers, composers and other artists have created works based on the contemporary life of the people, especially for the troupe.

Since its first performance the ensemble has given more than 2,000 performances before more than 3,000,000 spectators at home and abroad.

On Wednesday next, the Czechoslovakia State Folk Dance Troupe with their singers and instrumentalists, will make a single appearance at Memorial Arena in company with the Harlem Globetrotters' sensational show basketball team.

Featured artist with the troupe is Eva Bosakova, world champion gymnast.

This petite and charming young athlete, in addition to her three world's championships, silver medal at Melbourne and gold at Rome in Olympic competition, was nine times champion of Czechoslovakia, winner of six golden medals in world youth festivals and gathered 244 medals participating in international events in 36 countries.

Spirited folk dance of Czechoslovakia is caught in mid-swirl. Troupe is to appear at Arena.

Othello Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the Warner Brothers motion picture presentation of the British National Theatre production of Shakespeare's Othello, starring Sir Laurence Olivier, will go on sale Monday at Odeon Theatre.

The box office is open between 12 noon and 9 p.m. daily.

Two matinee and two evening performances will be given on Feb. 2 and 3, starting at 2 and 8 p.m.

There will be no reservations but each ticket holder will be guaranteed a seat.

Stuart Burge directed Othello. Frank Finlay plays the evil Iago and Maggie Smith the ill-starred Desdemona.

Astor Hotel Goes

NEW YORK (AP)—When the last guest checks out at the end of the year the Astor Hotel will close down after 62 years and be pulled down to make way for a 40-storey office building.

The hotel, one of Times Square's last ties with its elegant past, was sold Friday to Sam Minskoff and Sons for about $10,500,000.

UNKNOWNS SIGNED

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Producer Ross Hunter has signed four unknowns for the lead roles in "The Pad": Brian Bedford, Julie Sommars, James Farentinlo and Edy Williams, none of whom has played in films before.

VETERAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Green will serve for the eighth time as music director and conductor for the Oscar show to be beamed April 19.

Dramatic Strike Hits Finish Line

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Labor Reporter

Some of the most dramatic months in the B.C. labor movement ended Friday with final settlement in the oil industry dispute.

From small beginnings, the dispute flared almost to an industry-wide strike in the province to be backed up by a 48-hour general strike called by the B.C. Federation of Labour.

Where did it all start?

From a bulging file marked "oil strike" came a year-old news release from the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union.

It was dated Feb. 16, 1965, just when negotiations began with the oil companies.

One of the key paragraphs in the release said:

"It is the union's contention that a man does in fact acquire a property right in his job and the industry has a responsibility to see that he maintains his employment in the industry."

This is what the oil workers sought in a national bargaining program:

- Wage increase of 40 cents an hour;
- Increased annual vacations, to five weeks after 20 years;
- Guaranteed employment for permanent workers;
- Eighteen months notice of technological change;
- Six months notice for negotiations of these changes;
- Company-sponsored training for employees affected by these changes;
- Severance pay at the rate of one year's pay for each five year's employment.

Some of these points were scaled down as conciliation failed, successful strike votes were held and the strike against British-American Oil began in September.

By November, as the statutory three-month period for striking began to run out, the union announced it would extend the strike to all oil companies.

Such an industry-wide strike, while not stopping all oil supplies, would have resulted in many other unions refusing to handle strike-bound products.

The B.C. Federation of Labor, with 110,000 members in affiliated unions, called for a 48-hour work stoppage. It never referred to this as a general strike.

HOT PRODUCTS

The federation argued that uncontrolled observance of not handling hot products would have produced chaos whereas a regulated 48-hour shutdown would avoid this.

The call for a work stoppage received wide support, especially from forest industry unions representing nearly 50,000 men.

The unaffiliated Teamsters Union said it wouldn't participate "in any illegal work stoppage" but would continue to observe the oil workers' picket lines and not "haul, handle or use" strike-bound products.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett provided a dramatic last-minute settlement by flying to Vancouver and participating in final talks between both sides.

With 12 hours left to strike deadlines, the provincial government announced a settlement proposal which was quickly accepted by the union. The general strike was called off. A few hours later oil companies accepted the same proposal.

This is what it provided:

- Union - management committees on automation;
- Six months' notice of technological change;
- Company-government participation in employee training and retraining;
- Severance pay equal to one week's pay for each year of service;
- Wage increase of 35 cents over two years.

Spokesmen for labor called the settlement "a major breakthrough" in the field of automation and a victory for the oil workers.

The great oil industry dispute ended, with the exception of the marketing division of B-A where the strike continued until Friday in a haggle over seniority changes proposed by the company.

The matter was shelved by referring it to a committee with the old seniority system continuing in the meantime.

U.K., CANADA TRADE GAP STUDIED

BILLERICAY, England (UPI)—Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley today urged British exporters to reverse the trend of declining trade with Canada as part of a drive to boost trade with the British Commonwealth as a whole.

He said Britain's visible trade with Canada in 1964 was 259 million pounds ($725.2 million), more than one-fifth of the total deficit with all countries.

British exports to Canada dropped in the past five years although Canada during that time increased her imports by more than 400 million pounds ($1,120 million).

CPR Flays Revised Quotas

WINNIPEG (CP)—Who is to be blamed for delays in Prairie grain movements? There were contradictory statements Friday from the Canadian Pacific Railway and the port of Vancouver.

CPR President R. A. Emerson told a press conference here grain shipments by the CPR are running well ahead of record shipping during the 1963-64 crop year.

But, he added, targets set by the Canadian wheat board are not being met. The board's objective for the CPR this year was 190,000 cars but this figure was revised upwards "without us being party to it." The new figure, up 33 per cent to the Lakehead, was "unrealistic."

Meanwhile, the port of Vancouver sent a telegram to Finance Minister Sharp Friday refusing to accept blame for delays in grain shipments.

The Vancouver Merchants Exchange, representing all port interests, said the fault clearly lies with the railways.

Exchange President W. A. Sankey also denied a statement made by Mr. Emerson that the railways now deliver more grain than Vancouver terminals can handle.

The CPR president said West Coast movements were held up in the early stages because of a grain handlers' strike but now the railway had 5,064 cars under load or in transit to terminals Thursday night—3,000 en route to Vancouver and the balance to the Lakehead.

'MET TARGET ONCE'

However, Mr. Sankey said in a Vancouver interview the railways' "target has only been met one week in the whole darn year. The fact is they were 100 cars short even today."

He said the delivery target set by the wheat board for the crop year which started Aug. 1, 1965, was about 550 boxcars of grain a day at Vancouver.

"Because they have fallen behind, the target now is about 600 a day. The railways have been averaging about 388 a day."

Mr. Sankey's telegram also took issue with statements made in Ottawa Thursday night by Finance Minister Sharp and by CPR Vice-President Ian Sinclair who both said the problem in export of grain out of Vancouver lay with inadequate shipping facilities, not with rail deliveries.

The telegram pointed out that Vancouver can handle 25,000,000 bushels a month but last month's total handling amounted to only 14,800,000 bushels for Vancouver ports and 17,500,000 for all 11 B.C. ports.

Vancouver ports need about 15,000,000 bushels of grain on hand for efficient operation, according to officials, but Friday only 10,400,000 bushels were on hand, including only 4,600,000 bushels of wheat.

D. R. McRae, manager of the United Grain Growers terminal in Vancouver said UGG loading has been 50 per cent of capacity since mid-November and other elevators have "been suffering to about the same extent."

'NOT ENOUGH CARS'

A. T. Baker, general manager of Alberta Wheat Pool, said in Vancouver "there has been an almost continuous shortage of cars and a maximum terminal operation has been possible on only a few days."

During the Winnipeg press conference, Mr. Emerson maintained that the railways will be able to meet Canada's record export commitments unless shipping is hampered by unforeseen circumstances.

He said the press conference was called to answer allegations made last week by Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene while on a tour of Western Canada.

SPECULATIVE FRENZY centred on Pyramid mines sent the Vancouver Stock Exchange soaring in November to more than triple the exchange's average monthly volume. November's total was 73,106,603 shares. Other trading ranged from 25,047,107 in January to a summer low of 9,560,697 in July. (CP Newsmap.)

Firm Rejects IWA Challenge

VANCOUVER (CP) — The vice-president of a forest products company firmly rejected a challenge by the International Woodworkers to make public its financial reports.

The union had asked L. L. G. Bentley of Canadian Forest Products to show CFP's financial statement to back his contention that earnings have declined and there is no justification for wage increases this year.

Asked whether he would accept the union challenge, Mr Bentley replied: "Certainly not."

Exchange Struck

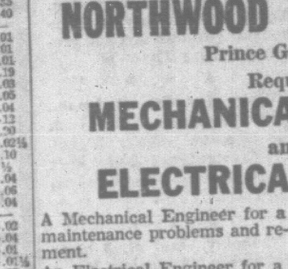

PARIS (Reuters) — Dealings in the Bourse, the Paris stock exchange, were at a standstill Friday—the monthly settlement day—because of a one-day strike by stockbrokers and clerks. A statement issued by the clerk's trade unions only 90 minutes before opening time said the strike would serve as a warning of further stoppages. The strike is for higher pay.

PULP MEN EYE PACT

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Negotiators settled on a contract Friday for 300 men employed at the Celgar pulp plant of Columbia Celulose Co. Ltd.

An eight-month contract retroactive to Nov. 1, 1965, will be recommended to the membership of Local 1, Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada (Ind.).

APPOINTMENT MARATHON REALTY

TOM McKENNA

Mr. J. R. W. Sykes, Assistant General Manager of Marathon Realty Company Limited, announces the appointment of Tom McKenna as Area Manager, with headquarters in Vancouver and responsibility for the Company's operations in British Columbia. Mr. McKenna succeeds Mr. A. F. Joplin.

Marathon Realty, a national real estate, investment and development firm with Head Office in Calgary, Alberta, is a member of the Canadian Pacific family of companies. A major development program in British Columbia is under way, with completion of a million-dollar downtown redevelopment in Trail, B.C., and the recent announcement of construction of a multi-million dollar shopping centre in downtown Nanaimo.

Advertising Record Set by Paper

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Times is the first newspaper in the United States to publish more than 100,000,000 lines of advertising in one year, Robert D. Nelson, vice-president and general manager, said Friday.

He said media records gave The Times' total in 1965 as 101,414,589 lines. This was 32,875,372 lines more than the runner-up New York Times which was affected by a strike for 24 days during the year.

Nelson said the toal was an increase of 8,396,890 lines over 1964.

Visiting Bureau Ends in Black

Victoria Visitors Bureau, for the first time in history, finished 1965 in the black. A financial report presented Friday afternoon at a directors meeting showed a balance as of Dec. 31 of $11,504.

But, said M. E. Heppell, the picture isn't quite as rosy as first appears.

"We have a leaking roof which will have to be replaced and there's water in the oil tank that feeds the furnace," he said. "Both will be fairly costly jobs to correct."

After approving the financial statement the directors voted in favor of a suggestion by Mayor A. W. Toone that city council appoint a convention committee with additional members from the Chamber of Commerce and the Visitors Bureau.

BIG ENOUGH

Les Parkinson, manager of the Empress, broached the subject saying that Victoria was now big enough to employ a full-time convention manager.

He would, said Mr. Parkinson, be in charge of organizing conventions for Victoria "as far as six years ahead."

Mr. Parkinson pointed out that Penticton in the Okanagan already had a convention centre and a full-time convention manager.

"We must move soon or we shall be left behind," he said.

Mayor Toone noted that the city already had under study the possibility of a convention centre though nothing specific had been decided.

ALL ASPECTS

The committee to be formed by the mayor will discuss all aspects of the convention centre program and the feasibility of hiring a manager.

Ron Worley, assistant manager of B.C. Ferries, reported that a recent publicity trip to California had been an outstanding success.

In addition to the goodwill created, Mr. Worley said that Bob Hope had agreed to tape several advertising messages for Vancouver Island for general distribution.

The committee decided to study the possibility of extending a Victoria "feature of the month" now confined to Christmas.

YULE PROGRAM

Mayor Toone said the Christmas festivities and the annual Empress Golf Turnament were so successful that he thought they could be carried on throughout the year.

The directors agreed and will set up a sub-committee to study the idea concentrating at first on the winter months when tourism is light.

CN Appointment

on our economic HIGH SEAS, invest in mortgages or a mortgage company. In this way the chance of loss is far less than most other investments. A mortgage represents only PART of the VALUE of the security, and if the value were to come down for any reason the reduction would be unlikely to be sufficient to effect a loss on the well-placed mortgage investment.

For example, if a $10,000 property with a $5,000 Mortgage upon it were to suddenly drop to $6,000, no loss would be inflicted on the mortgage.

Naturally nothing is 100% safe, but the Mortgage field offers the least amount of risk to the invested dollar.

Merchants Win Praise

Merchants on the 700 Block, Yates Street, came in for high praise from Ald. Hugh Stephen at Thursday's meeting of Victoria city council.

Speaking on a proposal that council appeal to the provincial government to amend legislation to permit a canopy to be erected on the north side of Yates as a local improvement, Ald. Stephen said council should do all in its power to assist the merchants.

If the changes in legislation are agreed to, the city will erect the canopy and charge the cost to the merchants as a local improvement.

Subsequent maintenance of the canopy would be the responsibility of the merchants on the block.

ISLAND COPPER MINE STARTS TO PRODUCE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The latest joint venture of Japanese and Canadian capital, a Vancouver Island copper mine, has started producing 220 tons of concentrate a day.

A Japanese ship will arrive next week to take the first 2,000 tons of concentrates to Japan for smelting.

J. R. Billingsley, general manager of the Yreka mine, said production will soon jump to 250 to 300 tons a day at the mine in the Quatsino Sound area.

Tour Group's Future To Get Vote Test

The thorny problem of who should run the Victoria Visitors Bureau got tossed to yet another committee Thursday when directors met to decide the bureau's fate.

EDGELOW
. . . business tax

Most of the difficulties wtih the bureau stem from financing.

In the past Chamber of Commerce members have expressed the opinion that the bureau should be answerable to some authority.

But in recent studies the chamber was unable to come up with a clear cut decision as to whether it should seek to take the bureau under its wing or whether it should continue to operate separately.

POLL STUDIED

Richard Bower, president of the chamber, told directors of the bureau Friday while complete studies of the problem were not completed the chamber was in favor of asking all bureau members whether they would like to become part of the chamber.

"We recommend that all bureau members be polled to see how they feel about becoming a section of the chamber," he said.

Ron Worley, assistant manager of the B.C. Ferry Authority, said he was hesitant about the chamber taking over.

"They might make a worse mess than it is now," he said.

Mr. Bower said the chamber was not "trying to twist anyone's arm" but just seeking an expression of opinion.

Pat Frumento, manager of Black Ball Ferries, suggested that members of both organizations be polled. His suggestion was approved.

ONLY ANSWER

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he felt the only solution to the bureau's financial ills would come from an increase in the business tax.

"That's where this entire business started," he said. "The city asked the chamber to consider recommending an increase in the business tax slightly. Had this been agreed to the bureau would be getting $100,000 a year instead of the $50,000 it now gets."

The chamber did discuss the city's proposal but rejected it on the grounds that it was not up to the chamber to recommend tax increases.

IWA Warned Against More Wage Boosts

VANCOUVER (CP) — An announcement of wage increases for 5,000 skilled lumber workers was followed this week by an industry statement that no further increases need be expected this year.

A contract between the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) and the forest industry expires in June.

The IWA and Forest Industrial Relations — which represents management—announced the wage increases, which range from 10 to 25 cents an hour for skilled categories, effective Jan. 1, 1966.

L. L. G. Bentley, vice-president of Canadian Forest Products Ltd. and president of Seaboard Lumber Sales Ltd., said the same day in his annual Seaboard report:

"There is no economic justification as far as industry goes for a raise this year.

"I am very worried that this situation is not understood by the general public and our own employees, and this misunderstanding will make the coming wage negotiations very difficult indeed."

EXCHANGES NAME CHIEF

MONTREAL (UPI)—Charles B. Neapole, vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada, this week was elected president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Neapole, 60, succeeds George Hees, former federal trade and commerce minister, who has returned to politics.

New Terms Advocated

TRAIL (CP)—A proposal to "reopen" all existing contracts and get major wage increases was approved Thursday at the closing session of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union (Ind.) convention.

The plan was part of a series of resolutions designed to offset the effects of automation and technological advances.

Delegates agreed to instruct local officers across Canada to reopen contracts still in force so that "major adjustments," particularly concerning wages, could be made.

Vancouver Hits Magic Number

VANCOUVER (CP)—The figure 300,000,000 became a magic one for the booming Vancouver Stock Exchange last year.

The exchange announced Thursday for the first time the number of shares traded exceeded 300,000,000 and for the first time their value passed the same mark.

The volume for the 12-month period was 300,502,360 with a value of $302,201,820.

In 1964 the figures were 263,289,883 and $219,784,049.

Split Ruled Out In Steelworker, CLC Quarrel

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Differences between the Canadian Labor Congress and the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) are not expected to result in a split between the two bodies, CLC President Claude Jodoin said Friday.

"I do not foresee that at all," he said in an interview.

Mr. Jodoin was asked to comment on CLC sanctions clamped on the Steelworkers for defying a congress directive to halt raids against the International Molders and Allied Workers Union (CLC) at Trois Rivieres.

"Eventually, we will find a solution within our constitution to settle amicably that situation," he said. "I am always an optimist."

First-stage sanctions were imposed on the 140,000-member Steelworkers following its displacement of Molders as bargaining agents for 500 workers at a Trois Rivieres plant. A complaint filed by the Molders set in motion machinery for barring raiding between CLC affiliates.

WILL HELP MOLDERS

The initial sanctions suspend the Steelworkers' right to vote in the CLC executive council of jurisdictional matters, prohibit other CLC unions from supporting the raid and offer aid to the offenced union in regaining its local.

Further sanctions could lead to the expulsion of the Steelworkers from the congress.

"I think that the Steelworkers, as such, have accepted the sanctions," Mr. Jodoin said. "We have had no protest on the constitutional steps that were taken."

The congress president refused to discuss possible expulsion. "I do not see that at all." He said the dispute was strictly a constitutional matter which was brought into the open through an "indiscretion" by an individual within the congress, he said.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

That was a refreshing breeze blown over Canada this week by Del Wilson.

Let's do something for Canada, he said. Let's take the Canadian national hockey team away from the amateurs. Let the pros run it. That's their business.

Nobody can say Mr. Wilson is a do-nothing Canadian. You ever hear Clarence Campbell offer to do something for the Canadian national hockey team, like take it over? You ever hear Clarence speak out for the flag? The Queen? Motherhood?

No, sir. What you hear Campbell speak out for is expansion. He wants more people in more places to see his product. Like Lever Bros. or American Tobacco or General Motors, Mr. Campbell just wants to expose his goods.

The money? You mean, the millions of dollars expansion will bring? Well, shucks, Clarence says—if we have to take it, if it's pressed on us, well, alright, then, we'll just have to take it, even if our hands get soiled.

Wearer Of Three Different Hats

But back to Mr. Wilson. Interesting chap. Wears three hats. Manager of Regina Pats. Chief western scout for Montreal Canadiens. Director of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League. Busy? Hardly has time to drive his T-bird with stereo tape recorder to the bank.

This week, Wilson cleared his throat and all sorts of things popped out. First he rebutted charges by national team coach Jack McLeod that he and Jack Shupe of Weyburn had "tampered or pestered" two players.

The players were Fran Huck and Maurice Mott, distinguished members of the national team.

Ho, ho, or words to that effect, uttered Mr. Wilson. "Neither (Father David) Bauer or McLeod ever came to see me before they drafted Huck."

Wilson went on to say that he indeed asked Huck to play five games for Regina, fulfilling a requirement that would make him eligible for playoffs.

When Huck replied nix, nein and no thanks, Wilson naturally raced his motor and went careening down the sawdust trail. Mott's identical retort to Shupe similarly upset his metabolism.

Huck Made First Pass at Nationals

Last November when Canada combed Russia here, Huck was asked what pressures had induced him to reject a bundle of brocolli from Montreal/Regina for the national team.

"None," he said. "They (Fr. Bauer and McLeod) didn't ask me. I asked them if I could play for Canada."

A source close to a source says a guardian-relative-lawyer strongly urged Huck to stay at university. Mott also has academic aspirations.

Father Bauer doesn't deny Wilson and Shupe their rights to ask the boys to play. "I would not like to think," Fr. Bauer says, "that we would be so firm nobody could talk to them."

In Edmonton, after the great conversation, Fr. Bauer asked Huck what he intended to do.

"If I play for Regina, Father," Huck said, "there's no possibility of my passing in school. That's my answer." Mott asked McLeod to relay his reply, in the same vein, to Shupe at Weyburn.

What Wilson and Shupe were hollering over seems not so much a question of having "their" boys eligible, but putting a fresh bloom on their cash registers.

Signature Good Enough For CAHA

True, the SJHL rules call for a player to appear in five games for playoff eligibility. But the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has no such legislation. According to the CAHA, it's enough for Regina and Weyburn to sign the players. That means Huck and Mott can rejoin their teams after the world championship in March.

But this is January and in Regina brass monkeys aren't the only things in the deep freeze. Without Huck Regina is 9,000 banana peels in the hole. Huck draws people like blondes attract boys. Mr. Wilson's motives seem ultra-clear.

When he speaks of throwing the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association over the side and letting the pros handle the national team, his long-range view also comes through loud and clear.

Monopoly is a dirty word, one the NHL would never think of using. But by controlling the national team, the pros would literally tie up every red-blooded Canadian hockey player from the cradle to the grave.

Not too many years ago in Toronto, the pros broke the city up in divisions, more than you find in Chinese arithmetic.

If a boy played for St. Mikes, he was automatically Toronto property. New York Rangers had irrevocable rights to Leaside youths. Montreal Canadiens were the barons of Downsview. Boston and Chicago were feudal lords in other districts.

St. Michael's withdrew when people asked, and they asked themselves, "Are you a farm club for a professional team or an institution of learning?"

Who Remembers Mickey McDowell?

As long as there is a national team outside the tentacles of the NHL, there may be an opportunity to avoid a repeat of the Mickey McDowell case.

McDowell was encouraged to leave his Vernon home when he was 14. He played for Regina but he was not NHL calibre. By the time he was discarded he was 24. Now he's at University of B.C. attempting to get the education he could have had long ago.

The national team could be a symbol for boys wanting to play hockey.

As constituted it offers a boy freedom of choice.

The NHL doesn't want a boy. It wants all the boys because winning is box office and box office is everything.

Losing a game in world or Olympic competition doesn't mean the collapse of the world. Boys won't grow into men without dropping a few battles along the way. You learn through adversity, not success.

Chances are the Fran Hucks will find their way to the NHL.

The ones to worry about are those who won't.

There ought to be a place for them.

What's Your Decision, Gentlemen?

Visiting Victoria Friday on tour to decide if this city or Fairbanks, Alaska, will host Babe Ruth baseball's 1967 world series, Richard W. Case (left) of Trenton, N.J., and James J. Gantt of Ocala, Fla., conferred with Mayor Alfred Toone on plans for Royal Athletic Park, possible site of series. Visitors said Victoria had "excellent chance."

LIGHTS HOLD KEY . . . . . FOR RUTH BID

City's Hopes in Dark

"To light or not to light . . ."

That is the question that holds the key to Victoria's chances of making a successful bid for the 1967 Babe Ruth "World Series" baseball tournament.

Officials of Babe Ruth, Inc., who arrived in Victoria Friday, said today Victoria's chances "are excellent . . . if park facilities are up to standard."

Facilities include lighting, and that's where the darkness falls. The city's plans for rebuilding Royal Athletic Park originally included lighting, at a cost of $100,000. Recently, however, the lights were eliminated from plans as a budget-trimming manoeuvre.

Mayor Alf Toone, who met visiting Ruth executives Dick Case and Jervey Gantt, does not hold much hope for light on the problem.

Said the mayor: "As far as I know, there are not sufficient funds to provide lights at the same time stay within the limits of available funds."

He added, however, he plans to meet again with a firm of consultants, probably Monday, to see if they can come up with another estimate other than the original one offered the city.

Case declared the bid to host the 1967 tournament is a two-way fight between Victoria and Fairbanks, Alaska.

"Presentations of both cities will be voted upon by members of our international executive. A decision should be reached by Feb. 15."

Big Stars of Fairways Chase Two Little Guys

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) Golf's big stars chased a couple of lesser lights today and grappled with the monster Pebble Beach course in the third round of Bing Crosby's $104,500 tournament.

Don Massengale, 28, of Jacksboro, Tex., surprised even himself by slipping into the midway lead with a 70-67—137, followed by Bert Yancey at 73-66—139.

Menacing in third place was Arnold Palmer, whose early charge was repulsed on the final holes Friday as he carded his second straight 70 for 140. He was five under par through 11 holes but lost four of those strokes.

TONY LEMA FOURTH

Tony Lema and first-round leader Al Geiberger were tied for fourth at 142. Lema turned in a 72 for his second round, going two over par on the final hole, while Geiberger had 74 to go with his opening 68.

George Knudson of Toronto added a 70 for a halfway total of 144. Al Balding of Toronto came in at 77-70—147, 10 strokes ahead of Jerry Magee of Toronto, while Stan Leonard of Vancouver faded to 159 with a second-round 82.

Billy Martindale and his amateur partner, Robert Roos of San Francisco, led the pro-am division after the second round with a best-ball 125. In a four-way tie for second at 126 was the team of Al Besselink and Los Angeles Dodger baseball pitcher Don Drysdale.

CANADIANS WELL BACK

The southpaw ace of the Dodgers, Sandy Koufax, and partner Ken Still were in a three-way tie at 127.

Another 11 strokes back was the top Canadian amateur, Wilder Ripley of Calgary, with his professional partner, Dick Crawford.

The Vancouver partnership of amateur Jack Sim and Leonard had a halfway total of 141. John G. Randall of Vancouver and Sacramento pro John Zontek were at 148 and Max Bell of Calgary and American Jon Gustin had 149.

Tripleheader Carded At Agricultural Hall

Saanichton squads will be hosts in all three portions of a minor basketball tripleheader at the Agricultural Hall tonight.

Saanichton's pre-midget girls will play First United at 7, the pre-midget boys will face Esquimalt at 7:45 and the midget girls will meet Sooke in the finale at 8:30.

LATE TIMER PUTS BILL BACK INTO 12TH PLACE

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)—A sharp assault on the clock was staged at the Riverside Raceway Friday with Yale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., coming up with the best qualifying time for Sunday's $75,000 race.

Yarborough, driving a 1966 Ford around the 2.7-mile circuit, made the distance in 1:32.96, or an average speed of 104.56 miles per hour.

Yarborough's rapid turn, made only 20 minutes before the day's qualifying runs ended, bumped Billy Foster of Victoria out of the 11th-place berth. Foster, driving a 1965 Dodge, set a record of 103.86 m.p.h. earlier.

A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., pushed his new Ford around the course at 103.33 m.p.h. to qualify for the 13th place.

Bone Chip Must Go, Mickey Tells Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle told New York Yankee officials Friday he has a bone chip in the joint of his right shoulder and will have to undergo surgery next Tuesday.

Mantle telephoned Yankee general manager Ralph Houk from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where he has been this week for tests on the previously mysterious ailment.

The star baseball outfielder told Houk he will enter the hospital at the clinic sometime Monday, and the operation will take place Tuesday morning.

Mantle said he hopes to be ready to play when spring training starts March 1. That would give him five weeks in which to recover.

Mantle decided to go to Mayo Clinic after doctors in New York and Dallas, Tex., where he lives in the off-season, could find no reason for the ailment in his right shoulder. X-rays last season and in the last few months showed nothing wrong.

The 34-year-old outfielder, plagued with injuries throughout his 15-year career, originally hurt the shoulder playing touch football with his children between the 1964 and 1965 seasons.

The three-time winner of the most valuable player award played in only 122 games last season, hitting .255 compared with his lifetime .309. He hit 19 home runs and drove in a meagre 46 runs.

Fleury Returns Fire At Canadien Scout

QUEBEC (CP) — Lionel Fleury, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, suggested Friday that Del Wilson mind his own business.

Wilson, a scout for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and manager of Regina Pats of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, said in an interview at Victoria the NHL should take over operation of Canada's national hockey team.

Fleury said Wilson does not have the authority to make such statements. He added:

"He is just a little scout who could start minding his own business. He no doubt is upset that Fran Huck has joined the national team and that surely is what is prompting him to make wild statements."

Huck was with the Pats before joining the national team.

Fleury aid he thinks the NHL taking over the national team is an impossibility.

"I just don't see how professional hockey, which in fact is under American control, could be interested in Canadian prestige," he said.

In Winnipeg, Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the CAHA, said that Wilson's concern over the Canadian team was a long time in coming to the surface.

"We're very pleased at Mr. Wilson's sudden interest," Juckes said. "It's taken him three years to get on the bandwagon."

Juckes added that "any time we've asked the NHL for assistance we've been disappointed. We won't consider turning the team over to them now."

In Montreal, Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, said he is convinced that the "NHL as a league will not take over Canada's national hockey team."

Campbell pointed out that four of the six NHL clubs are from the United States and said it would hardly seem likely they would be interested in sponsoring a national team for Canada.

'SEVERAL OFFERS' . . . . . FOR DEFENCEMAN

Leafs Suspend Brewer

TORONTO (CP)—The Star says Carl Brewer, retired Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, has been suspended by the National Hockey League club.

The Star quotes Punch Imlach, coach and general manager, as saying the Leaf action was taken to protect the club's interest in the 27-year-old all-star who retired prior to the start of the 1965-66 season.

It also means that Brewer can be prevented from teaching at hockey schools or coaching organized hockey without Leaf permission.

"We don't plan to prevent him from doing anything," The Star quotes Imlach, "although we'd be within our rights . . . We have a stake in Brewer, you know. He represents an investment and he has a cash value, a big one."

Thursday, president Stafford Smythe said Brewer may be traded if he does not come to terms with the club by next season. He said the Leafs had received several offers for the Toronto-born player who entered the University of Toronto after leaving the Leafs at training camp.

However, Smythe refused to comment on The Star story that the defenceman had been suspended.

Leaf Pilot Envies One Canuck Habit

Vancouver Takes Sixth Straight Against Blades

Victoria Maple Leafs haven't lost a Western Hockey League game to Vancouver Canucks all season, but they'd still like to borrow one page from the Vancouver book.

The Canucks have won every game they have played against California teams while the Leafs have lost five times and been held to a pair of ties in 13 games with San Francisco and Los Angeles.

This it is not surprising that Victoria coach was expressing concern today as he waited for tonight's clash with Los Angeles Blades at Memorial Arena.

SIXTH STRAIGHT

Blades will arrive after taking a 6-1 thumping at the hands of the Canucks Friday night at Vancouver but Mario could find little consolation in the easy Canuck triumph, Vancouver's sixth straight against the Blades.

"That defeat could even make them more determined tonight," commented Mario. "We have had our troubles with the Blades and I feel they are stronger now than they have been all season."

Mario selected four men as prime candidates to make life miserable for the Leafs.

"Cliff Pennington (with Boston last winter) seems to be back in his old stride," said Frank. "Leo LaBine is the leading the league in scoring power-play goals, Jerry Toppazzini is an old pro who is getting stronger and Willie O'Ree (WHL-goal-scoring king last season) always seems to go well in this arena."

WILCOX RECALLED

There was some bad news for Mario when Victoria Manager Buck Houle announced that Rollie Wilcox, sent from Tulsa to help the Leafs when they were hit by a rash of injuries, left Victoria this morning.

"The emergency conditions here have ended," said Houle, "and Wilcox has been recalled. He will go to Tulsa and then to Rochester, where emergency conditions exist."

The emergency conditions at Rochester have been caused by injuries to Ed Litzenberger and Stan Smrke. Wilcox will play his first game with the American League club Sunday.

TWO FOR McNEILL

Billy McNeill, with his 16th and 17th goals of the season, and Gord Vejprava, with his seventh and eighth since an early-season trade from the Blades, led the Canucks Friday night.

The win boosted third-place Vancouver to a four-point lead over Seattle, a 4-0 loser at Rochester in an interlocking game.

Phil Maloney and Ray Brunel added single goals for Vancouver, and Brian Smith scored the Los Angeles goal in the second period.

Although outplayed in the first period, Canucks led 2-0. They extended it to 5-1 in the second, adding their final goal in the third period while themselves shorthanded.

Rochester's production line of Jimmy Pappin, Dick Gamble and Mike Walton scored three goals and set up a fourth Friday night as the Americans blanked Seattle.

The victory enabled Americans to extend their home-ice undefeated streak to 18 games.

HOOP TOURNEY

Host Squad Beats Uvic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver Island entries lost their opening games of the Thunderette basketball tournament Friday night.

University of Victoria was beaten by the host UBC Thunderettes 51-41 and Nanaimo was whipped 57-22 by Mount Pleasant Legion of Vancouver.

Pauline Gensic scored 18 points to lead the Thunderette victory and Lee Hagglund was high for Victoria with nine.

In other games opening the two-day tournament, Brewers of Vancouver stopped Vancouver Orphans 57-10 and University of Alberta, Calgary, defeated UBC Jayvees 44-29.

Desrosiers Upsets Portland Favorite

TACOMA — Fred Desrosiers of Victoria recorded an eye-opening victory and British Columbia boxers went on to score 12 wins in 18 bouts on the opening night of the Tacoma Golden Gloves boxing tournament.

Desrosiers, a Canadian navy boxer stationed in Victoria, scored a narrow decision over top-ranked Tony Jacobs of Portland, the 1964 Tacoma champion and considered the finest welterweight in the Pacific Northwest.

Their exciting battle kept the opening-night house in a constant uproar. The crowd was brought to its feet in the first round when Desrosiers and Jacob knocked each other down at the same instant.

Both landed straight right hands simultaneously.

Desrosiers was the Canadian champion in 1964 and 1965 and a member of the national Olympic team in 1964.

Jacob was the second top-rated American to be sidelined. The first was William Cross, a 165-pounder, also from Portland.

Cross, U.S. national champion in 1964, was decisioned by Hugh Lindsay of Vancouver in the wildest bout of the night. Lindsay went into the third and final round behind on points, but rallied to floor the American four times.

Other big winners for B.C. were Fred Fuller, Dick Findlay and Steve Tohill, all 139-pounders from Vancouver. Each scored two wins.

B.C. won the team championship here last year.

LICENCE CHANGES ANNOUNCED

Now You'll Need a Tag To Shoot a Black Bear

In a move to reduce the wanton killing of bears in non-farming areas, the provincial fish and game branch has introduced tags that will be required by persons who shoot black bears.

In addition to discouraging wanton shooting of blackies, the tag system will provide biologists with more information on the annual harvest of black bears. The new tags will cost 50 cents and will be similar to those required by sportsmen who hunt any other species of big game in the province.

Branch director Dr. James Hatter stressed that the tag system will not apply to any bear which has become a nuisance or a danger.

Dr. Hatter also announced introduction of a short-term anglers' licence, an increase in year-around angling fees for non-resident aliens and changes in the expiry dates of hunting and fishing licences.

The short-term angling licence will cost $2 for a three-day period and will be for the convenience of tourists making brief visits to the province.

SAME EXPIRY DATE

However, the year-around angling licence for non-resident aliens will now cost $10 instead of $7. Visitors under the age of 18 will still be able to fish all year for a $1 licence fee.

Also unchanged in the licence for non-resident Canadians, who will still pay $3.50 for a year-long B.C. angling licence.

Hunting and fishing licences will now both have the same expiry date — March 31. All future licences will be valid from April 1 until March 31 of the following year.

However, current hunting and fishing licences held by sportsmen are good until the expiry dates marked on them.

QUESTIONNAIRES READY

Trapping licences will not be changed, remaining in effect from July 1 to June 30 to include the legal trapping season.

Fish and game branch officials also announced that about one third of the licensed resident hunters in B.C. will soon be receiving questionnaires. About 40,000 of the forms are being sent out to gather information from hunters on the wildlife harvest of the past season.

Sportsmen who fill out and return the forms contribute to the province's game management program. Information taken from the questionnaires helps biologists assess wildlife conditions in various areas.

Similar questionnaires have been sent out to random selections of hunters during the past 15 years.

ON THE LANES

Marg Rolls 266 —Second Highest

The number five pin wobbled, stayed up, and Marg Cooper missed a chance Friday to claim a coveted "100" pin from the International Bowling Congress.

The pin is presented to bowlers who turn in a game 100 pins over their average.

The B.C. women's tenpin champion gave it a run at Mayfair Lanes. She spared the opening frame, rang up eight strikes, and then spared the 10th for a single game of 266—the second highest ever rolled in the city by a woman.

Only Marg Beaney's perfect 300 game in 1947 tops it.

Mrs. Cooper made a beautiful hit for her strike hopes on the 10th. But that darn five-pin wobbled . . .

Two more tournament dates are approaching for Victoria's tenpin spillers.

Deadline for entries in the Victoria Tenpin Association tournament is Jan. 31, and teams wishing to chose a shift time might be advised to hustle with their entries.

The team event is scheduled Feb. 5 and 6 at Mayfair Lanes and the 2 p.m. shift on the second day has already been filled.

Distaff trundlers will also be chasing glory in the Victoria Women's Tenpin Association tournament next month. It will be held Feb. 19, 20, 26 and 27 at Aurora. Entry forms are now available.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Capturing women's fivepin honors for second successive year in Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Phyllis King. Rolling at Town and Country Lanes, Mrs. King cracked pins for 264-317-258—839 series, seven points under her winning tally of last year. Weekly award makes her eligible for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff in May.

Navy Back on Course As Old Guard Returns

Two of the old guard are back on duty, so it comes as no great surprise to see Navy tighten the laces on the Esquimalt and District Hockey League standings.

Dave "Bunker" Hill and Ken Maxwell did most of the damage Friday night at the Sports Centre as Navy hung one on Army, 8-6, to move to within one point of third place.

Defenceman Mike Woodley's two goals steered University's Vikings to a spine-tingling 2-1 victory over Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs in the opening half of a doubleheader before a packed house of 1,925 fans.

Hill, Navy's coach, came out of retirement recently because of a manpower problem. The big right winger's contribution Friday was three goals and two assists.

Maxwell, former league scoring champion, wasn't expected to ever play hockey again after suffering a serious neck injury in a game at Powell River last year. But Maxwell's injuries came along "better than expected" and he turned out for the first time a week ago.

Showing old-time form, he chipped in with two goals and two assists Friday.

Shuttle Triumph Provides Revenge

Jean Massey and Lloyd Park got some shuttle revenge Friday night.

Defeated by Muriel Knott and George Lane in the recent Saanich open tournament, they turned the tables in the semifinals of the city badminton championships at the Racquet Club and handed the Knott-Lane duo a 15-6, 15-18, 15-6 defeat.

The favored men's doubles team of Ed Hedley and Bob Hunt also had a tough battle before advancing into tonight's finals. Hedley and Hunt were forced to three games before getting by Tut Jones and Jim Wells.

Tonight's draw:

7 p.m.—J. Massey vs G. Thomas, R. Hunt vs Richard O'Neill, Isbister and Britz vs Bishop and Mella.

7.30—Knott and Knott vs Massey and Thomas, Hunt and Hedley vs Lane and Hibberson, C. Mella and L. McLean vs winner of Woodland, Aaronson, Barr and Kent.

Who is this man?

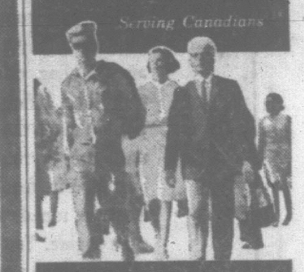

This man is Victor James, a chartered accountant who came to us with his financial problems. In providing an advanced education for his children, maintaining a large household and a new car, Victor found his income severely limited by a large number of overburdening monthly payments totaling a little less than $225.00 on $5,000.00 in obligations. Tower Finance consolidated his obligations under one Homeowner Easy Loan Plan the kind of HELP he really needed. Now he pays only $101.08 a month, much less than half his former payment at much less interest.
Victor James can be found at the bottom of every advertisement representing just one of the many thousands of Canadians who have come to us for a sensible solution to their financial problems. Why not give us a call today . . . we may have the solution to your financial problems as well.

SCHOOL ART CLASSES . . . . . MORE FUN, INTERESTING

Teachers Make a Mess to Help Their Students

By DESMOND BILL
Times Education Reporter

A youngster would have been caned 20 years ago for making the mess some teachers created Friday in a classroom at John Stubbs School in Beomont Park.

But the teachers were only practising in order to show students how they could do it.

They were taking a quick course in drawing with crayons, hoping to find new ways of interesting their students in art.

And their approach shows why art classes in the schools nowadays are not only more instructive for the students but more fun too.

The emphasis now is not on getting the student to draw what the teacher sees. And no one cares very much that the classroom is kept neat and tidy.

What is important to modern teachers is the child's vision: what he sees and how effectively he can convey what he sees on paper.

Angela Newton, a sharp-looking, 24-year-old blonde who teaches in Sooke school district, explained the new approach. She helped organize the short course put on for 50 Sooke and Saanich teachers by a crayon company.

Her idea is to stimulate the children. Sometimes she does it by giving them magazines out of which they cut photographs. They make an arrangement of the photos by glueing them on paper and painting over them for effect.

The purpose is simply to create a visual effect. What each child produces is an original that no one else in the class could duplicate.

Sometimes she will have the children cut a colored photo in three pieces and throw away the middle one. The remaining two are glued on paper and the student has to fill in the centre blank portion with a representation of what was in the original photo.

Youngsters in Mrs. Newton's classes draw with charcoal, they make masks and papier-mache figures and work with pastel oils that give brilliant colors.

Always the aim is to keep students interested. It is only when the child is enjoying himself that the teacher can develop and refine his taste, said Mrs. Newton.

Instead of criticizing the work of the young artists, today's teachers try to show them how to create the effects for which they are striving.

Almost without knowing it, the student is taught the elements of composition, color balance, perspective and brush technique.

What teachers were looking for at this conference were new ideas they could use in the classroom. One technique shown that was new to most of them was drawing on paper with clay.

The payoff of the conference is for the students. Teachers taking part went there after normal school hours and are given no extra payment for attendance.

Valley 'Angry'; Pollution Worse

PORT ALBERNI — Angry residents of the Alberni Valley will gather Sunday at an air pollution control meeting.

Organizer George McKnight said Friday the protest will be directed at elected representatives, locally and provincially.

An anti-pollution petition which has been snowballing in the Alberni Valley during the past week will be circulated at the meeting.

"I've got nothing against the company (MacPowell)," said one resident of a badly affected area.

"I have worked for them for years. I like the job and they pay good wages.

"But I like to breathe too."

SUBSTANTIAL wage increases will be sought in the IWA's bargaining requests to be formulated next month, says Weldon Jubenville, president of Duncan - Nanaimo Local 1-80.

June Start for Arena?

DUNCAN — Coun. Dennis Hogan said Friday the Fullers Lake ice arena could be started in June.

The $300,000 centennial project is due to be put to municipal ratepayers in bylaw form in March.

Mr. Hogan, as chairman of the Recreation Commission, said the arena would be part of a composite $600,000 bylaw which will allow for future recreational development in the south end of the municipality.

Designer Peter Blevitt of the firm of Wade, Stickdill Armour said actual construction of the arena could be completed within four months.

The building will house an ice sheet 210 by 85 feet.

It will seat 1,000 spectators and auxiliary accommodation will include a banquet room, change rooms and a skate shop.

Man Gets 3 Years In Jail

NANAIMO — Keith Austin Stady, a transient, was sentenced to three years in jail Friday after he pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and theft and possession of stolen property.

Stady pleaded guilty in magistrate Court was told Stady broke into the hotel room of Richard Brook, a Victoria deaf mute, earlier this month and stole money and articles of clothing.

The tuned car report.

People are buying Buicks at a record rate this year.
What's behind the switch to Buick?
What's the tuned car all about?

If you were going to build a car, you'd start with four absolutely necessary building blocks: performance, styling, ride and handling. If you were going to build a Buick, you'd start there, too. But you wouldn't stop there. You'd test and refine and blend until they were all tuned to work together. Your own favorite mechanic already gives you an idea of what the tuned car is all about when he tunes your car's engine. You know how smoothly and efficiently that engine runs? That's how a Buick runs. Not just the engine. The whole Buick. And that's what tuning is.

Two years of punishment.

We tune our Buicks in the laboratory. And on the road. We use our Proving Grounds. (As other car makers use theirs.) But we also use parkways and freeways and country lanes and mountain chutes—the tuned car is tuned to behave well on all kinds of roads; roads you'll actually be using. If you bought a new Buick and then, just for fun, gave it back to us to run it through all that testing again, can you guess when you would get it back? In about two years.

The test run.

Before final assembly, every Buick engine is test run to be sure it's properly tuned and to provide for controlled initial break-in. If there's the tiniest fault, back it goes.

Brr.

You think you've got a tough job? We have a man stationed up north where in winter the thermometer can drop to thirty below. He's charged with climbing out of bed in the dark of cold mornings, going out to a new Buick which has been left out all night, and starting it. A car that will start fast enough to please him will please anybody.

The Inspector.

There are about 1250 people working in our engine plant. 180 of them are inspectors, which works out to one inspector for every 5.9 production people. The average engine is looked at, in component or assembled form, by 170 different inspectors. An inspector's word is law. If something isn't right, back it goes. Sometimes this makes our production people unhappy. But it also makes the product good and you happy.

Frothing at the shocks.

When it gets hot outside, the oil inside the shock absorbers tends to become aerated. Or, to put it another way, it froths. Which makes it hard for the shocks to do much absorbing. Inside every LeSabre, Wildcat, Electra 225 and Riviera shock absorber is a piece of baffle tubing that puts a stop to this kind of nonsense. It costs a little extra money to do this. But if you've ever ridden in one of these new Buicks, you'll know why we think it's worth it.

Close.

No matter how hard you try, you can't practically make pistons to more than 3/10,000 of an inch tolerance. The same goes for cylinders, into which the pistons fit. So we use an ingenious machine that measures pistons and cylinders by air. And then we fit piston to cylinder individually.

The "master" engines.

We not only balance all the engine parts separately, the way everybody else does, but we also balance the final assembly as well. We have machines for this. But, being Buick, we also have perfectly balanced "master" engines that check the machines that check the engine that you end up with. And then there are those inspectors . . .

Safety.

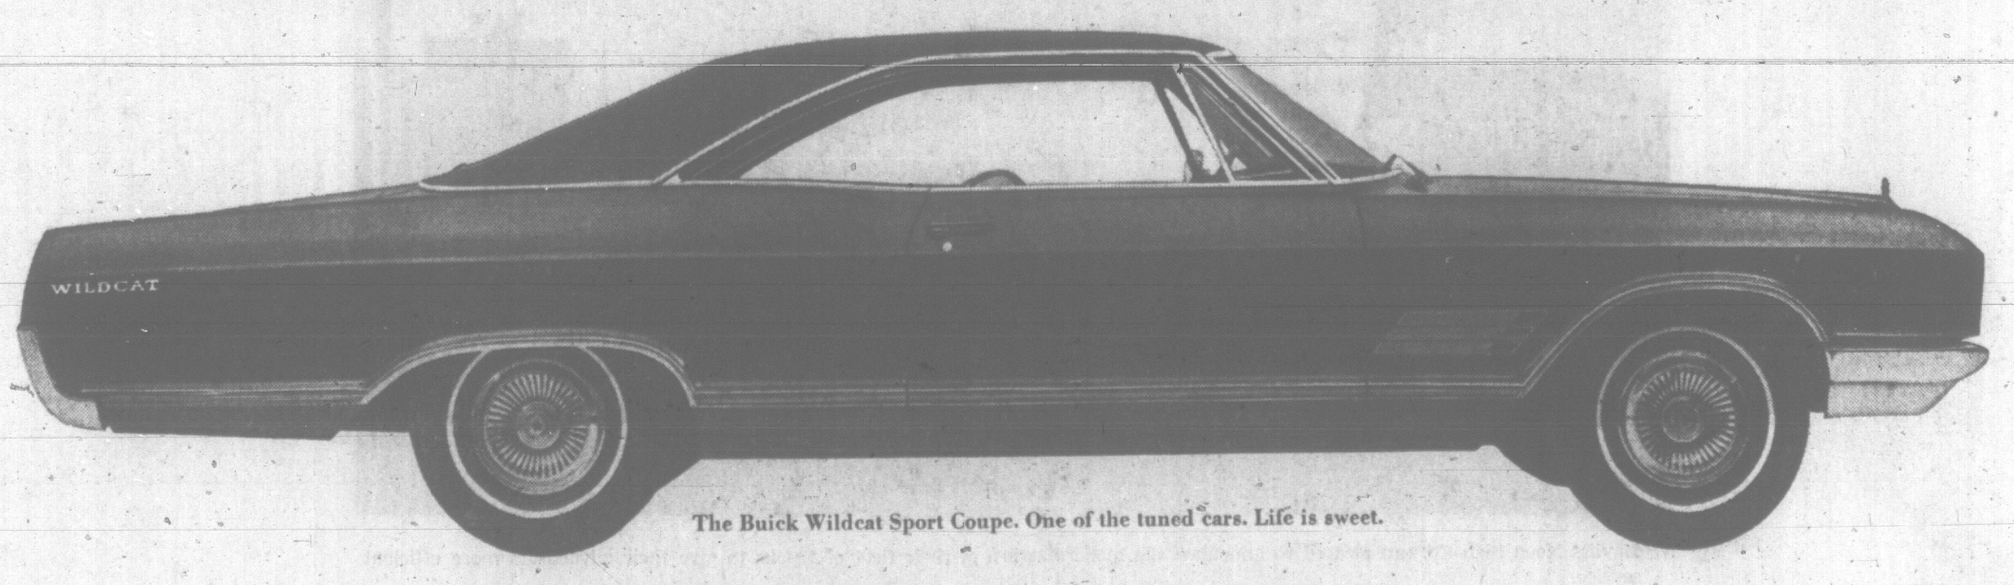

Everybody knows that the real key to safety on the road is the driver. We (like our sister divisions at GM) try to make every trip a safe trip for you. So we put back-up lights, a padded dash, padded sun visors, seat belts front and rear, and two-speed wipers and washers in every one of our cars. Standard equipment. So are two mirrors—an outside one and a shatter-resistant inside one—that are just about indispensable. You use them when you're moving into traffic, to see what's coming up to pass you, to see if it's safe for you to pass, and a dozen other things. They're probably the most important glass in the car, if you don't count the windshield.

Affordable.

A good many people have been brought up to believe that a Buick is some kind of a pinnacle, to be touched only after the kids are tucked away in careers of their own and you've Got It Made. Well, a Buick is a pinnacle, all right, but it's not nearly that hard to attain. In fact, many people who buy new cars are already paying the price of a Buick. And if you're going to pay the price of a Buick, you might as well get a Buick.

North America has spoken.

Sending a brand-new car out into the world is a ticklish business at best. Even when you're absolutely positively sure you've got a winner, there's always that little niggling doubt. So we must report that the tuned car has been a rousing success, even more rousing, in fact, than we had allowed ourselves to hope. And we shall, by working very hard, keep supplying our dealers with Buicks, so that they, in turn, can keep supplying you with Buicks. Wouldn't you really rather own a Buick?

'If You Are Honest' . . . Test Yourself Sunday In Television Survey

Viewers will have the opportunity to find out just how honest they really are when NBC News presents "Testing: Is Anybody Honest?" Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channel 5.

NBC News correspondent Frank McGee will be host.

Viewers will take part at home by answering questions based on various visual situations.

In some answers, viewers will be able to compare their responses to those given by people in surveys made around the country.

In other programs in the series, which are now in preparation, viewers can test how accurate they are in observing and perceiving situations, and where they stand in the broad range of political attitudes. They will also learn how personality, aptitude and IQ tests work.

"Testing: Is Anybody Honest?" will present the home viewer with everyday incidents and then ask for his reactions.

"The technique we will use to accomplish this," explains producer Craig Fisher, "will be to present filmed vignettes of situations into which the viewer can project himself. Following the film, we will ask questions that will attempt to elicit the viewer's attitudes towards the situation: Is he in agreement or in conflict with the filmed action?

The individual viewer will then be able to compare his answers to the norms determined by surveys made across the nation. In some cases, these norms will be broken down into categories of age, sex, geographic locations, education or whatever other delineation is relevant to the question.

"In the question of honesty," says Fisher, "there are no real absolutes. The decisions that face us are usually ones of degree. But there is nearly always a point at which our conscience steps in. With filmed vignettes, we will try to find out for the individual viewer at what point he draws the line."

As an example, a person might cheat on his income tax but not in the local store, or keep extra change from a bank but not from a neighborhood merchant.

The program will also examine the place of the church in its attempt to help the individual strengthen his moral values, and whether American business causes the individual to relax his ethics.

Dr. Gerald Lesser, director of the Laboratory of Human Development at Harvard University, will be consultant.

Compare Standards

For the past three months hundreds of inmates of American prisons have taken a written honesty test. So have large groups of religious leaders, lawyers, teachers, businessmen and housewives. Although they didn't know it at the time, all of these people were playing a key role in the largest test of ethics and honesty ever attempted.

According to writer-producer Fisher, testing of people from various professions and walks of life will establish national standards, or norms, for certain ethical problems.

Says Fisher: "Very few of us are completely honest or completely dishonest. And this program will not enable viewers to 'score' themselves on their degree of honesty. What it will do is indicate national averages regarding certain areas of ethical behavior so that the public can see how it stands in relation to those averages."

According to Fisher, no large scale testing of honesty has been conducted until now, except for very small samplings of college students in the relatively controlled environment of classrooms.

Approximately 15 situations will be presented on "Testing: Is Anybody Honest?" which pose a number of ethical problems. In addition to establishing national norms for these problems, Fisher filmed the reactions of people in a staged situation, and then interviewed them. He arranged to have money clips which contained five one-dollar bills left in railroad stations, airports and bus terminals in eight American cities—New York, Boston, Denver, Seattle, Oklahoma City, Houston, Atlanta and Los Angeles. Reactions of several hundred people who found the money were secretly filmed. "We then asked these people to come up to the camera and explain why they either took the money or turned it in," says Fisher, and he adds, "We got some fascinating answers."

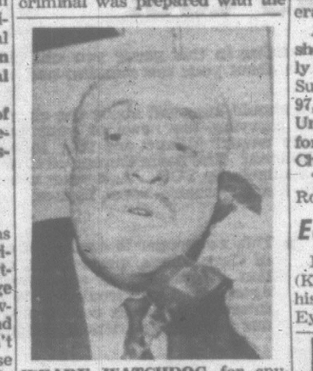

Behind the Bars

Sometime within the next year, the Canadian Committee on Corrections will submit a report to the federal government concerning reform of Canada's correctional institutions. It will probably consider a recent Ontario brief which states that jail sentences do not act as a deterrent but "actually increase the likelihood that most offenders will repeat unlawful or criminal acts."

This is a point of view to which many inmates themselves subscribe as revealed in CBC-TV's Document program of Sunday, (10 p.m. Channels 2, 6) entitled A Sense of Captivity.

This study of some aspects of prison life and the mind of the criminal was prepared with the full co-operation of prison authorities at three Ontario institutions — Kingston Penitentiary, Collin's Bay Penitentiary and the Joyceville Institution. A condition of filming interviews with inmates at these jails was that they should be disguised with heavy make-up, and false mustaches and hair-pieces.

The interviews, conducted by Ed McGibbon (who also researched and narrates the program), are frank and revealing, touching on such sentitive questions as homosexuality and brutality in prisons. In a group discussion, some prisoners debate their own attitudes towards society, and society towards them, what they plan to do when they get out, and what they think should be done to give more meaning to the expression "rehabilitation."

WEARY WATCHDOG for spy-accountant Henry Phyfe is Gerald Hannahan (Fred Clark) who plays the boss of the Central Intelligence Service in the show of the same name Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Clergyman's Portrait

The Rev. Dr. A. E. Whitehouse is the subject of Portrait of a Clergyman, a half-hour film produced by CBC Vancouver for telecast on Heritage Sunday at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

This is the first of a number of such portraits of Canadian pioneer clergymen . . . men who ventured into the wilderness and spread the word of God. "These are the men who went in on horseback," points out Rev. Brian Fireland, CBC assistant supervisor of religious broadcasts. "Many of them are in their 80s and we'd like to get their reminiscences of that era."

A segment of the program will show Dr. Whitehouse in a friendly game of golf (not played on a Sunday) with Dr. W. G. Wilson, 97, a former minister of First United and Dr. Hugh McLeod, former moderator of the United Church of Canada.

The game was shot at the Royal Colwood Golf Club.

Ed Sullivan Show

Maria Cole, widow of Nat (King) Cole; Duke Ellington and his orchestra, Ricky Nelson, Eydie Gorme, Charlie Drake and Bob King are guests on "The Ed Sullivan Show" Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Mrs. Cole is making her first television appearance since resuming her professional singing career in November at the Chevron Hotel in Sydney, Australia. She was a singer with Duke Ellington before her marriage in 1948.

Being a guest on this broadcast marks a double reunion for Mrs. Cole: her only previous television engagement was on "The Ed Sullivan Show" on Oct. 23, 1955, when she appeared with her late husband. On the Jan. 23 program Mrs. Cole will again sing with Duke Ellington's Orchestra and will also appear in a solo spot.

Ricky Nelson, making one of his rare television appearances on a program other than "Ozzie and Harriet," will sing, as will Eydie Gorme. Englishman Charlie Drake and Bob King will present comedy segments.

ASK RITHET'S
You are invited to submit questions on insurance and similar matters for inclusion in this column. The origin of such queries is kept entirely secret.
Q. I own two vacant lots around town. Does my Homeowner's Policy give me any third party liability coverage at such locations?
A. Yes. The liability section of a Homeowner's Policy automatically includes vacant land owned or rented by you, other than farm land. This coverage ceases, as soon as you commence any construction yourself or have an independent contractor start construction of buildings other than one or two family dwellings.

LATE SHOWS . . .

Quantity Robs Quality

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — You may have been reading here and there about the growing shortage of movies for television.

You may also have read that the video networks, to replenish their supply, are making deals left and right with production firms to turn out motion pictures for television.

Many of these firms are either the studios — or are allied with the studios — that have been responsible for most of the junk on the home screen today. There has been much written about this, but it seems to me that not enough attention has been paid to perhaps the most important point

The networks who buy this quickie product from their new suppliers are buying fool's gold. They are living in a fool's paradise.

The plain fact is that, for the most part, the suppliers will be able to turn out not reasonably good movies that now hold viewers, but simply longer television shows that are labeled motion pictures.

The reasons are simple

The budgets will not be able to match the budgets of high-class moviemakers today. The stars will therefore be mostly of a medium or low level. Everything else will also be proportionately cheaper.

Furthermore, the demand by the networks for the tremendous quantity they need will make it impossible to get the better scripts that now hold video movie watchers. There aren't that many good stories.

And further, the new films themselves will inevitably have to be approved by sponsors for viewing, which means more limitations.

VIEWERS KNOW

An equally important point is that viewers most definitely know the difference between glossy movie product and television stuff.

They have proved it, like this:

It is a plain fact that video anthologies, without continuing stars and characters, have been "ratings death." Yet movies, which in effect are anthologies since they vary in stars, characters and format each week, have been big "ratings successes." In short, the viewer is perfectly aware of what is the real goods and what is second-hand, and the networks will find this out to their misery.

Yet, amid all the second-hand stuff that will surely emanate from the new suppliers, there could be — if the right parties saw the situation clearly — almost a modest renaissance of video, like this:

Writers, stars and producers of quality — who long have considered themselves on the outs with television and suffocated by it — are, if they can see it, in perhaps their greatest bargaining position ever.

The networks are desperate for good product to fill those movie nights in the future — they have five such nights each week coming up next season. It is a chance for the writers who deserted television, or who want to work for it, to demand a greater share of independence than they have been able to get. The same with the stars.

They don't need television. Television needs them. They are the pre-sold goods, like the movies with pre-sold titles.

Intertel Examines Old Age

'To Live Till You Die' Will Test Wisdom Of State Pension

CBC's Intertel documentary series will study the problems of the aged Tuesday at 10 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6 in To Live Till You Die.

Like death and taxes, old age is always with us. And with new breakthroughs in geriatrics, some medical specialists predict that life expectancy in the future may be more than 100 years. Therefore, an increasingly important question is: should governments be entrusted with the care of the aged?

In the welfare state of Sweden, the aged are considered to be a social problem to be cared for by the government. In contrast, the Italian government pays a mere 70 cents a day to its pensioners and leaves their care mainly to their families.

The program looks at two typical old people in Sweden and Italy. Olivia Gorgansson, a retired Swedish factory worker, is seen as she adjusts from her semi-solitary life in a single room to a government home for the aged at Eromma.

In contrast, Minguccio Filazzola, an Italian farmer, intends to live out the remaining years of his life as patriarch of a large family in Lucania. He commands, and gets, the respect of his three-generation family, and his advice is sought on all major family decisions.

During the program, an interesting comment is made by Prof. Siguard Curman, a Swedish art historian, who, at 85, chooses to continue in his work. "The worst thing a man can do is take to his rocking chair," says Prof. Curman, "after a short time, he will die."

To Live Till You Die was produced for Intertel by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Company and was directed by Robert Morgan. Intertel is a project for international understanding through television.

Perry Como Show

Lena Horne, whose recent appearances on CBC-TV's Show of the week drew raves from the critics; actress-singer Patty Duke; and comedian Norm Crosby are the special guests of Perry Como on his next Show Monday, at 9 p.m. on Channels 2, 5 and 6.

Patty Duke, who recently added singing to her list of accomplishments, is pushing 19, but is already an accomplished and mature actress, with an Academy Award to prove it

As a girl in New York, Patty worked hard at drama school to lose her 'dese-dem-dose' diction. She got her first part in 1955 as an extra in a film crowd scene But the part evaporated when after waiting around all day, the extras were told they weren't needed after all. Patty's first important television role came at age nine, when she played an Italian child in a dramatization of the Andrea Doria sinking.

In 1958, Patty auditioned for the role of the blind and deaf-mute Helen Keller. Her performance as Helen in the play The Miracle Worker was unanimously praised by the critics After the play's run of 700 performances, she went on to work in the film version, with Anne Bancroft. She won the Oscar as 1962's best supporting actress.

Since then, she has appeared on Broadway in Island of Children, and is the star of her own television show. She recently starred in the film, Billie, produced by Walt Disney.

Urban Renewal

New Haven, Conn., described as one of the most progressive North American cities because of its combination urban and population renewal program, is subject of a special edition of CBC-TV's The Sixties, Monday, at 10 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

This study on the sociology of urban renewal and citizen participation, entitled The Battle for New Haven, will be presented in connection with the 12th Winter Conference, being held at Education Centre, Toronto, Jan. 28, 29 and 30.

The Winter Conference, a joint project of the CBC and the Canadain Institute on Public Affairs, is called The People Are the City and is a discussion on the practice of local democracy today.

Discussing New Haven's program will be Mayor Richard Lee, who has spearheaded the project, and Mike Sviridoff, manager of Community Planning Incorporated (CPI), the organization charged with the responsibility for the program's social progress.

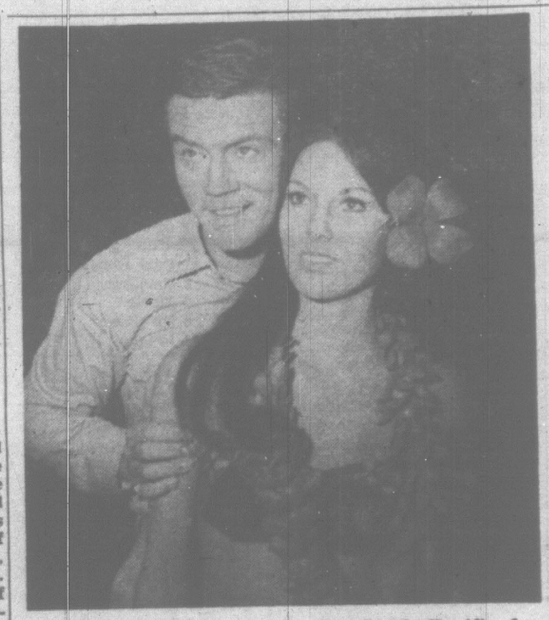

Also heard will be Professor Richard Dahl, an urban economist at Yale University. Prof. Dahl is author of a book entitled Who Governs? : a study of urban power structures based on New Haven.

The Battle for New Haven is the first of three special programs produced by the CBC on the Winter Conference.

The second program, on the same theme as The Sixties, but done in a comparable Canadian city — Hamilton, Ont. — will be seen immediately following The Battle for New Haven at 10:30 p.m. The third program will be a one-hour special review of the conference, to be seen Sunday, Jan. 30.

Sammy Davis Show

TOWARDS SCHOOL PROGRAM, GOALS

He's Fed Up With Apathy

Desmond Bill Talks To Trustee JOHN PORTEOUS

John Porteous never made a public speech until 1961, the year when he first stood for election as a public school trustee.

He didn't even need to make one to get elected. He was unopposed.

That was typical of school board elections only five years ago. But times have changed.

Elections are contested nowadays and John Porteous personifies the new sort of man who sits on Greater Victoria School Board.

Mr. Porteous does not think there has been enough change, however, in public attitude to the schools.

"People don't seem to realize what is involved in running a school system in 1966.

"They defeated the referendum last December even though we told them how badly we needed new schools. I've heard people say we should save money by cutting out frills in the schools.

Just Necessities

"Sure, schools look different from what they did 25 years ago. But modern houses look different too. That doesn't mean they have more frills in them; just modern necessities. The schools look different but, believe me, they have no frills."

Mr. Porteous doesn't get easily annoyed and he quickly slipped back to his usual subdued tone. "I'm as interested in keeping down taxes as anyone else. After all I have to pay taxes too."

Mr. Porteous is 40 years old, the youngest man ever to be board chairman. An accountant at St. Joseph's Hospital, he is the father of five children, three of them enrolled in the public schools.

PORTEOUS
. . . "I pay taxes too"

He has a varied educational background of his own. After attending schools in British Columbia he went to the University of Toronto where he studied business management. He studied for a year at the University of Grenoble in France and then spent another year travelling "on the cheap" through Western Europe.

Back in Canada again, he married but soon moved to Cleveland, Ohio, where he worked from 1952 to 1955 in the head office of Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

By 1955 he had a family and knew he had to make up his mind where he was going to raise them. He and his wife decided to return to Canada and settle in Victoria, "a place where we always thought we would like to live."

He decided to run in the school board election in 1961 after hearing friends criticizing the schools. "I wanted to get involved and see what could be done."

Big Budget

But he had no idea of the complexity and size of school board operations. "Do you know our budget is almost as big as the city's?"

When Mr. Porteous became a trustee he discovered that many teachers looked on the school board as "some kind of policeman that kept them in line."

One change since then that makes him happy is that teachers now have direct contact with the board. Formerly the trustees dealt with teachers through the administration.

Mr. Porteous wants more co-operation with the teachers. "We want more of their ideas. They seem to be hesitant about putting up ideas to the laymen on the school board. They don't seem to realize we depend on them and welcome initiative from them."

Much of the board's time in recent years has been occupied with supervising the physical expansion of the system. Enrollment has been increasing at the rate of about 1,000 students every year.

But Mr. Porteous points to new programs started by the board such as the special services for emotionally disturbed children, one of his special interests.

He hopes to see more experimentation in the schools in the future and a further expansion in programs. But he said his main interest at the moment is "to get the public more interested in what is going on."

"People get interested in civic affairs but they rarely get excited over school board elections."

He said public interest in the school board was illustrated by an all-candidates meeting held last fall before the elections.

All aldermanic candidates were asked to attend but no board candidate was invited.

Said Mr. Porteous: "More people than ever value an education. But too many of them still take the schools for granted."

DENSE FOG PLAGUES U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—Thick fog halted flights into London's two international airports and brought new driving hazards as Britain's cold snap continued today.

Gas board engineers held talks in Birmingham where 200,000 workers were left idle following breakdowns in two big plants supplying 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day to hundreds of companies in the Midlands industrial belt.

Lesage in Plea to Parents

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage Friday appealed to parents of Quebec's 27,000 "striking" technical and trade school students to take a "firmer grip on their children.

Representatives of the students, who attend 60 schools across the province, are scheduled to meet in Quebec City today to set up common "strike" policy.

Meanwhile, the strike of 750 teachers in three Quebec areas continues with no new developments reported. Some 18,000 students have been missing classes because of the strikes of French-speaking Roman Catholic teachers in le Gardeur area east of Montreal, the Hull area, and the nearby Papineau area.

The technical and trade school students launched a boycott of classes Monday in protest against a new school calendar extending their school year by 2½ weeks. They said this reduces their chances of getting summer work.

Premier Lesage said Quebec cannot afford the "luxury" of the technical students' strike.

"Parents should take a firmer grip on their children and bear in mind that the striking students are refusing a service that parents are sorry they have never had, free or otherwise."

Economic Reforms Spark Wild Protests in Hungary

By HANS BENEDICT

VIENNA (AP) — Hungary's ruling Communist party has embarked on a broad propaganda campaign urging every citizen to make personal sacrifices to help government economic reforms.

The idea is that people living in the cities should pay more for certain basic foodstuffs so that collective farmers who produce them can increase their living standards.

The government acknowledges the measure has aroused widespread public criticism.

According to Western reports from Budapest, workers at the huge steel mills of Csepel are believed to have staged a demonstration Jan. 9 in protest against the price increases.

The reports—denied by the government as "pure fabrication"—said about 160 Csepel workers had been arrested. Another report from different sources said 100 persons are believed to have been apprehended elsewhere in Hungary.

Previously the government announced the arrest of 12 persons on charges of "anti-state sedition." It was not known whether these arrests were in connection with the alleged protest actions.

WAGES, PENSIONS UP

In an obvious effort to offset the impact of such increases as 50 per cent for beef, 30 per cent for pork and higher fuel costs to become effective Feb. 1, the regime has also raised wages and old-age pensions.

The wages of some 300,000 industrial workers will be increased by seven or eight per cent and salaries of some 100,000 teachers will go up 15 to 16 per cent.

The Communist party chief Janos Kadar, recently blasted "certain elements" for creating tension. He said:

"We openly declare that we seek to improve the situation of our farmers by bringing their living standards nearer to the level of the city population. Superficial statements according to which we are solving our problems at the expense of the city population . . . are aimed at panic-mongering."

The Hungarian government has acquired a reputation for being more liberal-minded and lenient than other East European regimes. Disclosure of the arrest of 12 persons on "anti-state sedition" charges may have been intended to serve as a warning to those "certain elements" Kadar was talking about.

New Sensations Due In Paris Kidnap Case

PARIS (Reuters) — French authorities investigating the Mehdi Ben Barka kidnapping scandal today forecast new sensations in the case within the next few days.

The latest development came Friday night when an autopsy report failed to pin down the time of death of supposed suicide Georges Figon, key witness in the October kidnapping of the Moroccan opposition leader.

Figon, a Paris gangster, was found shot to death in his apartment when police went to arrest him Monday in connection with the case. The public prosecutor branded his death a clear case of suicide, but the claim was immediately questioned in Paris newspapers.

The newspapers suggested he might have been silenced as a witness in the case. They also asked why no one heard the fatal shot.

CHIEF WAS DISMISSED

The Ben Barka affair now has developed into a major scandal which has seen the dismissal of the French counter-intelligence chief and the deterioration of relations between France and Morocco.

Judge Louis Zollinger, leading investigations into the case, Friday questioned the editor and a reporter of the weekly magazine Express which published part of a statement alleged to have been made by Figon.

Express said Figon claimed Moroccan Interior Minister Gen. Mohammed Oufkir tortured Ben Barka with a knife in a house near Paris after the kidnapping.

Figon's statement in the magazine added that Ben Barka was then taken to another house where he was trussed up so fiercely that he could not breathe and died of suffocation.

Meanwhile, France awaited reaction from Morocco to the international warrants issued here for the arrest of Oufkir and two senior Moroccan police officials. All three were in Paris the day after Ben Barka was hustled into a car by two men with French police cards.

IRISH VETO UN ROLE FOR NOTED GENERAL

DUBLIN (Reuters) — The Irish government said Friday night it refused to allow its army chief of staff, Gen. Sean MacEoinn, to go to Cyprus as head of the United Nations peace force because it does not want further involvement in the island.

A government information bureau statement said an informal approach had been made to Ireland to release Gen. MacEoinn. Canada and Ireland are two of the largest contributors to the UN peace force on the island.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1966—PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

The other day I was called on by a personable newcome Victorian in a back-East topcoat and wool scarf who introduced himself as Jerome Olynyk, renter-out of the usual, the unusual and the fantastic.

"Could you rent me a live trout?" I asked.

"Of course," said Mr. Olynyk.

"Or a hive of bees?"

"If you insist. Will you take delivery here or at your home?"

"Well," I said, "how about an elephant?"

"Gladly," replied my visitor, who lives at 476 Lampson and operates from a Pandora Avenue base, "but I should warn you, the expense will be considerable."

At this point, it occurred to me that I was getting in deeper than seemed advisable, so we settled down to discuss items which Mr. Olynyk has actually rented to Victorians since he arrived among us from Peterborough, Ont., five months ago.

We ran through various useful but prosaic items, including baby cribs that magicked themselves into suitcases for parents on tour, paused at bed-wetting alarms—"I have already bathroom-trained a number of children," said Mr. Olynyk proudly—and arrived at reducing equipment.

"Popular," my guest announced, "especially since Christmas, but it must be handled with tact and delicacy. One lady customer had us withhold delivery of a slenderizing machine to her house until after midnight, so that her neighbors wouldn't see it being carried in."

★

A hair stylist before he ventured into the rent-all business here, Ukrainian-born Jerome Olynyky is thoroughly versed in tact. He followed his earlier trade in various European countries before coming to Canada 12 years ago.

The notion of a store that rents everything didn't originate with him; it spread from New York—where you can now whistle up a giraffe rather more easily than you can flag a rush-hour cab—to other cities of the American and Canadian East.

"I believe, though, said Mr. Olynyk placidly, "that I am the first to set up a rent-all store west of Winnipeg."

I thought for a moment, then rashly asked the ubiquitous pioneer if he could fix me up with a coon-trap, a wishing-well, and a wine press.

He nodded an amiable affirmative; he said, smiling. "One of our first requests was for an Italian wine press. None were available in Victoria, so I had one built by experts in Toronto. Since the first rental, it's been out . . . let's see . . . to about 58 homes."

Victoria's demands keep 37-year-old Jerome Olynyk jumping. More than once he has raided family possessions in an emergency.

★

Last weekend, this cannibalizing reached its ultimate when Mr. Rent-All hired out his own ski pants.

"An error," he said. "The fellow brought them back with a hole in the seat."

"A guillotine?" I demanded.

"In use at the moment. Yours when it's free . . . I can also offer a post-hole auger, or a polaroid camera, if you happen to need one."

I asked this Santa-for-a-price if he ever ran into a situation he couldn't cope with.

He pondered briefly. "I was approached quite recently for a mink stole by a woman who wished to wear one to a wedding. So I bought the stole, and she wore it with gratifying effect."

"Well?" I asked, "where's the problem?"

"My wife also has a feeling for mink. The stole is now permanently out of stock."

"Crystal ball?" I put in. "There are times in my business when I need one."

"Not on hand," said Mr. Olynyk, tucking in his scarf, "and accurate ones are difficult to obtain." He hesitated, then asked, a touch wistfully, "You're sure you won't settle for the elephant?"

Bladen Report 'Scared' To Predict True Costs

A UBC economics professor today waded into the Bladen Commission report on financing higher education.

Professor Gideon Rosenbluth said: "Someone has to present the full case for public expenditure on higher education and the commission has not done it."

He was talking to 40 people at a Fabian Forum on education held at the Hotel Sidney in Sidney.

Prof. Rosenbluth said the commission, in its report, seemed to be "scared" of making a more aggressive presentation of the case for equality of opportunity and a more realistic forecast of financial needs.

He suggested the conservatism of the Bladen report seemed to be due to considerations of "political expediency."

But, he said, the commission needn't have been worried.

Prof. Rosenbluth said it is possible to increase government spending on higher education to a greater extent than recommended by the commission and still reduce taxes substantially.

The main point of his criticism was that the report underestimated future student enrolment and future cost of financing higher education.

He said predictions of inrolment were based on estimates by the Canadian Universities Foundation which have been consistently too low over the past few years.

COSTS ADEQUATE

Prof. Rosenbluth said the estimates of future expenditures "avoided such elementary questions as whether past costs per student were adequate; whether enrolment is a strict guide to costs, and such other factors as the growth of graduate schools which are more expensive to maintain.

Prof. Rosenbluth noted that the Bladen Report itself admitted that its estimates are likely "to err on the low side."

He pointed out that some studies indicate the cost of higher education per student has actually fallen during the last decade. He said that if these studies are correct then the commission projections are actually based on a declining expenditure in the future.

Wild Party By Youths Nets Fines

A wild party on Cornwall St. Friday night resulted in the arrest of two teen-agers.

Robert James McCrae, 19, of 631 Cornwall, was fined $75 for causing a disturbance by being drunk.

It was at his home the party was held, police said.

Barry Bruce, 18, of 1126 Oxford, was also arrested on an intoxication charge. His $15 bail was forfeited.

Court was told teen-agers were climbing trees and breaking beer bottles outside the residence around 8:40 p.m.

When police arrived they found 10-15 teen-agers and three juvenile girls in the living room which was littered with beer and wine bottles.

When Bruce was arrested, McCrae came out of the house and tried to get him away from police, said Const. Ken Horsman.

"Situations of this sort are most disturbing and most disgusting to the public," commented Magistrate Harold Alder.

Command Changes At Dockyard

Several changes in ship command were announced today at HMCS Dockyard.

Commander M. A. Turner, commander of the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan, will proceed on leave in early March before assuming another appointment yet to be announced.

His position will be filled by Lt. Cdr. P. J. Travers.

Saskatchewan will also soon have a new executive officer—Lt. Cdr. T. S. Murphy who assumes his new job March 7

Just this week, Lt. Cdr. R. D. Okros assumed command of the destroyer-escort HMCS Mackenzie, succeeding Cdr. H. J. Wade.

And Lt. Cdr. G. V. Hartman assumed command of the ocean escort HMCS Beacon Hill, succeeding Lt. Cdr. W. A. Hughes.

POLICE CHECKING NEW LEADS

Faint Hope Three Still Alive

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine Reporter

There is a faint hope the three missing Victoria boys are still alive.

It stemmed today from a police spokesman.

He said: "We haven't yet closed the case. There are one or two things we have to check out."

During the week, police have interviewed chums of the boys at Oak Bay High School.

Following the interviews several new leads were checked out, said the spokesman.

Oak Bay police are looking for a second boat.

The 14-foot pleasure craft was reported missing last Monday from Oak Bay Marina.

It was midnight Saturday when the three, Dennis Powell, 18; Ronald Hynds, 18, and Wade Squire, 17, left Oak Bay Marina.

They told parents they were going hunting to Chatham Island only two miles away.

According to searchers, there is no sign the boys ever went to the island that night.

Since then, their boat, along with a small amount of debris, has been found awash at Dungeness Spit, east of Port Angeles.

But there has been no sign of the boys or their bright orange lifejackets.

This fact has led police to follow up the theory that something else may have happened to the boys.

Police were out today searching the waters around Dungeness Spit.

In addition to looking for further wreckage, they are keeping their eyes out for the missing boat.

"We just can't seem to locate it," said the police spokesman "We're very anxious to find it."

The boat, belonging to Shawnigan school teacher T. S. Greg, has a white hull with faded red decks.

It is powered by a 40-horsepower engine.

Meanwhile, a description of the boys has been circulated to police departments in Washington State.

While the main search has been called off—a search involving numerous aircraft, ships and small boats were out in the Spit area today.

MACHINE GUN STOLEN FROM CAR

A 9-mm. Stirling sub-machine gun was stolen from a soldier's car parked Friday night in the Yates Street civic parking garage.

Police said the no-draught window on the driver's door was smashed to gain entry.

The gun belonged to Rifleman William N. Muise, 1255 Balmoral, an army spokesman said.

There was no ammunition taken but the soldier's bayonet and scabbard also were stolen. Rifleman Muise is a member of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

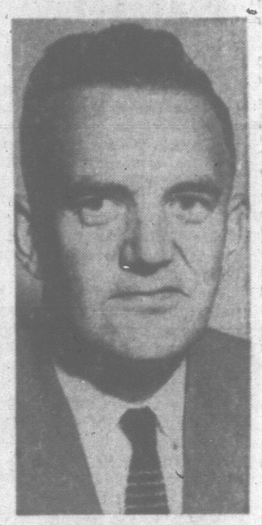

The army spokesman said Victoria Provost Section is investigating.

"Unit regulations stipulate weapons of its men are to be retained in specified secure places in unit lines," the spokesman said.

'We Will Make War On Power-Hungry Unions, NDPers'

An insurance industry spokesman today assailed the New Democratic Party and trade unions for their call for government car insurance.

The comment from Justin Harbord, president of the Insurance Agents Association of B.C., came as petitions began circulating door-to-door in Greater Victoria calling for public rather than private car insurance.

JUSTIN HARBORD
... insurance spokesman

"The ordinary men and women of this country are being constantly misled by power-hungry politicians on the one hand and labor union leaders whose motive is to take public pressure off themselves by proposing government takeover of private enterprise," he said.

INFLATION, HIGH TAXES

"I intend to recommend to the members of my association that we declare war on the real enemies of our way of life—inflation and high taxes caused by power-hungry politicians and the insatiable demands of big labor—the gimme more for less boys."

If the NDP had its way, said Mr. Harbord, about 5,000 people in and associated with the insurance industry in B.C. would be out of work.

"It's time the public realized that every time wages go up in this country the price of every commodity and service also has to increase," he said.

"An eight-year-old child can understand this but not apparently Messrs Jodoin and Strachan."

This was a reference to Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, and Robert Strachan, leader of the New Democratic Party in B.C.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

The CLC is mounting a national campaign for government car insurance next month.

The NDP's provincial council was meeting in Vancouver today. Secretary Ernest Hall said a decision was to be made on what form a campaign by the party will take to boost government car insurance.

The local petitions are being organized by the party's Victoria association.

In a lengthy statement, Mr. Harbord said the CLC and NDP are either deliberately misleading the public or have a lack of knowledge of the facts.

UP 32 PER CENT

In the last 25 years, the average insurance premium increase has been 32 per cent and living costs rose 300 per cent.

Between 1949 and 1964 inclusive, premiums rose 25 per cent, living costs 36 per cent and claims payments 60 per cent.

In the same period, Saskatchewan government insurance premiums went up 65 per cent.

He attacked the Saskatchewan plan, only one of its kind in North America, saying if it was introduced wholesale into B.C. the good risk driver would pay more, not less, than the free enterprise system.

"The cause of higher insurance rates is the irresponsibility of the minority in driving habits plus inflation affecting the cost of repairs, medical and other costs which in turn is caused by the loud-mouthed demands of a few irresponsible major labor leaders," he said.

"Their extremely selfish and incredible demand is give us more but everybody else hold the line.

"Our message to them is—you hold the line on wages and we'll guarantee to keep insurance rates in line with the accident rate which is just plain shocking."

Mr. Harbord said 4,800 persons were killed and 150,000 injured in traffic accidents in Canada last year.

He recommended mandatory jail terms for impaired driving; mandatory jail terms for driving while under suspension, and increasing the minimum driving age to 18 from 16.

CD Takes Look At Boat Rescue

By PETE LOUDON

The British Columbia civil defence organization will give immediate attention to formation of a small boat rescue service in this area.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace, whose office has jurisdiction over the provincial CD framework said today, "This is something civil defence will start looking into."

The idea was voiced earlier this week by department store manager Courtney Haddock, a past commodore of the Victoria Power Boat Squadron.

Mr. Haddock said he would take the matter up with his organization.

Mr. Wallace said he will be in touch with Mr. Haddock to further the idea.

The need for a volunteer group of experienced boat owners was underlined this week by the widespread search for three Victoria youths who failed to return from a boat trip to Chatham Island last Saturday midnight.

Coast Guard, police and private searchers, aided by Air-Sea Rescue planes and helicopters recovered the boat used by the trio, who are feared drowned.

Both Mr. Haddock and Mr. Wallace say a volunteer rescue squadron would be invaluable in future sea searches. But they agree such a group must recruit men who are expert boat operators, who are familiar with off shore waters and communications systems.

Mr. Wallace said the provincial civil defence organization already has formed a CD group of private aircraft operators. He said the role of CD is closely related to all forms of civil disaster and it is well suited to the job of co-ordinating a citizens' marine patrol with the coast guard and the military search and rescue centre at Sea Island.

He said also that CD already possesses communications and rescue equipment which could be made available to organized sea searchers.

Highway Collision Sends 2 to Hospital

Campbell MacDonald, 44, of 1421 Harrison St., Victoria, is in "satisfactory" condition at Chemainus General Hospital following an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway Friday.

MacDonald was a passenger in a car driven by Wayne Harbord, 19, of Duncan, which collided with another car at the intersection of Fullers Road, nine miles north of Duncan.

Harbord was injured when thrown through the windshield. He suffered leg and head injuries but is in satisfactory condition.

Driver of the second car, Robert Norman Murray, Powell River, told RCMP his sports car was struck broadside from the rear as he attempted a left turn into Fullers Road.

He said his car was spun around on the highway.

The Harbord vehicle went over the bank at the side of the highway, into a rock pile, and came to rest against a telephone pole.

Campbell did not regain consciousness until several hours later.

Murray escaped injury in the crash in which damage to both cars was estimated at $1,800.

Atheist Win After the Din?

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

Tories scream,
New Democrats dream.
Grits groan
And Socreds moan.

But when the election is over next week there is a good chance the Christian Atheists will have won.

That is what the serious young politicians at the University of Victoria fear. They are earnestly campaigning for the model parliament to be held on campus Feb. 4 and 5.

Christian Atheists claim to be just as serious about politics as the followers of the old-line parties.

But Pete Gibson, a 19-year-old arts student who is their president, says:

"We want to show that politics can be fun. To do that we have to be different."

That's why they call themselves Christian Atheists.

Their platform in this election is different too. It consists of planks taken from famous Canadian elections of the last century.

★

The issues they will argue are long ago scandals and charges of domination of Canada by the United States.

Says Pete: "We want to show that things have changed very little in this country over the years."

The only matter on which the Christian Atheists agree with the other political groups is that Uvic students are not interested in politics.

Susan Humphries, president of the Liberal Club, says, "They don't give a damn about Viet Nam; or any other political issue for that matter."

She will be overjoyed if 20 per cent of the students vote in the election for the model parliament, the first at Uvic.

Douglas MacAdams, her opposite number in the Progressive Conservative Club, agrees with her. He says the reason for the apathy is that "Uvic is a nice place where civil servants can send their daughters.

"The result is there is no academic ferment and no political ferment. There is a general preoccupation with passing tests and getting a degree. No one thinks much about anything apart from their courses."

Liberals in this election are advocating admission of Red China to the UN, a reduction of the voting age to 19, more money for higher education and promotion of bilingualism in Canada to foster national unity

The Tories want to see Quebec treated like any other province and say it has "no special status." They also advocate a royal commission to study functional illiteracy and under-education. Specifically they advocate a national Canadian university that would provide an "academic focal point" for Canada and be bilingual.

★

Percy Austin, of the New Democrats, says they think the BNA Act should be revised to give more power and responsibility to the provinces and the Criminal Code should be liberalized. In foreign affairs they would like to see Canada adopt a "semi-neutral" position and move to take over leadership of "the smaller non-committed powers."

George Davis says the Social Credit Club advocates monetary reform. He says they think the Bank of Canada should create credit to take care of any future deficit financing.

Socreds also want the UN Charter to be enforced so that any nation delinquent in its annual contribution should be kicked out. They also think Canada should provide foreign assistance only to countries that promote birth-control programs.

A campaign meeting for the election will be held at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Students' Union Building. Voting will be next Friday.

Young-in-Heart Show Takes Over the Plaza

NEW YORK — The Persian Room of the Plaza Hotel is favored, for the most part by elegant, sophisticated couples, who enjoy fine food, an excellent band and top star entertainment. The bouncy uninhibited followers of the "beat" have their own jazz haunts where they throw their youthful energy into the modern dances as if there were no tomorrow.

Damaske

All this was changed last week when the 80-year-old Sears Company joined the "Youthquake" with a kicky young fashion show arranged for fashion writers attending the New York Couture Group Press Week. Within a short period of time each Sears store (including Canadian branches) will have set up a special Junior Bazaar to take care of this tremendous swing to young fashions.

Screens, decked with huge long-petalled white daisies, formed a fresh, appropriate backdrop for the fresh, long-legged, lean, pace-setting under-20 models.

PLAYS PART

We saw many faces of this "under-20 influential", who loves fads and gimmicks, and has the determination to be as different as everyone else is. She's a Courreges girl one minute, a granny the next. Whatever role she's playing, she is it . . . to the utmost. Her skirts are short, shorter, shortest. She adores color . . . the madder the combo, the better.

Pink is a favorite but not a pale, little-girl pink. It's a gay geranium, teamed with grass green, or acid yellow. She wears baby dresses, and smocks with a disarmingly innocent air. She's mad for the poor boy look, in everything from dresses to swimsuits. Her hemlines are flippy . . . skirts and pants rest on the hips.

Many of the designs featured for Sears new Junior Bazaar are creations of designers hardly out of their teens themselves.

Polly Bergen, who is headlining at the Persian Room sang an hour for us after dinner.

Certainly a star in the entertainment world today, she not only has a wonderful voice but she looks the part of a star . . . beautiful, animated and dressed to perfection for the spotlight. For the first portion of her program she wore a clinging gown of silver sequins which appeared to be shading from pale dawn silver to dark night silver. Her second gown, in vibrant electric blue, sparkled as she went from table to table. Both gowns were designed by Scassi of New York, who is a Canadian and began his career in Montreal.

Davidow presented a collection to delight the eye with distinctive fabrics and undated styling. Many of the beautiful woollens are imported from England and Scotland and are so right in weight, coloring and styling for the more conservative good taste of the women of our own part of the world. The classic uncluttered lines of the suits and coats have a timeless elegance.

Misty subtle shadings rather than bold brilliance flatter the woman who has left her very young years behind her. Skirts have an ease of movement . . . whether pleated or gracefully seamed. Jackets are tailored with couture precision . . . understated styling, but always in impeccable taste. Many are buttoned in brass and some have luscious leather buttons with soft leather sash belts en tone. Detail interest is often created by unusual pocket flaps and geometric inserts of self-fabric.

FASHION FAVORITE

Lawrence of London has blazed a trail for raincoats. Once considered utilitarian, rainwear now proudly paces the path of high fashion. Beautiful fabrics of all kinds are now weatherproofed to allow a sudden shower to be a thing of joy.

Pure silk taffeta in imaginative patterns, pure silk broadcloth in a 15-color palette, fine whipcord, Irish linen, worsted wool jersey and pure silk rough-textured tweeds will remain crisply fresh during spring and summer showers. —well aware of today's gad-about schedule.

Lawrence of London has built the new collection specifically to fit travel needs. Packable, versatile, climate-crossing, no-weight fabrics are all a part of this recipe. Upper bracket in every way, the Lawrence of London raincoat collection stands out . . . geared for travelling, elegant for cities or practical for country, they are beautifully made in tremendously exciting fabrics.

I saw Ginger Rogers in "Hello Dolly" at the St. James Theatre . . . what a gal! We all know she is no longer an ingenue but she looks marvelous and romped around the stage with all the energy and bounce of a young gal. I did not see the play with Carol Channing, so for me Ginger will always be "Dolly."

Late one evening a group of us went to "Le Club" as guests of Oleg Cassini and here we saw this slender elegant designer dance to his heart's content. There is always a glimpse of his prowess as a dancer when he commentates his show but at this intimate club he really is GO . . . GO . . . GO! The clubs are small . . . the dance floors minute . . . the music blaring . . . the dances wild . . . what a city!

The mood is light and lively . . . at left is seen a coat-dress in window-pane checked white fabric, with collar insert and bow of a tiny flower print in dark cotton. At right is a sprightly textured cotton knit dress that has a striped bodice in red and white, like a French seaman's middy. The navy skirt is bright with shiny brass buttons. Both are part of the Junior Bazaar collection of Sears.

Discrimination Spoils Career

MONTREAL (CP) — "Being a woman is still a big handicap," said Mrs. J. M. Minifie, wife of the CBC's Washington correspondent, on a visit here.

A professional portrait painter, Mrs. Minifie says she has often lost a commission when the subject finds out she is a woman. "They don't even look at my work. As soon as they find out I'm a woman, that's it."

Clubwomen's News

Nominated—Mrs. C. C. Riach, regent, was nominated as councillor to the National Chapter IODE by the Royal Roads Chapter IODE at the recent meeting in the Victoria Avenue home of Mrs. J. C. F. Blowey. Nominated for councillors of the Provincial Chapter were Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, Mrs. B. T. Shaw and Mrs. Riach. A corsage and life membership in the chapter was presented to Mrs. M. Zabel who is leaving for a tour. Letters from the chapter's adopted schools at Williams Harbor and Kleena Kleen were read by educational convener Miss Helen Rattray. Services convener Mrs. Shaw noted that a hamper had been sent to a needy family. Centennial projects were discussed and voted on by the members.

Guest Speaker—In 10 years, the computer population in the United States has grown from 300 to 30,000, it was noted by Peter Darling when he addressed the Victoria University Women's Club at their recent meeting in the faculty lounge. Mr. Darling, director of the computer centre of the University of Victoria, noted that the modern computer is just coming of age and is much speedier and much more compact than earlier models. Mr. Darling outlined the role of the computer in the present community and business, and also in education. He gave the example of the computer being put to work in analyzing and examining the marks of first-year university students to learn if entrance requirements are correct. He also listed the future opportunities of jobs for university students and high school graduates as being almost limitless. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. A. H. Cameron and thanked by Mrs. H. H. Macartney. Following the meeting, coffee was served by the social committee, headed by convener Mrs. T. C. Evans.

GIRL GUIDES

Bowker District—The annual meeting of the Bowker District Girl Guides will be held in the Oak Bay Guide Hall at 8 p.m. on Tuesday. Meeting will be chaired by recently appointed district commissioner, Mrs. V. A. Smith. The affair is open to guiders, local association members and parents of guides or brownies.

A crepy neck or a double chin can make a fairly young woman look a lot older than she is. Exercise and diet (if overweight is present) and good posture, plus regular lubrication, can add greatly to the beauty of the neck. Do today's exercise. Stand or sit with your hands on your hips. Make circles with your head, reaching as far in each direction as you can. Circle first in one direction and then the other.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

I must tell you about a most attractive cape suite made out of hand-loomed fabric from Scotland. Of course in Scotland, capes are considered standard dress. Capes can be made very tailored as well as full-length and very dressy. The most frustrating thing about them is trying to keep them on your shoulders when you slip your arms out of them in order to be more comfortable while driving a car or shopping or whatever.

The clever idea I saw was a finished strip of fabric about 6 inches long and 1½ inches wide with a buttonhole at each end. Under each side of the fronts, just below the collar was a button where the tab could easily be buttoned.

With this little tab buttoned on, you could slip your arms out of the cape and the cape would still hang nicely on your shoulders. These little things that seem so simple, can often add much enjoyment to wearing a garment.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY

Vent: a finished opening in a garment, usually found at the centre back or side seams of coats or jackets.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Big Gamble!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY I know you aren't running a Lonely Hearts Club, but I've nothing to lose but a five-cent stamp, so here goes. I'd like you to help me find a wife. I am 50 years old, never been married and I'm in excellent health. I'm a retired CPO (RCN), get a lifetime pension, have money in the bank and some sure income property. I own a nice little cabin in 12 acres, deep in the woods near a mountain stream. I love to hunt and fish. My wife must be the outdoor type. If she's never skinned a rabbit or filleted a fish, she should be willing to learn. Don't send me any widows with kids, or women under 40. I'm too old to start raising a family, and I don't care to finish raising somebody else's. She doesn't have to look like Sophia Loren as long as she's strong and healthy. Enclosed is my picture. (I look short because I'm standing next to a redwood tree, but I am actually 5 ft. 10 and weigh 180). I'd appreciate any leads you can give me. By the way you don't happen to be single, do you?

WILLING TO GAMBLE

DEAR WILLING Don't gamble on strangers. If you want to take chances, the risk is great enough when you marry someone you know. No, I don't happen to be single, but I wouldn't qualify anyway because I've never skinned a rabbit and am not willing to learn.

DEAR ABBY My fiance's mother is going into the hospital for at least a week. She has five children. Three of them are young and the two eldest are boys so, naturally, they can't be expected to cook and clean and take care of the little ones. I am in Grade 12 and I hold an after-school job. I offered to stay at my future mother-in-law's home and take charge of things while she is in hospital. She said she thought it was a wonderful idea, but my own mother says she doesn't like the idea at all. What's wrong with it? I already asked if I could be let off from my after-school job for about a week, and was told it would be okay. My fiance and I are trustworthy. He is also in Grade 12 and we could go to school and come back together. Besides, I think the experience would be good for me. I would like your opinion.

ENJOYS RESPONSIBILITY.

DEAR ENJOYS: Your motives may be the highest, but I think your "future mother-in-law" had better find her own replacement. If for no other reason than because your own mother doesn't like your plan.

DEAR ABBY I have been married for seven months and have to put up with about as much crabbing from my husband as I am going to. Here is the problem. My 27-year-old "baby" wants me to wash his back. He claims his mother washed it for him every day when he was home. We have gotten into several fights over this. I don't need anybody to wash my back and I don't see why he needs somebody to wash his. He's just lazy. He claims he has an old back injury and that's why he can't do it himself, but I've seen him put more strain on his back than it takes to wash it. Any suggestions?

NO BACK WASHER.

DEAR NO: Give him the "brush," the kind with a nice long handle on it. And don't forget the soap. (Soft.)

DEAR ABBY "X" and I were secretly married in a civil ceremony in a neighboring province during our freshman year at college. That was in 1964. We never really lived together except for one weekend and a night now and then. It was very unsatisfactory, and we both soon realized it was a mistake, so we just broke off. Now I have met someone else and I am serious about him, but "X" doesn't want to give me a divorce because he's afraid his parents will find out that he was married and there will be trouble. He needs their financial help to finish college and doesn't want to anger them. How can this be handled without publicity? We mean nothing to each other.

SHORT MARRIAGE.

DEAR SHORT: You need legal advice. Trust a lawyer to help you. There is even a possibility that an annulment is in order instead of a divorce.

STAFF FROM LAVAL UNIVERSITY

French Summer Course at UVIC

For the second year in succession, the University of Victoria will offer a seven-week summer course in the French language. This year's course will be held from July 4 to August 19 under the direction of M. Claude Rochette of Laval University. All instructors and monitors will be from the same university.

Using the latest oral-aural method, the course will utilize tapes and pictures prepared by the research centre of Saint Cloud, Paris, so that students will be able to quickly learn the rhythms and intonations of everyday speech.

Students will be required to buy their own tape at $2.60 for the non-credit course. French will be spoken at all times with French-speaking staff directing conversation at meal times, in lounge areas, and during organized activities that will include film showings, sing-songs, soirees, musicales and theatricals.

Minimum entrance requirement is the equivalent of university entrance French. On the first day, an oral test will place students in appropriate groups.

A certificate of attendance will be issued upon request to all who complete the program.

Single and double rooms will be available at Margaret Newton Hall for students wishing to "live in".

Double accommodation will be $300 a person and single $310. All meals will be taken in the campus cafeteria. Those not living on the campus will pay $160 for instruction and will be encouraged to take one meal a day in the Maison Francaise dining room.

A certain number of bursaries of $50 and $100 will be available for Canadian students and teachers and applications for these should be submitted before May 1 to the university's registrar, Prof. R. R. Jeffels. Course registrations should be received by the registrar no later than March 31.

The tall lighted flambeaux behind her remind Miss Linda Douma of the days when she visited Hawaii as part of her Miss Canada tour. Her admiring escort, Mr. Gary Perkins, is quite content to wait as Linda prepares to don her swim cap and plunge into the waters of the heated pool.

The routine of another working day behind them, some of the high-rise apartment dwellers get together for a little good-natured spoofing before taking their turn on the picturesque diving platform. Left to right, they are Miss Agnes Nicol, Mr. Harold Potentier, Mr. Erwin Felchner, Mrs. Felchner, Miss Margaret Smith, Mr. Cliff Rolfe and Mr. Jim Chaney.

Swimming by Starlight

High-rise apartments with their cosy heated rooms wouldn't appear to be breeding places for Spartan exercisers . . . at least, not at first glance. Yet a recent visit to one such downtown building this month gave ample evidence that the residents enjoy more daily setting-up sessions than most people in town. Each night, a small army of them descends on the building's open-air pool, ready for a communal dunking.

All age groups find a common denominator in the enjoyment they receive, as they plunge into the heated depths of the pool and exchange good-natured repartee with their neighbors. Even in January, when Victoria temperatures often slide downwards with the rapidity of a skier on the slopes of Green Mountain, the nightly dunking is something few of them would miss.

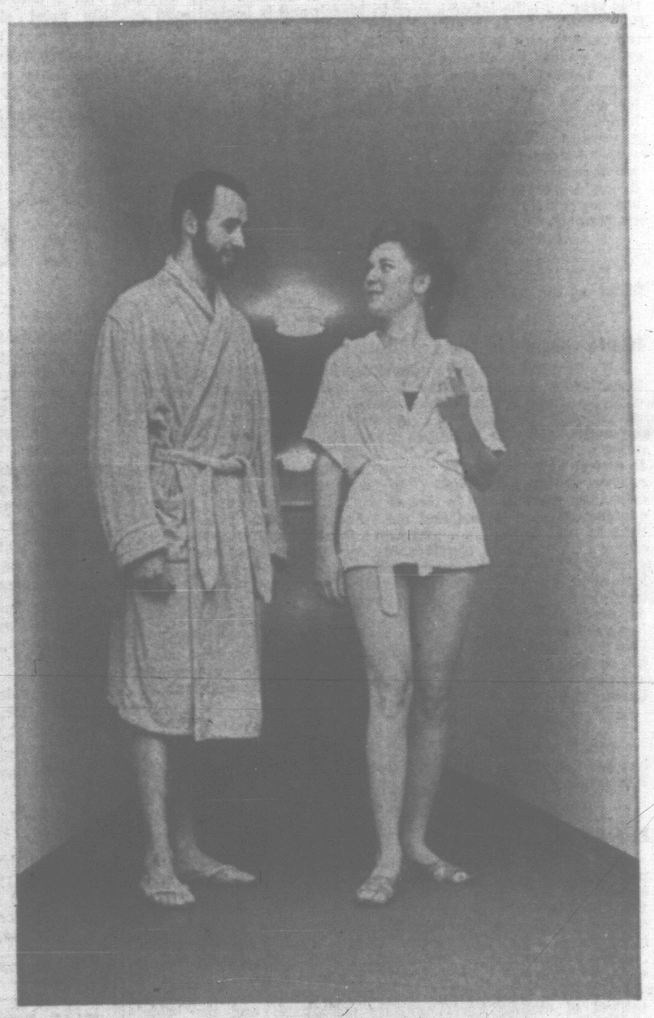

Who can blame them? With the ceiling of star-studded sky above them and flickering flambeaux edging the pool, the night swimmers can close their eyes and imagine themselves in a southern paradise . . . until it comes time to step ashore!

Even daily swimmers now and again fall prey to a cold bug and have to be content to stay on the sidelines! Impatient 'victims,' left to right, Mrs. G. C. Oswell, Mrs. R. M. Woollatt, Mr. Woollatt, Miss Winnifred Ellis and Mr. Heber Lant, receive commiserations from their buddies in the pool. They are, left to right, Miss Alison Maude, Mr. E. J. Jewers, Mr. Bill Marriott (treading water), Mrs. Erwin Felchner and Mr. Felchner.

When the water's warm and the company congenial, it's easy to forget that the outside temperature isn't exactly what you'd order for a daily plunge. These regular pool-users are retired banker, Mr. Arthur B. Young and Mrs. Evelyn Osborne. Ardent advocates of a daily dunking for good health, Mr. Young is a spry 78-year-old while his swimming partner is probably the most lithesome 80-year-old to ever grace a pool.

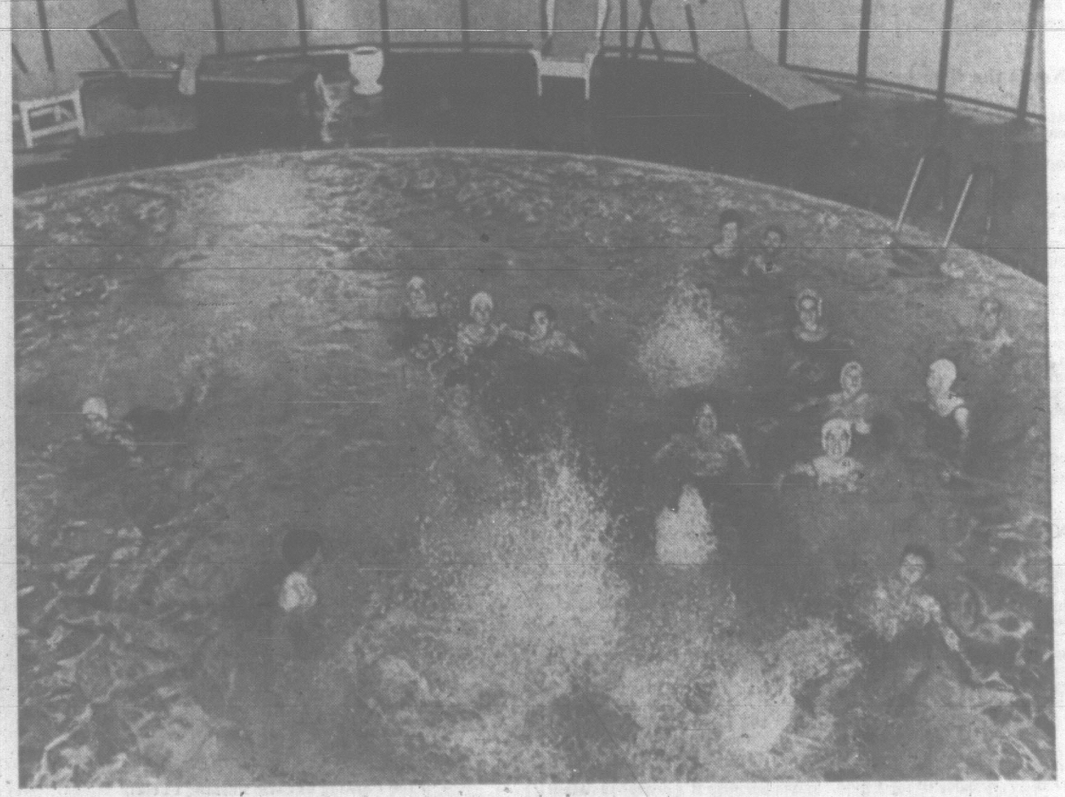

On their way to the outside pool, two neighbors meet and exchange greetings. Seen walking down the corridors of the main floor are Mr. Frank Tovey and Miss Charmaine Armstrong.

The swim over, residents are delighted when the operators of the high-rise apartment building, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chaney invite them to the community lounge where the refreshed residents can speed up their circulation with tasty tidbits and warming Irish coffee. In explanation, it should be reported that the party is not a nightly occurrence but a special bonus for the stalwart January swimmers.

As the sounds of splashing and laughter rise upwards, many a resident's window is opened so that the occupant can enjoy a view like this one. And, of course, the enjoyment proves contagious. Practically each evening finds another future devotee donning swimgear and heading for the star-kissed waters of the pool.

Handsome rain-repellers for our manly males . . .

Here's one thing we'll never understand if we live to be a hundred . . . why do so many men . . . otherwise well-dressed . . . continue to wear such crummy-looking raincoats? . . . If this has occurred to you too . . . in relation to the man in your life . . . we suggest you give him a gentle nudge in the direction of Wilson's . . . where raincoats for the Stronger Sex are superb . . . if we may use that term . . . By Junex of Sweden there are coats of terylene and fine Egyptian cotton . . . navy or oyster . . . with bold check linings . . . One navy coat even has a snap-in quilted lining for extra warmth . . . Then, of course, there are world-famous Burberrys . . . Handsome cotton gabardines by Rodex of London . . . English coats of yarn dyed cotton with plain satin lining . . . Also showerproof, and designed for year-round wear are 100% wool gabardine coats by Aquascutum, Rodex and Warren K. Cook . . . names to conjure with in the world of male attire . . . A dressy executive style coat with set-in sleeves and flap pockets, come in brown, blue or gray . . . others are balmacan styles with raglan sleeves . . . Prices for these wool gabardines range from $85 to $145 . . . W. & J. Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

You can't tell a color by its name any more . . . "Caviar" and "Martini" are new terms for plain old black and tan.

Choice new furniture at Home. . . .

Just a day or two before Christmas . . . really too late for most people contemplating furniture for gift-giving . . . some beautiful new things arrived at Home Furniture's Gallery . . . A number of those delightful little Victorian chairs, for instance, that we never tire of telling you about, and which to see is to fall in love with . . . They're solid mahogany, hand carved . . . rich velvet or tapestry covers in lovely colors . . . Some have antique gold or silver finishes . . . and they come with or without arms . . . One beauty has a high, narrow back . . . These chairs have myriad uses and are very elegant . . . You'll love the little English sewing chairs too . . . Some very fine secretaire desks in walnut or mahogany, with combined bookcase top, drop lid, serpantine front are also new . . . and we assure you this type of desk is very hard to get hold of . . . They're imported, of course, like most of the Gallery's fine traditional furniture . . . and if you'd like such a piece for your home, do go in and look at them . . . Even if you're just in a browsing mood, the Gallery will prove rewarding! . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

When a-travelling you go . . .

It seemed to us, when we stopped by at Paulin's the other day, that just about everyone in Victoria is travel-bound . . . and furthermore, that most of them are doing it through Paulin's . . . (which isn't surprising when you know the brand of personalized travel service Paulin's mete out) . . . What did surprise us though, is that people have already started to book for 1967 holiday trips! . . . Take those two wonderful P & O-Orient Lines cruises . . . The Great Barrier Reef Cruise and Cherry Blossom Circle Pacific Holiday . . . The former is already under way for this year . . . the latter leaves in March and is booked solid . . . But if you'd like to be among those happy cruisers next year . . . the time to talk to Paulin's is now! . . . The Great Barrier Reef cruise aboard the Chusan leaves Vancouver on January 7th, 1967 . . . Goes to Honolulu, Suva, Nuku-Alofa, Auckland, Sydney, Singapore, Hong Kong, Kobe and Yokohama . . . returning on March 5th . . . The Romantic Cherry Blossom cruise, on the Line's flagship, Canberra, leaves on February 27th . . . takes you around the Pacific to the Orient and the Antipodes . . . and sounds simply fabulous! . . . 50 fascinating days! . . . Tour prices are inclusive of shore excursions with experienced escorts . . . If you'd like to know more, drop in to Paulin's and ask for brochures . . . George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government St., 382-9168.

Haute couture in the grand manner . . .

We dropped in to the studio of dress designer Ursula Redwood last Monday . . . found her in the midst of preparing her new collection for a spring fashion show . . . Some of these garments are already completed . . . others still a gleam in her eye, as she mulls over the beautiful materials from which she draws much of her inspiration . . . We could tell you reams about Mrs. Redwood and the smart women she dresses in Victoria, Vancouver, Seattle and points even farther afield . . . but what we especially want to say is that if you'd like a beautiful, exclusive evening gown, designed and made for you alone, this is a good time to talk to her . . . and don't think it will cost the world, either . . . probably considerably less than a good ready-made dress . . . One of the many things Mrs. Redwood's customers love about her clothes is their comfort . . . "You feel as if you're inside your clothes, not that they're on top of you," is a frequent customer comment . . . And here's news for home sewers: Mrs. Redwood is keeping her studio open every Friday evening from 7 to 9 . . . to give expert advice to do-it-yourselfers who need a bit of help . . . She'll also draft a pattern and cut out your garment for a modest fee . . . Phone for an appointment . . . Ursula Redwood, 1008 Fort St., 385-5833.

Eaton's plan the loveliest weddings . . .

One of the glamour spots in town is Eaton's Bridal Salon . . . presided over by knowlegeable and widely experienced bridal consultant, Mrs. Jewsbury . . . but what you may not know is that the Bridal Salon and Gift Registry . . . in tandem . . . will take over and arrange everything pertaining to a wedding . . . from the day a girl says "yes" to the day day she says "I do" . . . and beyond! . . . This includes invitations, cards, flowers, cars, wedding cake, reception, honeymoon trip . . . everything you can think of, in fact . . . (and we won't even mention the subject of clothes for everybody concerned, and the bride's trousseau . . . which goes without saying) . . . It's a complete wedding service which makes the occasion one of unalloyed joy . . . instead of the tense, unrelaxed affair it could well be . . . The consultant will even go to home or church to put the finishing touches on gown and veil before the bride starts down the aisle . . . to make sure everything's perfect! . . . Gift Registry Consultant Mrs. Robertson will help select and plan everything for the couple's new home . . . keep a record of the bride's choices and needs to guide donors of wedding gifts . . . If there's a wedding in your future, start planning now with . . . Eaton's Bridal Salon and Gift Registry, 382-7141.

Expect to see more colored bridal ensembles this year. Palest pink, blue, yellow, lilac . . . for gowns, veil and accessories.

Now's the time to acquire a new fur . . .

Nothing does quite so much to complete a woman's ensemble as a really good, well-designed "little" fur . . . be it jacket, stole, cape, boa or even collar . . . It also provides luxurious warmth . . . is wearable most seasons of the year . . . and does wonderful things for a woman's morale, as you don't need us to tell you! . . . What we will tell you, though, is that Scuby's January fur sale is in full swing . . . Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Johnston, 4422 Majestic Drive, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Ann, to Mr. David James Napper, 3400 Browning Street. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Feb. 12 at 2:30 p.m. in St. Aidan's United Church. Rev. A. G. McLeod will officiate. (Meyers Studio.)

Cameo 'Something Old' Talisman For Vows on Salt Spring Island

An heirloom cameo brooch fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Dorothy Elizabeth Beech, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Dan Bruce Harford in St. George's Anglican Church, Salt Spring Island. The brooch, engraved with the year 1842, was a gift of her grandmother, Mrs. S. P. Beech, Ganges.

The bride's floor-length gown of white peau de soie was styled with a fitted bodice featuring lily point sleeves. An added accent was the appliqued lace yoke trimming the around neckline. Lace medallions starred the skirt, which was fashioned with a straight front panel and soft pleats at the back extending from a bow at the waistline. Her chapel veil misted from a coronet of pearls and rhinestones and she carried a bouquet of red roses and freesias.

Archdeacon R. B. Horsefield officiated at the double-ring service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril L. Beech of Ganges and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart B. Harford of Qualicum Beach.

As the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, the congregation sang "Lead Us Heavenly Father." During the signing of the register they sang "O Perfect Love." Mrs. V. C. Best was organist.

The bride's attendants, the Misses Ruth Satermo and Barbara Newman, were in identical gowns of cranberry red velvet, with matching wedding ring headpieces, edged with veils. They carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

Little Cynthia McLean was flower girl for her aunt in a frock of red velvet, accented with a white collar banded with lace.

Her headpiece was a red velvet circlet, trimmed with a veil. She carried white pompon chrysanthemums in a colonial bouquet.

David Clark, Courtenay, was best man. Ushering the guests were the bride's brother, Brian Beech, and Simon Jones.

The bride's mother made the three-tier wedding cake, surrounded by silver candelabra, which centred the head table at the reception in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall. Bruce McLaren proposed the toast to the bride.

A Hawaiian pink suit of woven wool was the choice of the new Mrs. Harford for travelling on honeymoon to Regina, where the couple will make their home. She complemented the outfit with accessories of brown and a white corsage.

No Candles Needed To Complete Setting

By Penny Saver

There is nothing more romantic than dining by candlelight. The flickering glow of a candle sets a very quiet, serene atmosphere, either at dinner, in the sitting room, patio, or at the pool side. Nothing could top this setting better than soft music lulling in the background.

Today, you don't even need a candle to complete this setting. In one shop, I've found a kit which contains 100 24-hour wicks, four plastic disks to keep the wicks suspended in a fluid which you prepare yourself, and a leaflet containing instructions and decorator hints.

The fluid is a combination of water and oil. Any ordinary kitchen oil will do. One ounce of this oil will burn for 10 hours.

All you have to do is put some of this mixture into your own crystal, suspend the wick on top, and light the wick. You see only the flame.

For this reason, this type of "lighting" can be used in floral arrangements, or any other way imaginable. This kit sells for just $2.

A suggested receptacle for this oil burner is an exaggerated brandy-snifter. This extra-large bowl of clear glass sells for $3.95. A whole fleet of wicks could be burned in this.

It could also be used as a rose bowl. Why not float a rose, and some flaming wicks? The effect would be very attractive indeed.

One rose bowl, made in Italy of tinted blue crystal, sells for $3.98.

Taking the phrase "burning the candle at both ends" in its literal sense, you can purchase a U-shaped candle that actually does burn at both ends. Selling for $2.98, these come in semi-circular holders of plaster. The candles themselves are available in white, blue, orange, and green.

In the mood for candlelight and roses? Give Penny a call at 382-3131.

SIX GIRLS TO 10,000 MEN

The Odds Are All in Their Favor

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — There's a place in this mad world where six American girls have the choice of 10,000 men for dates.

The half-dozen are the only American girls on the ballooning U.S. air base of Tan Son Nhut, a key to military lifelines to the war.

The girls walk past so many tough, good-looking guys every day they get so they don't see them any more. The same can't be said for the guys, who see very few female "round eyes" in an Oriental world.

How do the girls feel about it?

"Oh, we survive," says Joan Ray of Greenville, Pa.

She works for the deputy chief of intelligence and has the soft voice and buttoned-up lip to go with the delicate job. Before this she worked as secretary for four years in the Atomic Energy Commission and is so top-secret conscious she won't even give her age. It's probably around a cozy 25.

"You get used to it," says Joan.

Her roommate, Janie Coffman, 27, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, interjected: 'It's a manless world anyhow. Those boys work so hard all day and part of the night they're bushed. So do we and we're bushed."

Janie is private secretary to Lt.-Gen. Joseph Moore, air force commander in Viet Nam, and as such sees every VIP (Very Important Person) who shows up.

"I wrote my little old grandmother in Council Bluffs about meeting Bob Hope and senator so-and-so and lots of others and she didn't think much of it," the pert, petite Janie observed. "But when I was home on leave and told her I met Perry Mason and Canadian-born Raymond Burr she got real excited and impressed."

The Iowa girl confesses to keeping an eye out for the right man but the trouble is there are too darn many around with too darn many things to do.

St. Mary's Guild Reduces Debt

Of the $3,822.69 raised by the St. Mary's Church Parish Guild, it was reported by guild president Mrs. Keith Dixon that $2,700 had been given to the church to reduce the debt on the church hall. The announcement was made at the annual meeting and election of officers, held in the parish hall.

Mrs. Dixon also reported on other commitments of the guild to the church; buying supplies, repairs and assisting at church functions. Mrs. G. Tuttle reported on the guild's adopted Korean child.

Rector Canon Hywel J. Jones conducted the election of the new executive. Elected were Mrs. Dixon, president; Miss P. J. Campbell, vice-president; Miss V. E. French, recording secretary; Mrs. R. B. McDougall, corresponding; Mrs. A. H. Bamford, treasurer.

Mrs. H. Weldon and the rector's wife, Mrs. Jones, were named as honorary presidents.

MOTHER OF YEAR

Lives Life Of Selfless Giving

By PAT DUFOUR

Possessed of a puckish humor and a generous heart that knows no boundaries, it's easy to see why every man, woman and child of her home-town of Greenville, Ill., is in love with Mrs. Addie Carroll.

Here, with her niece, Mrs. Dollie Richart, of St. Louis, Miss., Mrs. Carroll grins impishly as she gives her recipe for bringing up 12 children successfully:

"Grits, grass and greenbacks!"

Not that Mrs. Carroll has ever had to worry about an over abundance of the latter item. Married and widowed twice, both her husbands were Methodist ministers in Illinois and, as she describes it, "the material earnings were pretty lean."

Small in stature, this spunky little woman wears her 89 years with the flair of a champion, probably because she's tackled life with a faith and courage that any Amazon would envy.

QUICK ADDITIONS

Her first husband died when her youngest child was a baby of seven weeks. She added to her family in a hurry by marrying a widower, who was faced with the task of bringing up five children and caring for his ailing mother.

She recalls, "The children all looked as if they were starving. I sent my husband to the store and told him to buy a bushel of beans. It was Thanksgiving when we were married, yet that great mess of beans didn't see us through the winter, they had such large holes to fill!"

With dedication, Mrs. Carroll nursed her mother-in-law for 22 years except for an eight-month spell when she herself was confined to bed, fighting and winning a battle against tuberculosis.

Now, although any of her children would welcome her into their homes, this courageous little woman prefers to keep her own home and independence. "I know it's better not to have a mother-in-law around the house." The rather terse statement is softened with a glint of that often-present smile.

NEW HOME

When her second husband died, Mrs. Carroll moved into the house at Greenville which she and her husband had bought, in preparation for the day he retired from the ministry.

Money still being one of the scarcest commodities of her life, Mrs. Carroll decided to utilize her talents in rounding out the family's budget. She went to work, doing what she knew best, nursing and caring for others.

Addie Carroll began by caring for her aged neighbors but soon found her forte, looking after mothers and their new babies when they came back to their homes.

Reluctantly retired at 89, Mrs. Addie Carroll still finds plenty to do. In addition to running her large home and tending her garden, she busies herself writing long and informative letters to her many relatives.

She must have done an outstanding job because, at the urging of Greenville, she was nominated "Mother of the Year" for the state of Illinois in 1956.

Her niece, Mrs. H. H. Youson of Richmond Avenue, and her sister, Mrs. H. J. Armitage of Somenos Street seem to swell with pride when they tell you that the citation to Mrs. Carroll was read in the American House of Senate and noted in the minutes.

Mrs. Carroll is quick to point out that the honor conferred on her was a shared one, because the award is given, not only for personal achievement, but also for those of her children.

Reflecting the loving care which must have breathed initiative and character into their own fibre, Mrs. Carroll's children have also contributed in no small measure to the well-being of their fellow men. Her oldest son, Frank, retired with the rank of major-general from the American air force. Four daughters, Leona, Ella, Gladys and May, were school teachers. One son, Don, became a dairy and crop farmer. The other daughter, Helen, was a secretary and is now married to a judge of the supreme court of Missouri. The other sons, Bob, Stanley, Vincent, Ben and Paul, made their mark in the business world.

If Mrs. Carroll has one regret about the award given her by her state, it is that now everyone knows her age.

"Before that, no one ever thought about it. Now, everyone knows and they're reluctant to let me continue nursing them, even 'though I'm far from frail."

One of her greatest rewards appears to be the knowledge that her children were able to equip themselves for the future by obtaining a more advanced formal education than their mother.

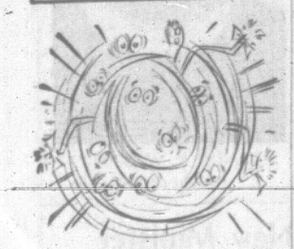

"My parents were poor farmers and I never got beyond grade eight."

But, to her family and all her friends in Illinois, Mrs. Carroll has been blessed with something more precious than a university degree . . . the courage and devotion that only a generous and enlightened heart can bring.

ASHCROFT-BARLOW VOWS

Wed In Vancouver Service

A wedding of wide interest in Victoria took place this afternoon in Hastings United Church, Vancouver. Guests travelling to Vancouver for the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Barlow and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. Collard, and Mrs. M. Dickson of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. C. Ashcroft and Peggy of Grand Centre, Alta; and Mr. Larry Ashcroft of Kingston, Ont.

Rev. J. Sorochan officiated at the ceremony, uniting Joan Barlow and Leonard C. Ashcroft.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Barlow, 2629 Millstream Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. Ashcroft of Grand Centre.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length sheath gown of white peau de soie. The empire bodice featured a high, round neckline accented by a self-fabric rose, and sleeves ending in lily points. Her scallop-edged veil misted to shoulder-length. She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses.

The groom's sister, Miss Peggy Ashcroft, was maid of honor, and bridesmaid was Miss Hilde Bruneski. They wore floor-length gowns of royal blue peau de soie; styled along empire lines. Their headpieces were roses of the same material as their dresses. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Larry Ashcroft was best man for his brother, and guests were ushered by Frank Sanregret, Jim Martineau, and Art Axani.

At the reception which followed in the IOOF Hall, Vancouver, the bride and groom cut a wedding cake with a fireman's axe. The cake was made by the bride's mother. Rex Collard proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to the United States, the bride wore a suit of navy blue wool.

Of Personal Interest

LUNCHEON GUEST

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will attend a luncheon meeting of the Men's Canadian Club, to be held in the Empress Hotel on Tuesday with the Hon. George Marler, PC, as guest speaker. That afternoon, His Honor will receive Major-General Cameron B. Ware, commandant of the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., when he makes an official call at Government House.

Pre-Ball Parties

Several parties have been arranged to precede the State Ball, to be given in Government House by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes on Thursday evening. The colorful affair will be a fitting climax to a day which will see the official opening of the third session of the 27th Legislative Assembly of British Columbia.

Thirty guests have been invited to attend a pre-ball cocktail party, to be given by the Attorney-General, Hon. R. W. Bonner, and Mrs. Bonner in their home on Norfolk Road.

Hon. Eric Martin and Mrs. Martin will be hosts at a cocktail party in their home on Middowne Road. Their guests will be Mr. Bert Price, MLA, and Mrs. Price; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Ennals, Mr. and Mrs. M. Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. C. Holland.

The Pemberton Road home of Hon. Leslie R. Peterson and Mrs. Peterson will be scene of another cocktail party. The affair will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Six out-of-town MLAs and their wives will be among the guests attending an informal cocktail party to be given by Hon. J. Donald Smith and Mrs. Smith. The affair will be held in their Fairfield Road home.

Attend Wedding

A number of Victoria guests travelled to Salt Spring Island to attend the wedding, this afternoon, of Miss Dorothy Beech and Mr. Dan Harford. They included Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McLaren and family; Mr. and Mrs. Noel Andrew, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Perry, Mr. and Mrs. E. Eggleston, Mr. and Mrs. John Knight, Mrs. Joan Holmes, Mrs. M. Pitt, Mrs. Iris Caldwell, Mrs. H. Dyck, Mrs. Wallace Grey and family, Mrs. V. Norman, Mrs. A. Robinson, the Misses Jess Robinson, Judith Harvey, Shirley Anne Entwistle, Wilma Van Deventre, Diane Hobday, Mr. John Campbell, Mr. John Strachan, Mr. Angus Stanfield, Mr. Rodney Bold, Mr. D'Arcy Delleniere, Mr. Roy Watson and Mr. David Ross. Other out-of-town guests included the groom's grandfather, Mr. J. Wingfield, Mr. Charles Wingfield and Mr. Terry Newman of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Brodie and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Bowker and family, and Mrs. C. Gladys and family of Sidney; Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Brigden of Chemainus; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thomas of Duncan; Mr. and Mrs. F. G. McMinn of Qualicum Beach; Mr. and Mrs. R. McMinn and family of Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Grey of Kamloops and Mr. Richard Morgan, Nanoose Bay, B.C.

Travels Overseas

Mrs. C. W. McCarthy, Satellite Street, will leave Tuesday on a five-week trip which will see her in Great Britain and on the continent. She will fly by jet plane to England where she will visit the International Trade Fair in Blackpool and then she will travel to Scotland and Eire. Mrs. McCarthy will also stay in Amsterdam before returning to Victoria.

Social Evening

Members of St. Margaret's School's Old Girl's Association will be entertained at a reunion and social evening in the school on Wednesday evening. Guests will be greeted by school principal, Mrs. W. D. Cobbett, and association president, Mrs. H. Lauder Ramsay. The affair is open to all former students. Slides will be shown and refreshments served in the dining room. Executive members of the association will act as serviteurs. They include Mrs. Petta-Ann Jackson, vice-president; Miss Sue Hammond, secretary; Mrs. Anne Bruker, treasurer; Miss Barbara Ruston, social convener; the Misses Charlotte Roberts and Marcia Fraser, publicity conveners and Miss Margaret Roberts, past president.

BE SMART—

The costume again . . . but this time it courts a rainy day. How else can it be seen? And colorful . . . find this bright red poplin shirt coat over the easy pindot shift, white on navy to match the red coat lining.

Victorian's Brother

Headmaster Of Charles' New School

When Prince Charles goes to a "tough" Australian school next month he will become the responsibility of a teacher who has a close association with the Victoria area.

Headmaster of exclusive Geelong Grammar School where the prince will study for three and one half months is Thomas Garnett, 50, a brother of Mrs. R. F. Thuillier, 790 Ardmore Drive, North Saanich.

Mrs. Thuillier said the Prince of Wales will attend Timbertop, an extension of Geelong school. Timbertop is located about 100 miles from Melbourne and the main school in the Snowy Mountains of the Great Dividing Range.

What type of life awaits the 18-year-old prince at the Australian school?

ALL BUT COOKING

Students are taught to be self-sufficient at Timbertop, Mrs. Thuillier said, and they are required to do virtually everything for themselves, except cooking.

Normal class routine is followed on weekdays but the boys must chop their own firewood and tend chickens, pigs and other animals kept at the school in addition to their regular schoolwork.

The students are billeted in cabins with 15 boys to each building.

Self-reliance is particularly drilled into the students at weekends and they learn by having to fend for themselves. On Friday afternoons the boys split up into groups of three or more and head off into the mountains for the weekend. They may go where they wish and do what they want on these expeditions as long as they are back in time for classes on Monday. It is a rugged, open-air life.

WEAR OLD CLOTHES

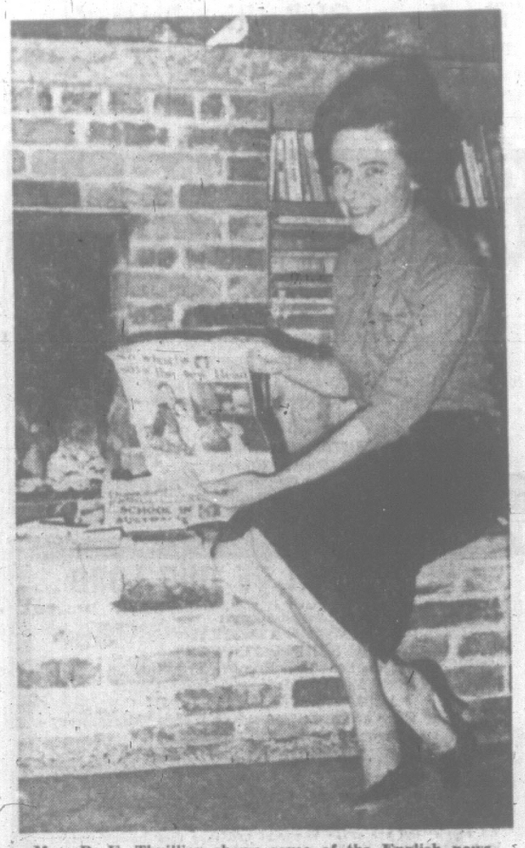

No uniforms are worn at Timbertop. In fact, the boys are encouraged to wear out their old clothes at the school.

Mrs. Thuillier's brother has been headmaster at Geelong for the past four years. He was housemaster at Charter House in England prior to the Second World War and served with the Royal Air Force during the war, attaining the rank of squadron leader. He later returned to Charter House, but was headmaster of Marlborough College, Wiltshire, for five years before accepting the position in Australia.

Mr. Garnett had considered going to another Commonwealth country, his sister said, and he considered Rhodesia.

"Then he received a letter from Geelong asking him if he could recommend a new headmaster. He recommended himself and got the job!" Mrs. Thuillier said.

Mr. Garnett visited here for four days last September on his way to England where he met the Royal Family. The announcement that Prince Charles was to attend Timbertop for one term was made shortly after Mr. Garnett's stay at Balmoral.

Mrs. R. F. Thuillier shows some of the English newspapers that carry headline stories on Prince Charles' coming enrollment in the Australian school of which her brother is headmaster.

Colorful Installation Of Colfax Rebekah Lodge

Red carnation corsages highlighted the white and pastel-toned formal gowns worn by officers of the Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1 for a recent colorful installation ceremony, held in the IOOF Hall.

Mrs. L. Rossiter was installed as noble grand. Others installed were: Vice-grand, Mrs. B. Daniels; recording secretary, Mrs. A. M. Higgs; financial secretary, Mrs. H. Lort; treasurer, Mrs. A. Wilson; right and left supporters of the noble grand, Mrs. V. Wright and Mrs. P. Kroening; right and left supporters of the vice-grand, Mrs. M. Hahn and Mrs. M. Bird; warden, Mrs. A. Merry; conductor, Mrs. G. Baker; outside guardian, Mrs. B. Fairbairn; inside guardian, Mrs. P. Copp; chaplain, Mrs. G. M. Graham; musician, Mrs. M. Silver; junior past noble grand, Mrs. E. Taylor and color bearer, Mrs. V. Howard.

District deputy president, Mrs. D. Green was installing officer. She was assisted by deputy warden, Lois Allison; deputy marshal, Ada Wilson, and deputies, Margaret Booth, Pat Blackburn, Winnie Foubister, Beatrice Allen, Alison Worboys, Margaret Johnson and Lottie Smoothy.

Escorts for the new officers were Ernie Collett, Georgie Burkholder, Lin Healey, George Laubenstein and Robert Livingston.

Mrs. V. Wright and her committee served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Eric Lauritzen, Jr., formerly Linda Anne Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Gibson, Ripon Road, who was married recently in St. John's Anglican Church. Mr. and Mrs. Lauritzen are now residing in New York City.

NEWS FROM VICTORIA CHURCHES

City Joins Millions in Prayer for Unity

Millions of Protestants and Catholics will observe this Sunday as a day of prayer for Christian unity.

In Victoria, ministers of many denominations and their followers will attend a special service in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral at 3 p.m.

Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton will give the invocation and Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo will give a blessing at the close of the service.

This is Victoria's third interdenominational service. The first was held in 1964 in Metropolitan United Church; the second in Christ Church Cathedral in 1965.

Prayers for unity will be offered by Rev. Philip Hanley, DD, Roman Catholic; Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, United; and Capt. Don McMillan, Salvation Army.

"All citizens of Greater Victoria are invited," says Monsignor O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese in Victoria.

Offerings received at the service will be devoted to famine relief in India and Pakistan.

★ ★ ★

Evensong at Christ Church Anglican Cathedral will be said in the Lady Chapel at 5:15 p.m. Sunday to enable parishioners to attend the inter-church service.

★ ★ ★

A form of service once celebrated in the old Saxon churches of Tarring Neville and Denton, Sussex, England — before William the Conqueror was born — will be followed in the Church of Our Lord Sunday.

Bishop Denys Rankilor recalls the ancient record:

"It is the custom of these villages to bring into ye churche many beautiful flowers of ye springtime, in memory of our blessed Saviour Jesus Christ and his arising from the daid."

All attending the church Sunday will be offered bouquets of daffodils, tulips and narcissus to give to friends in hospitals and rest homes.

The sower—not where the seed is sown but the Sower himself—will be the topic Sunday of Rev. H. R. Whitmore at Garden City and Wilkinson Road United Churches.

Services begin at 10 a.m. at Garden City and 11:15 at Wilkinson Road.

★ ★ ★

The Light of the World will be Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley's topic in Fairfield United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

At the evening worship he will be assisted by John Kennedy and Melody Lindstrom, members of the Fairfield Young People's Group.

Dr. Kerley's evening subject will be Christ for Today.

★ ★ ★

The new form of holy communion service, introduced at Metropolitan United Church last Sunday, will be discussed by Rev. Albert E. King this Sunday morning under the title Communion Reflections.

Mrs. Elfie Robinson, contralto, will sing Lead Me to Light (Ward-Stephens) and the Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will present the anthem Praise Ye the Lord (Karg-Elert).

At the evening worship Mrs. Robinson's solo will be This Is My Commandment (Hamblin). The Sanotuary Choir will sing Holy Art Thou (Handel) and Rev. Mr. King will speak on the subject I Believe.

★ ★ ★

Prof. Graham Reeve and the choir from Northwest Baptist Theological College will minister in word and song at the 11 a.m. service in Central Baptist Church.

Pastor Robert Holmes will speak in the evening on Is Today's Religious Reunion True Christian Unity?

"This is intended to clarify our church's position on modern-day ecumenism," he said.

★ ★ ★

Continuing his sermons on The Meaning of Congregation, Rev. Robert J. D. Morris will speak on Holy Communion and the Christian Services at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services in First United Church.

Malcolm Collver will share in the conduct of the worship.

Betty Buchan will be soloist with the choir in the rendering of the spiritual Let Us Break Bread Together and Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled (Clarke).

Rev. Marvin G. Fowler will speak on Communion Meditation at the evening worship in the chapel at 7 p.m.

★ ★ ★

Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will speak on I am the God Which Healeth Thee at the 11 a.m. service in Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort St.

Her evening subject will be The Path to Revelation.

★ ★ ★

The choir at Oak Bay United Church, directed by Robert Kroeger, will sing Jesus Shall Reign at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services.

Mrs. H. Britton will be soloist and Rev. Alexander Calder will speak on the subject Mere Chance?

★ ★ ★

How to Study the Bible—a new lesson series—will be introduced by Pastor Lloyd Mackey at the 9:45 a.m. service in Parkdale Free Evangelical Church.

At the 11:15 a.m. worship, Pastor Mackey will speak on A Study in Black and White. Mrs. Tony Vincent will be soloist.

Malachi's Unfulfilled Prophecies will be Pastor Mackey's subject at the 7 p.m.—service when the 17-voice choir will sing hymns depicting the future life of the Christian.

★ ★ ★

Rev. Murray Henderson will preach on the subject of prayer at the 11 a.m. service in Belmont United Church.

The evening service will be under the leadership of the Kairos group, convened by Mrs. Barbara Langton. Jim McCormick, secretary-treasurer of the group, will be the speaker.

Afterwards the Kairos will hold an organizational meeting.

'Shame, Don't Worry'

At the Sunday morning service in Emmanuel Baptist Church, Rev. W. J. Bingham will speak on Foundations.

Rev. D. L. Martin will discuss "Shame—Don't Worry" at the evening service, to be broadcast over CJVI.

Church Forced To Close Doors

Victoria West United Church at Fullerton and Rayner is closing for lack of support. It will hold its last service on Sunday, Jan. 29, and will then be put up for sale.

"The average attendance lately has been around 30 or 35," said Gordon Mitchell, clerk of the session for the past 25 years. "We simply couldn't carry on any longer."

Mr. Mitchell said he hopes some other church organization will purchase the building and keep it going for the benefit of the community.

"I would hate to see it left empty for a long time and then broken down."

Mr. Mitchell has been attending the Victoria West church since it was opened in December, 1912.

He said the Sunday school attendance continued high, with an average of 120 children each week. But there was little or no support from parents.

"The indifference on the part of the parents was almost complete," said Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, president of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Parsons lent his assistant, Percy Ould, to the church and he visited every one of the 80 families which had children attending the Sunday school.

"We hoped we might get 10 or so parents to come to church once in a while," he said, "but nobody came."

Mrs. Leslie Peat, superintendent of the Sunday school, said a year ago last September all parents were invited to a meeting at the church to hear about the new Sunday school curriculum.

"Only eight people came," she said.

Parents of Sunday school students were told recently that the church would have to be closed because it was impossible for the few church workers to carry on.

"The general attitude was one of indifference," Mrs. Peat said.

Last ordained minister at the church was Rev. P. V. Samson, now retired. He ministered in Victoria West from 1963 to 1965.

Film To Feature School Drop Outs

A feature-length color film concerning drop-outs in school, industry and church will be shown in the Alliance Church, 1039 Yates Street, tonight at 8.

"This film is specially geared to teen-agers and young adults," says Rev. Ted Chapman.

There will be gospel services in the church on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and on Tuesday the congregation will hold its annual banquet at 6:30 p.m.

REV. MRS. TINGLEY SAYS:

Disease Is Ugly; Health Is Beauty

Sir Oliver Lodge, the distinguished scientist, once wrote: "Man is not a body containing a spirit. Man is temporarily housed in a body while the spirit gains the experience necessary to its continual progress after it discards that old, wornout house of clay."

That is the truth as Spiritualists see it.

We know that life is not the narrow vale between two bleak eternities, one short span between the cradle and the grave. It is the starting point of our conscious existence and it continues in the etheric or spiritual world to which we all pass at death.

Life is not a wall but a door; it is not the end of existence but the beginning of existence in a new environment. We all live in a world of spirit, and eternity is not tomorrow but right now. It is all time, without beginning or end.

As man lives here so does he live in the after-life. His personality does not change. "As he thinketh so is he."

For this reason, man's mind should be filled with thoughts of love, beauty, joy and service to others; not centred on himself and what he can acquire for his own use.

★ ★ ★

Those who minister to suffering humanity can, by a constant demonstration of loving service, create an atmosphere of peace and beauty that will bring the hidden spirit into a fuller expression.

Disease is ugly; health is beauty. The mind that reaches out constantly to the spiritual for beauty, love and joy will gather precious jewels which create new life.

Man's disease springs from deep within his being—and, to heal his inner being, spiritual healing is the true and everlasting medicine. Jesus, we are told, healed a man by telling him his sins were forgiven and in so doing suggested that the disease originated in his mind.

Those who condemn Spiritualism by hearsay, without investigation, seem to think it is merely phenomena such as table-tipping, fortune-telling and the evocation of some kind of black magic.

★ ★ ★

Though psychic phenomena is part of the whole, it is merely an opening. The aim of Spiritualism is to prove survival after the death of the body and to draw all peoples together as brothers in one thought and one religion whose motto is:

"The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man."

We are told that Jesus, when living on what we call the earth plane, desired to draw all men together. He had no theologies or dogmas; the foundation of His teachings was love and brotherhood and it is surely the truest foundation of all.

Jesus was perhaps the greatest medium of all time—the medium of the spirit of God—and he left these words of comfort:

"Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more, but ye see me. Because I live ye shall live also." St. John 14:19.

Rev. Elsie Tingley, formerly of Winnipeg, has been minister of the Open Door Spiritualist Church, 1090 Cook Street, since 1951 and is acknowledged by her followers as a medium and clairvoyant of considerable power. She is assisted by her husband, George Tingley, who is also a reverend in the Spiritualist Church. Their meetings are much the same as others apart from the clairvoyant messages they give at the close.

Scott Ordaining Set for Tuesday

Canon E. W. Scott, son of Canon and Mrs. T. W. Scott of 1944 Ash Street, Victoria, will be consecrated Bishop of the Kootenay Tuesday.

He will be consecrated by Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton at a service in the chapel of the Anglican College at the University of British Columbia at 10:30 a.m.

His parents have long been connected with St. John's Anglican Church, Victoria.

The new bishop of the Kootenay succeeds Bishop William Coleman, who retired last summer because of ill health.

After graduating from UBC, Canon Scott went to Winnipeg where he taught at St. John's College and worked with the Student Christian Movement. Subsequently he was appointed executive director of the Council for Social Service and specialized in work among the Indians and Metis.

In 1964 he moved to Toronto as associate general secretary of the Council for Social Service of the Anglican Church in Canada.

He will preach in St. John's Church, Victoria, this Sunday at 11 a.m.

CANON E. W. SCOTT
. . . Bishop of Kootenay

ORGANIST HONORED

Volunteer organist at Garden City United Church for more than 17 years, Mrs. Tom Crosland this week was honored by the congregation upon her retirement.

New organist in the Carey Road church is Mrs. Ruth Powell.

In other business at the annual meeting: Al Wright and F. Martin were elected to the session; C. Reay and S. Teigth named to the committee of stewards and Mrs. A. Herberholz was elected recording steward.

Clerics To Exchange Pulpits

Rev. Robin Salters, assistant minister at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will exchange pulpits with Rev. William Klempa, DD, of St. Paul's Gorge Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

In St. Andrew's, John W. Bell will sing the solo The Lord Is My Strength (MacRae) and the choir will present the anthem A Day In Thy Courts (Macfarren).

At the evening worship, Rev. Gordon Faraday of HMCS Malahat, moderator of the Presbytery of Victoria, will be the preacher. Georgina Harper will be soloist and the choir will sing Saviour, Again To Thy Dear Name. There will be a fellowship hour in the Kirk Hall after the service.

New Minister Appointed At Esquimalt

Rev. Hartwell Ilsey, new minister at Esquimalt United Church, is a native of Alberta who grew up in Montreal.

He served as a pilot with the RCAF from 1941 to 1945, then graduated at Queen's University and Queen's Theological College.

He was minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Calgary, from 1959 to 1964, then took a year's sabbatical leave to study theology at St. Andrew's University, Scotland.

Debate On Music At St. John's

Does church music meet the needs of the times?

The question will be debated by clergy and choirmasters at a panel discussion in the lower hall of St. John's Anglican Church Friday at 8 p.m.

The second of its kind, the discussion is sponsored by the Victoria Centre of the Royal Canadian College of Organists.

Rodney Webster will act as moderator and the public is invited to participate.

1,000 'KIDDIES 'PROCESSED' EVERY SATURDAY

Suddenly . . . It's a Better World on K Day

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

Every Saturday is "K" day at the Y.

"K" for kids, kids, kids.

Upstairs, downstairs wherever you step in the Y building, they're there — 1,000 of them.

They're screaming, shouting, laughing, talking endlessly and — happy. After an hour or so watching their carefree activity, the spirit catches on and the world is suddenly a better place in which to live.

"These kids are the Y in action," says physical director Art Burgess.

They come from rich homes and not so rich ones, they're Jewish, Roman Catholics, Protestants and Sikhs. They're white and colored.

Shining Example

"More than anything else, they're a shining example of what man can achieve through tolerance and co-operation," Mr. Burgess says.

These two traits are as important a part of the Y's three-sided program as its physical training, the physical director says.

The Y program aims at the same time at the spirit, the mind and the body of the individual.

"The kids learn more than the basic physical skills, co-ordination, balance and strength. They learn to get along and respect the rights of others.

"They answer to the Y's philosophy — to develop well-rounded individuals."

To this end the Y has developed a highly diversified program of activities. Most take place Saturdays.

Invasion

The youngsters start trickling in about 8 a.m. They go to the youth department lounge on the lower floor of the building. There they can play ping pong, checkers and other games until their particular class begins. By 9:30 a.m. the invasion is on full-steam and there isn't a spare chair or locker.

Every 45 minutes a physical education class begins exercises and games in the gymnasium. Coached by older boys, the nine to 16-year-olds go through a routine of muscle developing training.

There are no "wallflowers." Everybody takes part because that's why they're there.

"The kids enjoy what they're doing. In school they do things because they have to. Here at the Y they do things because they want to," says Mr. B urgess.

Friendship

Those who are better at the sports help the others. They look more like a friendship group than a gym class.

"This is where they learn to develop a sense of group participation, perhaps the most important element of community living."

After phys-ed everybody goes to the shower room to prepare for the highlight of the morning — the swimming lesson.

Each class gets the pool for a half-hour, the best part of which is used for instruction. The last portion is reserved for free swimming and "horsing around." Keen-eyed coaches and lifeguards maintain discipline.

Although still divided in boys' and girls' classes, the young Y membership is being directed towards more co-ed programming.

The 'Jungle'

After the swim, it's back into the locker rooms — "the jungle" — where a thousand arms and legs flag the humid air in a scramble to reach the youth department for arts and crafts classes and games.

There's the stamp club, the chess club, the fine arts club, the glee club, the model building club, the "you-name-it" club.

Most meetings are preceded by a short devotional period.

Although the Y does encourage church participation, "we're not evangelical," Mr. Burgess says.

"We're not a religious organization, but a Christian organization concerned with the broad Christian principles as they should be applied in daily living."

By 2 p.m. most activity settles down throughout the building. By then the Y's staff and volunteer leaders will have processed most of 1,000 youngsters who will each have spent an average of two and a half hours in the building.

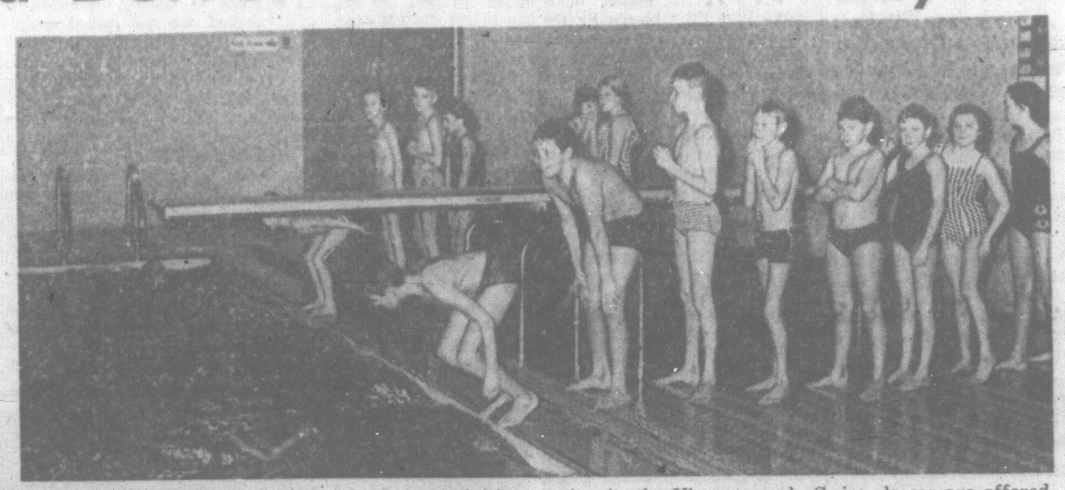

25 Cents

For this the young members pay $14 a year — which works out to about 25 cents a Saturday. Actual cost per child works out at $47 a year.

"The adult membership subsidizes the children," Mr. Burgess says.

The Y's only major complaint to the community is its need for leaders.

Says Mr. Burgess: "The people get so much out of the Y and for so little — more of them should return some of it by helping out with the new generation."

CO-ED CONTESTS at the Y involve most activities of the youth department. Here boys and girls await turn to test proficiency in dive-and-swim competition in the Y's new pool. Swim classes are offered year-round to all ages.

INGENUITY is an asset to participate in handicraft class of the Y's youth department. These boys modelled a Santa Claus recently out of plastic detergent containers. Class is part of Y's regular program of youth activity.

'NO INTEREST IN PRE-NATAL DEATH RATE'

MONTREAL (CP) — The death rate among unborn and new infants is still relatively high and many people don't seem to care, an obstetrician from Baltimore said Friday.

Dr. A. C. Barnes said people are disinterested "because where the ills of the fetus and infant are concerned, people can truly say it can't happen to them. And to care about these ills thus means being unselfish."

He said the mortality rate for babies during the period prior to birth and immediately afterward is greater than it is for humans at any other period of life—except for the over-70s.

In the United States, it comes to 3.5 per cent and it is much the same in Canada, said Dr. Barnes, director of obstetrics and gynecology at Johns Hopkins University.

Man Committed To Stand Trial On Possession

Neil Edward Murray, 607 Raynor Street, Friday in central court was committed for trial on a charge of possession of stolen property valued at more than $50.

Bail was set at $1,000. Murray has elected trial by judge and jury.

Magistrate William Ostler ruled the Crown established a prima facie case involving a stolen TV set found by police in Murray's room, Dec. 11.

Gordon E. Lewis, appliance department manager at Standard Furniture, 737 Yates, testified the set was stolen from his store Oct. 25 and its value was $179.

CBC Report Ordered On PC Chief's Charges

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh has asked CBC authorities for a report on Conservative accusations against the crown-owned corporation.

The Conservatives have accuse the CBC of working for the Liberals in the Nov. 8 election and of spreading anti-Amercian propaganda.

Hugh M. Horner (PC—Jasper Edson) demanded Friday in the house that those responsible for policy decisions in the CBC be hauled before a parliamentary committee and questioned. Conservative leader John Diefenbaker began the attack Thursday in the throne speech.

Miss LaMarsh has asked the CBC for facts and figures. She will reply to the accusations when she speaks shortly in the continuing throne speech debate.

She was surprised by the ferocity of attack on the crown-owned bradcasting corporation It took two forms:

BLASTED CBC

First, the Conservatives have blasted the CBC for allegedly assisting the grits during the federal election.

Second, Mr. Diefenbaker has denounced the corporation for conveying the impression to the Canadian public that the U.S. is making an "imperialistic grasp for power" in Viet Nam.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had been critical of the U.S. on occasion. But he said the CBC programs pictured Americans as perpetrating "the most diabolic cruelties" in Viet Nam.

Prime Minister Pearson said the Conservatives were resorting to evidence by insinuation and innuendo. He said Conservatives had made "a very serious charge" against the CBC in stating that it—in the last few days of the campaign—favored the Liberal party.

WATCHDOG GROUP

Miss LaMarsh is considering the idea of establishing a watchdog committee to hear MPs' complaints about the CBC.

Meantime the minister has asked for the corporation's reaction to the charges. She wants to know how many viewpoint programs have been aired on Viet Nam and she wants a report on the election broadcasts.

Dr. Horner said Friday that the last election saw the use of the CBC to promulgate political opinions. He asked, "Can we afford this nonsensical, arrogant, uncontrollable monster that the CBC has become?"

The Alberta Conservative said that the Social Credit leader, Robert Thompson, apparently agreed with his views because Mr. Thompson was on record as saying that the CBC could be run on a quarter of its present budget.

CERTAIN GROUP

Dr. Horner said, "We do not need a certain group in this country to try to push their type of culture down our throats and brainwash our people with this kind of nonsense. There is no reason at all why we could not sell all the major studios that the CBC now owns, there is no reason why we could not combine the CBC with the National Film Board and allow it to produce programs of interest to Canadians."

He described the CBC as "biased news media." He said the CBC was not needed "to satisfy the souls of some of the intellectuals who are, indeed, a very small minority in this country, and who can get their culture in other means, without the government of Canada."

PROPAGANDA

Mr. Diefenbaker denounced the CBC because it was "used" by the Liberals during the last two or three days of the election campaign in November, he charged.

"They spread propaganda across the country," he said.

"And I believe it was even spread after candidates were no longer in a position to reply over radio and television."

Parliament, he said, was entitled to know the attitude of the higher echelons of the CBC. He said the MPs had the right to a full examination.

B.C. Miner Killed

SMITHERS (CP) — A 38-year-old miner died in hospital Friday following a mine accident near Telkwa about nine miles east of here. James Holland of Telkwa was severely injured in the accident and died in hospital several hours after the mishap.

CREATIVE COURSES PRODUCE:

Critical, Appreciative Audiences

Creative writing courses don't usually produce great writers: they produce "creative readers."

That was the word Friday night from Tony Emery, fine arts professor at the University of Victoria.

And he said this indicates the great possibility of a university education: it can create a critical and appreciative audience for the arts.

Professor Emery was giving the keynote address for this weekend's campus symposium on the role of a university in a community's cultural life.

Prof. Emery said he used to be against courses in creative writing, painting and sculpture. "Who ever heard of a great artist who learned his art at university?"

But then he realized that students who study creative arts usually end up appreciating them. And he said it is very important for cultural life that there be an informed audience for the arts.

"Shakespeare was not produced by a university. He was a result of great natural talent and a tremendous demand for plays."

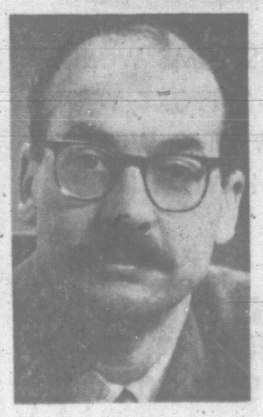

Prof. Emery said a cultivated public will create a demand that will vastly stimulate creative energies. "Ninety-four per cent of the artists who will satisfy the demand will be rotten. But the other six per cent will be geniuses."

He said universities will best serve cultural life by providing teachers of the arts and patrons for them. He said a university will fail unless it manages to convey to students "gusto and zest" for the arts.

Without such a purpose a university would relapse into what Carlyle called "the guano heaps of learning." Prof. Emery said that if a university provides an audience that will give artists, writers and painters a living "it will make the arts livelier in every sense."

He said that formal rigorous courses are essential for students but the informal education of university life is even more important.

Too many students "commute to the university," he said, and fail to engage in the full opportunity to bloom intellectually.

AVERAGE HOUSEWIFE . . .

It's a Lot of Trash—83 Hours a Year

. . . MESSES AROUND

(United Press International)

A poll of homemakers has shown that the methods used by the average housewife to dispose of garbage haven't kept pace with other technological advances affecting her daily routine.

Less than 12 per cent of homes dispose of garbage and trash on site.

The survey shows it is shifted two or three times to different containers on the premises.

Then the responsibility of finally getting rid of it is transferred to a municipality or private agency.

Two hundred women, interviewed in their homes by the department of home economics of Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, were asked to estimate the activities and the amount of time involved in keeping refuse to a minimum, the amount of waste that accumulates in their homes each day and what happens to each type of waste.

The study, sponsored by the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, showed that collecting garbage and trash is not as time-consuming as other household activities, such as meal preparation or bed making.

The Ohio homemakers estimated it takes 12.8 minutes a day to get the job done.

But it is a repetitious, frequent job that adds up to more than 83 hours a year.

And that's a big chunk of time that will grow bigger as waste continues to increase, unless new practices are adopted.

The variety of activities required to collect waste around the home would surprise efficiency experts.

The following are some mentioned by the homemakers:

- Emptying and relining waste baskets, a daily or every-other-day job.
- Collecting magazines and newspapers. About one-third is given to charity, one-third is burned, the rest hauled away.
- Sorting garbage from non-burnables. Some families drain garbage, others also wrap it in paper then store it temporarily in a kitchen container before transferring it outdoors to a collection can.
- Burning of paper and trash, conforming to specified times regulated by municipalities. This is usually a daily or every-other-day activity.
- Providing specified types of cans for collection.
- Remembering collection day and correct placement of containers.

The amount of waste products was estimated by the homemakers in terms of grocery bags.

The majority believed they accumulated a large bag per day, the size of a 25-pound bag of flour. Some households have as many as 10 waste baskets. The average home owned 4.6, and these are scattered about the house.

Eighty per cent of the women interviewed quoted costs of haul-away service.

They believe it to range from 50 cents to $2 per week, the average being approximately 95.6 cents per week.

Many of the collection agencies require special cans and these were believed to cost approximately $2.70 per can.

Of the 200 families interviewed, half owned gas incinerators.

The survey did not reveal how many of the incinerator owners had the newer smokeless-odorless models.

However, 93 of the homemakers were enthusiastic users.

The GAMA study indicated these homeowners did not purchase the incinerator. It had been installed by the builder of the house.

Incinerator users were found to continue to burn a certain amount of paper and trash outdoors, which is a duplication of effort.

In estimating costs of operating the incinerator they believed them to be much less than costs estimated by authorities in the area. (Gas utilities estimate the cost of operating a smokeless-odorless incinerator is approximately five cents a load.)

Sentenced to Hang

MONTREAL (CP) — William Tamas, a 38-year-old Hungarian-born truck driver, was sentenced to be hanged May 13, after a 12-man Court of Queen's Bench jury found him guilty Tuesday of killing a woman with whom he had been living last Aug. 28.

Don't Just Cry —Plant Them

By JACK BEASTALL

Last week we suggested preparing some potatoes for planting in the coldframe together with a few other vegetables for filling in the spaces.

Jack

It appears now that Warba seed potatoes are more easily obtainable than any other variety.

These will be satisfactory but may be a little later in producing tubers of a usable size.

Being a large type potato the sets will need to be cut as described in the previous article.

Not all gardeners thrill to the thought of early potatoes. Some have asked whether onions can be sown instead.

LONG SEASON

This is a standard practice with experienced onion growers and worth copying by the amateur.

Onions require a long season of growth. Outdoor sowing in November pays well here, as does a coldframe or greenhouse sowing in January.

The soil in the frame should be well raked over to provide a fine tilth and seed is best sown by broadcasting over a small square or oblong area rather than in rows or drills.

Like many of our vegetable root crops, the onion is a biennial plant which makes its edible portion one growing season and, if replanted, it seeds the next season.

Should the plants receive a setback after a certain amount of growth has been made, the effect is the same as lifting in the fall and replanting in the spring, and the plants produce seeds instead of bulbs.

SOWN THICKLY

For this reason onion seedlings must never be larger in diameter than a lead pencil when transplanted from the seed bed to the open garden.

To obtain good, slender seedlings the seed must be sown thickly in a small space.

No thinning of seedlings is necessary or desirable, since extra space would permit small bulbs to form. The rules for spacing when sowing onions are directly opposed to other vegetable sowings.

An early start, and early transplanting to a well prepared bed in the open garden, enables the plants to mature in July during dry weather.

Plantings which mature in late August are liable to run into rainy periods which encourage renewed growth, making the bulbs unsuited to long storage.

TURN WITH FORK

The gardener who is not using a coldframe will find several jobs that can be done now.

Many gardens will be sufficiently drained for work to be done on the soil, and early turning with a fork will pay dividends later on.

Experience has proven for me that a heavy clay which still contains some free water can be forked over with less damage to its structure than when it is dryer and more sticky.

Heavy soil that does not need digging for early crops can have the surface broken with a four-pronged cultivator (often called a manure drag) to let air penetrate and prevent cracking.

Any work that can be done to break the soil will put the gardener that much ahead when the rush begins in spring.

Manure or compost can be spread on the surface and, if the soil is workable, forked into the top four to six inches.

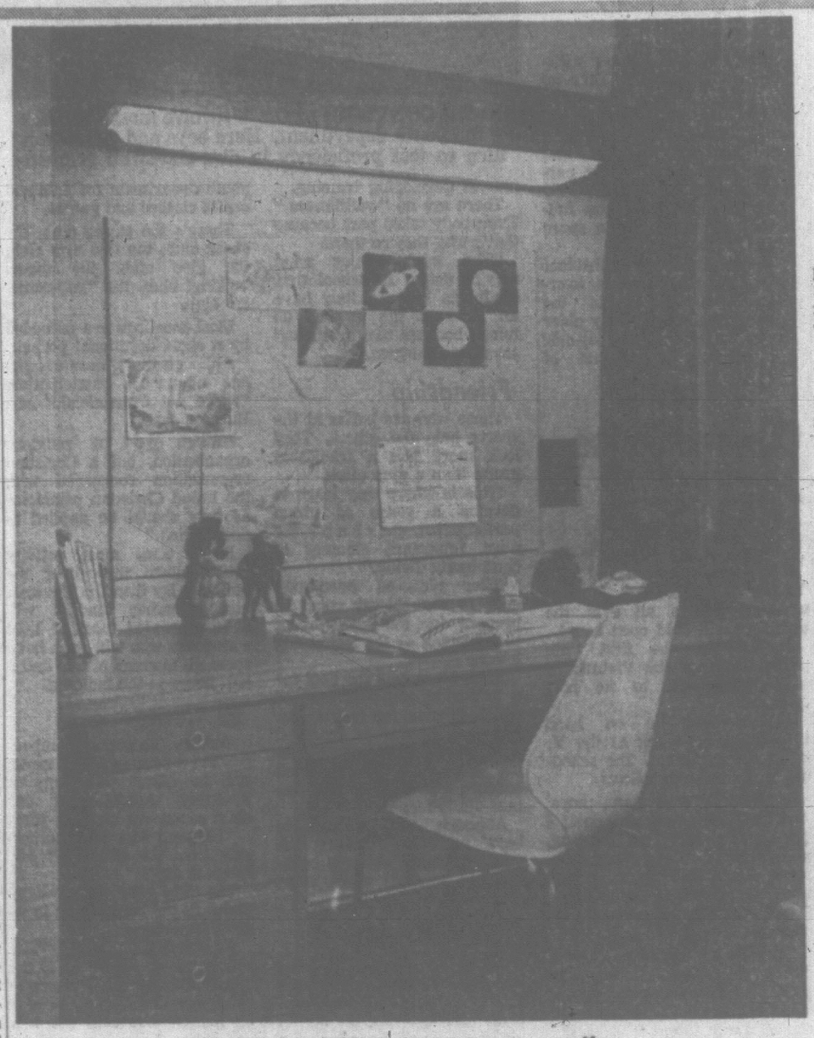

REMOVE WEEDS

When the snow melted, the growth that had taken place under its warm cover was quite noticetable. Also the growth of weeds!

The removeal of weeds now will save a lot of work later when they are about three or four times larger.

This is an easy job adjacent to pathways and it will be found that the roots come away readily from the soil.

Areas away from paths should be reached by boards or planks laid on the surface. The boards, even thin shiplap, distribute the gardener's weight over a larger surface, preventing unnecessary compactation and the spoiling of the physical structure of the soil.

Handy board saves wear on walls.

Bulletin Board Blessing

Most youngsters enjoy displaying pictures, cards and mementoes on the walls of their rooms, which is hard on the walls.

Bulletin boards provide the answer.

The off-white color of the boards, however, stands out from colored walls and makes for a spotty effect.

To combat this, one can cover the bulletin board with the same material that is used on the walls, and only the shadow created by the raised edge marks the board's outline.

In the boy's room shown here the owners decided upon wall board as a good material to receive thumb tacks and stick pins.

It was cut to fit the wall above the desk, allowing six inches clearance from the light at the top and the desk at the bottom, and eight inches on each side.

Covered with the same burlap that's used on the walls, the board blends in with the background.

Burlap was a good choice, because its roughness minimizes the wear of the pins.

Any textured material or a heavy cotton would do as well.

Another good idea here is the light.

It's a standard fixture, mounted in a frame of one by six-inch Philippine mahogany, given a walnut finish.

Note that although it seems to extend the width of the alcove, two inches remain at the end for drapery clearance.

With increasing consumption of coal, oil, gas and electricity as sources of heat and power, the importance of fuel wood has declined, but it is still second only to lumber in volume consumption.

IN THE NURSERY

Fun and Games With Wallpaper

By MARGERY McELHENY
United Press International

One of the most economical ways to decorate children's rooms is with wallpaper.

By changing the wall pattern and adding new accessories, you can make color and mood changes to fit particular age groups.

When your child is in the nursery age, one of the most practical ideas is to cover wall areas with vinyl papers that are not only washable but scrubbable and, in many cases, scuff-proof.

This type of paper is especially useful in back of a bathinette or next to a crib because these are the areas that must be kept clean and germ-free.

Because colors are locked in, you can clean these areas frequently without having to clean the whole wall. Soiled spots can be wiped off and heavy wear areas will maintain the same color brightness as the unscrubbed walls.

Many of the new machine prints also have a washable plastic coating if you cannot find the pattern you want in one of the heavier vinyl papers.

Patterns appropriate for a nursery are available in vinyl papers that cover such themes as balloons, umbrellas, Mother Goose and marionettes, animals, dolls, blocks and a carousel theme.

PLAINER WALLS

If you prefer plainer walls in a nursery, there are many textured, striped and plain washable papers with amusing border patterns.

Borders such as circus themes, bunnies, puppets or tent scallops can be used in many ways.

Place them mid-way on the wall, so the baby can look at the colors. Decorate chests or screens with the whole border, or cut out some of the figures for the front of dressers.

The tent border can be used very effectively around the wall just under the ceiling with a ticking stripe on the wall.

Many of the new papers are strippable and can be removed by lifting a corner and pulling one strip of paper at a time off the wall.

ANOTHER LAYER

If it's not the strippable variety, but is in good condition, you can put another layer of paper right over the existing one.

Some patterns for the five-year-old and up group include: fish, sailing ships, zodiac figures, trains, guns, ballet figures, space ships, racing cars, soldiers and many more.

A child of any age will be stimulated by something new to look at in his very own room.

New furniture is usually a major investment, but it is relatively inexpensive to change the wall theme and color scheme.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Sowing of annuals indoors will enable the slow-growing kinds to make budded plants for setting out in May.

Sow snapdragon, lobelia, ageratum, verbena, gazania and petunia in shallow boxes or pots.

Dust or wash smooth broad leaves of pot plants, and re-pot those in need of this attention.

Re-pot house ferns in need of fresh soil, remembering that they like to be well drained yet be provided with a rich, humusy leafmould.

Do not overwater after repotting.

Freesias in pots should be in bud, and may now get a light feed of fertilizer.

Twiggy staking is necessary for freesias, otherwise the flower stalks become twisted.

Check over the small rockery plants and press back any which have been heaved, or loosened, by frost.

In come cases it may be safer to put a handful of rather dry soil mixed with leafmould and coarse sand around the exposed stems or roots before gently firming.

Sow a few lettuce seeds indoors. Pricked out into a flat of soil, they will give fresh leaves if grown in a cool place.

Begin the fruit tree pruning whenever weather permits.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend thanks and our appreciation to our many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy. Special thanks to the staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, and also to Dr. A. V. Piper and Mrs. Piper and Dr. Brigadier H. Pressing, in the loss of our beloved wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Violet Rose Hallett.—Mr. Charles Hallett and family.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and deep appreciation to all our friends for the many acts of kindness and beautiful cards of sympathy received in the recent passing of our beloved daughter Kay in Richmond, B.C.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sneddon and family.

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy and for the beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets received by us, at the very sudden death of a loving husband and father and grandfather. —C. Jessie Semple (wife) and (Margaret) Mrs. H. G. Bauer, grandson Kent, and granddaughter Sandra Ann.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GOY—The one we dearly loved and lost, is with us in spirit yet.
Is with us still in memories
Too precious to forget.
—Ever remembered by his wife, Dora; Helen, Willie and family; Alice, Joe and family; Jack and family.

HODSON—In loving memory of our dear husband, dad and granddad, Harry Hodson, who passed away January 22, 1959.

"In memory you are always near,
Still loved, still missed, still very dear."
—Ever remembered by his loving wife Marion, daughters Janet and Dorothy and families.

ROBERTSON—In loving memory of Edward Robertson (Robbie), who passed away suddenly January 23, 1965.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by his mom, brother Wayne, sisters Doreen, Hazel, Marlene and their families.

OVER FEES

Student Council Now Under Fire

By SUE PELLAND
Uvic Correspondent

A petition was circulated Friday among students at the University of Victoria calling for a vote of non-confidence in the students' council.

Signed by more than 150 students, it called for a general meeting of the Alma Mater Society to consider the vote as an indication of student dissatisfaction with the council's handling of the recent fee controversy.

They are disturbed over the council's decision advising students to pay by Friday afternoon the $56 they had been withholding.

The $56 is the amount of last year's fee raise. Over 700 students were withholding payment of this amount to protest the increasing cost of higher education.

The council first called for withholding of fees until mid-March, then decided on Jan. 27, the day the legislature convenes.

Students' council president Paul Williamson advised students to pay by Friday, saying there was a possibility of expulsions.

He also said legal complications forbid the Alma Mater Society from paying the fine incurred by students who pay fees late.

Several hundred students swamped the bursar's office Thursday and Friday.

A spokesman for the group that started the protest petition said they would take it to the student's council meeting Sunday night.

They will demand that a special meeting of the AMS be called to put the motion of non-confidence in the council to the students. Only 150 signatures are needed to call such a meeting.

If passed, it would mean automatic dissolution of the student's council.

Peter Bower, a fourth year arts student who first circulated the petition said "we ardently hope for a vote of confidence in the council, but only if the students do have that confidence."

NEW VERSION

City Firm Building 'Scope Home

A Victoria contractor is building on improved version of a new type of housing for Dominion Astrophysical Observatory's 16-inch telescope on Little Saanich Mountain.

K. N. Johnson Construction was given the $23,281 contract by the federal public works department and expects to have the 576-square foot wood frame structure completed by the end of February.

The building is unusual in that it employs plywood rather than steel trusses, has a flat roof that rolls back to expose the entire interior and uses a synthetic material instead of conventional roofing.

ARIZONA

An observatory spokesman said the new building was patterned after one in Arizona, but modifications and the light weight roof make it unique.

He said it will replace the observatory's small-domed building on the south side of the mountain, although this would continue to play a role in astrophysical studies. Its exact use had not been determined.

Two beams projecting from the rear of the new structure will permit the trussed plywood and neoprene hyperion roof to be rolled back.

LIGHT, FLEXIBLE

The synthetic was chosen for its lightness and flexibility.

Also to be housed in the new building are a number of auxiliary instruments and machinery that will permit astrophysicists to do photometric study of the stars.

The 16-inch telescope, now undergoing refitting and adjustment, was donated to the observatory about two years ago by an amateur astronomer.

Answers to Previous Puzzle

COLOR-BY-NUMBER FUN POSER

If you stare long enough and hard enough at the maze of lines in this diagram, you may be able to make out the subject. But a much simpler method of finding what the scene shows is to color the areas indicated by numbers. This is the color code: 1, Yellow; 2, Red; 3, Blue; 4, Orange; 5, Green; 6, Purple; 7, Black; 8, Brown; 9, Pink. If your set of colors does not include pink, use red lightly instead.

Add colors neatly, of course. If more than one person wants to take part, distribute colors and apply them in turn.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves is the challenge at right.

Some dos and don'ts: Do plan to give away two men immediately. Don't plan to lose White's king.

Hopper's solution is given below it needed. No fair peeking.

Solution: White 10, 7; Black 3, 10, 19, 7; Black 2, 11; White 8, 15, 22, 31, 24; White 23, 16; Black 12, 18; White 11, 15.

COPE WITH HEAD WINDS?

Two hours after it took off, a plane encountered a head wind which reduced its speed by one-seventh, and it arrived 80 minutes late. Had it occurred 700 miles farther on, the plane would have arrived 20 minutes earlier than it did. How far did it fly.

Answer: Flight minutes by seven, plus two hours, makes 680 minutes, the time of flight. Without the wind the time would be 600 minutes, and with the wind all the way 700 minutes. So that's 100 minutes multiplied by 100 (miles farther on) the distance is the difference, 100 minutes divided by 20 minutes earlier), so it flew 3,500 miles.

SAME AS 2 AND 2 BUT DIFFERENT

A puzzlist has two numbers in mind. One is between 7 and 13. The other is composed of units and tenths and is between 1 and 2. Added or multiplied, these numbers produce the same answer. What two numbers are they?

Answer: The numbers are 11 and 11. They equal 12.1. And multiplied they equal 12.1. Other answers may be possible.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

What an extraordinary contrast there is between Sir Rowland Hill's concept of what constituted a postage stamp back in 1840, and the idea behind the brightly-colored labels that pour out from the world's post offices in a never-ending flood today!

And, for better or worse, this transformation has been brought about entirely through the activities of stamp collectors!

TWO WEEKS

A glance at the recent lists of a well known London new-issue distributor will show to what an extent the hobby has influenced the business of issuing postage stamps.

Two lists, for the weeks ending Nov. 23 and Dec 1, were picked at random, and a rough analysis of their contents may be of interest.

During the fortnight covered by these lists 45 different countries of the world issued 430 new stamps.

One of these countries, Qatar, a Trucial State on the Persian Gulf, accounted for 52 of these! Two different sets were both available in either perforated or unperforated condition, plus two in the form of miniature sheets

100 PRINTED

Then Haiti issued six unperforated varieties to "honor" the N.Y. World's Fair. According to the advertisement, only 100 of these were printed in this unfinished condition, so naturally the price has to be raised a bit — they will cost you $75 at least.

Then Paraguay brought out four values to mark Pope Paul's visit to the U.S. Ordinary specimens are priced at $6. But if you like your stamps half-baked (i.e. before they have gone through the perforating machine) they will cost you twice as much.

And if you want to go the "whole hog" there is a little sheet with one of each of the stamps in a pane, that will set you back $75.

HIGH COST

To complete the issues for just the two weeks under consideration would cost you well over $300. Let us imagine that you have bought them — all 430 of them — and have mounted them neatly in your album.

Then examine them carefully, and list them in two columns — first, the ones which were obviously issued with the philatelist's dollars in mind; and second, those which were issued from a purely utilitarian standpoint.

Do you know how many will appear in your second column? Not one solitary specimen!

Oklahoma City's 650 square miles make it the largest city in the United States. The B.C. Automobile Association points out it is more than twice the size of New York, which has 314 miles, and larger than Los Angeles with its 457.9 square miles.

Dark Horse Tops '65 Bridge List

NEW YORK—The most successful contract bridge player of 1965 was Peter Rank of Lafayette, Calif., American Contract Bridge League announced today. The 27-year-old deputy district attorney of Contra Costa County won the McKenney Trophy, annually awarded to the player who earns the most master points in all-around tournament play among the league's 180,000 members.

Rank, a comparative unknown when the tournament year started, has yet to win his first national championship, but he outscored the nation's best by a comfortable margin, amassing a total of 1,141 master points.

Runner-up in the annual ranking was James O. Jacoby of Richardson, Texas, son and oft-time partner of Oswald Jacoby, who won the McKenney Trophy for three years running in 1961, 1962 and 1963. The younger Jacoby, a bridge instructor and recent collaborator with his father in a nationally syndicated bridge column, took second place by the narrowest of margins from Hollywood television producer Barry Crane. Both Jacoby's 1,050 and Crane's 1,049 scores would have been good enough to win in any year before 1964.

Top five players in the American Contract Bridge League's official all-time bridge ranking at the conclusion of the 1965 tournament year were as follows: 1. Oswald Jacoby, Dallas, Texas, 9009; 2. Norman Kay, Philadelphia, Pa., 7216; 3. Barry Crane, Van Nuys, Cal., 7091; 4. Charles Goren, Miami Beach, Fla., 6982; 5. Alvin Roth, New York, N.Y., 6604.

Bridge column by Jacoby appears in the Times.

14 Children Contract TB From Teacher

DETROIT (AP) — Thirteen children, who the head of a Detroit hospital tuberculosis unit said were infected with TB by a teachier in their nursery school, are adjusting to sanatarium life.

Health authorities, meanwhile, were reported working to keep the disease from spreading and tests on other school children continued.

Dr. Paul O'Rourke, director of Herman Kiefer Hospital's TB clinic' said the teacher — described only as a middle-aged woman and mother of two—was "very remorseful, weeping, all broken up about this."

O'Rourke said the woman was taken to hospital Wednesday.

He added he would not be surprised if other youngsters had contracted the disease.

The 13 youngsters, aged three to six, were pupils at a day nursery at nearby Garden City. A 14th child known to be infected is being treated as an outpatient.

Smoke, Fire Inhalation Blamed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's safety bureau has determined that the 43 deaths in a Salt Lake City jet crash last Nov. 11 resulted from smoke and flame inhalation, not from the injuries of impact with the ground.

As a result, the C.A.B. has recommended to the Federal Aviation Agency the use of new materials for cabin interiors that would generate less flame and smoke.

The C.A.B. also recommended rerouting of fuel lines of the Boeing 727—the three - engined jet involved in the United Air Lines crash—to run them down the middle of the plane floor rather than along the side walls where they could be ruptured by the collapse of a landing gear, as happened at Salt Lake City. There were 91 persons aboard the jet when it made its hard touchdown.

SCHOOL, MUNICIPAL COSTS

Home Tax Soars: Who Is Villain?

Are you working longer today than in past years to pay your property taxes? Are they soaring faster than wages and other living costs? Are other provinces ahead of us in needed tax reforms? Times reporter Pete Loudon gets answers to these questions in this series—answers every voter should hear.

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria and district property owners soon will open those dreadfully familiar tax notices—and blink.

If the trend of recent years continues, they're going to be increased again.

Poor blinking taxpayer.

Or is he?

Municipal officials claim they've cut costs to the bone and they're giving good value for every dollar spent on civic services which they control.

Loudon

They say if property taxes seem too high blame the provincial government for not handing over more of those juicy provincial revenues.

On the other hand, Premier Bennett boasts that his government provides municipal aid more generously than any other province.

Who are you going to believe?

The only thing most of us know for sure is that each year we're digging a little deeper. The average homeowner knows of course that he's paying more for everything as a country-wide inflation continues. And most of us are earning more too.

But what is our actual position on taxes in relation to other living costs and income? Are we gaining or losing? And if we're losing, what's to be done about it? And who's the villain in the piece?

These are the questions the Times took to municipal and provincial officials and here are some of the differing replies.

First of all, if you think property taxes are getting worse, you're right.

In Victoria, a home now assessed at $10,000 was taxed $104.89 back in 1950. Fifteen years later, in 1965 the tax, after deducting the $100 homeowner grant, was $266.91.

That's an increase of 154 per cent.

During the same period the average weekly wages and salaries in this area increased from $45.68 to $89.64. That's an increase of only 95 per cent

Three Week's Pay At Stake

This means a man earning the average pay in 1950 could earn enough to pay his property tax in roughly two weeks.

Last year he had to work more than three weeks to settle the bill.

In the same 15-year period that home taxes more than doubled, the cost of living generally (the consumer price index) was increased by only 32 per cent. Taxes far outstripped the upward climb of almost all our other expenses.

Is Victoria an isolated case? Let's look at some figures representing the property tax gross payments for all of British Columbia.

The department of municipal affairs last year published figures showing that between 1957 and 1964 the value of all taxable properties in B.C. increased from $2.3 billion to $3.5 billion.

That's an increase of roughly 50 per cent.

But in the same period tax revenues from this property increased from $78 million to $155 million.

That's an increase of 100 per cent.

The table indicates that the costs of local government have increased at double the rate of community growth.

And where the tax revenues nine years ago represented 3 1/3 per cent of assessed values for all B.C. in 1964 the rate had climbed to 5 1/3 per cent.

The municipalities admit that in recent years the province has been paying an increasing share of costs facing municipalities. Ten years ago, Vancouver City Hall reports, provincial aid represented 44½ per cent of school operating costs. Today the figure is 54 per cent.

Aside from increased contributions to school costs the province also has increased its assistance to other municipal expenditures in the past 10 years.

CHURCHILL ANNIVERSARY

WOODSTOCK, England (AP) — The first anniversary of the death of Sir Winston Churchill will be remembered Sunday at his birthplace, Blenheim Palace. A concert will be held in aid of the Churchill memorial fund.

Churchill died a year ago Monday. He is buried at Bladon, in a churchyard a mile from the palace.

Motorist Sees Body In Bushes

LAGOS (Reuters) — Prime Minister Abubakar Tefawa Balewa's body was found Friday 27 miles from here near the western Nigerian town of Abeokuta, it was announced today.

The new military government, which reported the death but gave no details of how Balewa died or where his body was found, ordered offices to close and flags to be flown at half-mast as a mark of respect for "this great son of Nigeria."

Informed sources said the body of the 53-year-old premier was found around Abeokuta, the same area where finance minister Olotie Eboh's body was found with gunshot wounds Wednesday.

Balewa and Eboh were kidnapped and had been missing since elements of the army staged an uprising last Saturday.

Balewa, who was prime minister since 1957, was to be buried today in his hometown of Bauchi, northern Nigeria.

BODY FOUND IN BUSH

His body was seen by a passing motorist lying in a bush about 25 yards from the main road between Ifo and Sango-Otto. Nearby was another body, not identified.

Eye-witnesses said the two bodies were in an advanced stage of decomposition.

They were near a pool where the local village women did their washing, and it appeared they had been brought to the spot Friday. Villagers notified the police and the bodies were removed this morning.

Gen. Johnson Aguiyi-Irsonsi took control of the country following what his military regime called "a general disorder in the Nigerian army," a week ago.

RETURN TO CAPITALS

Meanwhile, the four regional military governors appointed by the new regime now have returned to their capitals after referring in Lagos with Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi-Ironsi.

The West region's Lt.-Col. Adekunle Fajuyi said on arrival in Abadan Friday the country must now embark on reconstruction.

"For too long, peace, which is the fruit of freedom and liberty, has eluded Western Nigeria," Fajuyi said, adding:

"For too long we have lived in fear of one another. I am sure we have all had enough of this.

"I emphasize the supreme commander's order that murder, looting, arson and all acts of public disorder be stopped immediately."

Grim Details Of Killings Described

TORONTO (CP)—The killing last week of Nigeria's Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tefawa Balewa and two other government officials is described in detail in The Star in a story by a staff writer Mark Harrison from Lagos.

Harrison says the three were killed by soldiers who struck at the same time in two different locations in a coup that led to establishment of a military government.

Harrison flew to Lagos last weekend, a few hours after Balewa's government was overthrown. For days, The Star says, attempts to file his story were blocked by censorship. He left Nigeria Friday night and filed his story from London.

Harrison's story on Balewa's killing included these details:

"Armed conspirators broke into the home . . . overpowered his police bodyguard, and carried off the man regarded as one of the most respected leaders of the Commonwealth.

". . . His body was hidden and it was not until Saturday that the new military government confirmed his death.

"Next door, another group of soldiers hauled Finance Minister Festus Okotie-Eboh from his bed.

"The quaking minister pleaded for his life and offered his captors up to $1,000,000 to spare him, but in vain. His bullet-riddled body was found four days later in a shallow grave . . ."

10,000 Homeless

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — About 10,000 persons were left homeless Friday when a five-hour blaze destroyed about 1,000 slum huts near the Bangkok waterfront. Officials estimated damage at $1,500,000.

MONTREAL (UPI — The bodies of two men were found by firemen in a west side apartment building today after a stubborn blaze whipped through upper levels of the structure and forced 40 tenants to flee.

Authorities said the victims, about 26 and 50 years old, have not yet been identified.

Margin of Nine Votes Saves Pearson Gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson and his four followers saved the minority Liberal government from defeat in the Commons Friday by voting against a motion for $100 old age pensions.

The Social Credit quintet made the difference as the government survived its first test of the new Parliament by a nine-vote margin. Mr. Thompson said his group favors $100-a-month pensions, but will vote against non-confidence motions to ensure stability and prevent an early election.

A New Democratic motion criticizing the government for failing to boost pensions by $25 and pay them at age 65 immediately instead of at age 69 was turned back 126 to 117.

The NDP maintained its motion should not be considered as one of non-confidence, but Prime Minister Pearson rejected the universal $100 pension as not feasible now and indicated there would be a new election if his party was defeated in the House.

The motion was supported by 89 Conservatives, 20 New Democrats and eight Creditistes. J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres), a former Liberal sitting as an independent, voted with the 120 Liberals present.

FURTHER VOTE TUESDAY

A similar Conservative motion favoring $100 pensions comes to a vote Tuesday night.

Commons standing are Liberals 131, Conservatives 97, NDP 21, Creditistes 9, Social Credit five and independents two for a total of 265.

Friday's vote came on the second day of the eight-day throne speech debate. Backbenchers discussed a wide variety of issues, including organized crime, divorce laws, medical care and safer cars.

Had the five Social Credit MPs voted for the motion, the government would have been defeated 122 to 121. The rules require all MPs present in the Commons to cast a vote, unless they are paired with a member of another party who is absent.

Opposition members hooted, jeered and banged their desks as Mr. Thompson and his four colleagues stood up to vote with the government.

Before the vote, Mr. Thompson said the Conservative motion reflects Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's desire to topple the Liberals and become prime minister again.

The real issue at stake was political stability, not higher pensions.

WILL BLAME THOMPSON

Hugh Horner (PC — Jasper-Edson) said Mr. Thompson should be held responsible if the Commons rejects a motion in favor of $100 pensions.

He and Creditiste Leader Caouette said pensioners can no longer get by on $75 a month because of rising costs. Mr.

Pack Up Your Scouse In Your Old Kit Bag

LONDON (AP)—Englishmen contemplating a trip to the United States were urged today to speak up and not be shy, because "the Limey lingo can open every door."

This advice was offered by Alec Snobel, an editor of The Sun, in a column telling his countrymen how to get along while touring the U.S.

"Talk, ask questions. Argue. Chat 'em up. Babble to taximen, bartenders, cops. Speak like Laurence Olivier or Ringo Starr; speak Oxford or Cardiff; speak Cockney, Scots or Scouse (lingo of Liverpool, home of the Beatles.) But speak. The Yanks love a Limey."

Snobel said his English accent "won me juleps in Georgia; daiquiris in Delaware ("Jes' let me hear you say "cawfee" again, feller"); bourbons in Baltimore ("I guess you noo Churchill?"), and more dinner invitations than I could handle in a lifetime."

Decision Due On Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is expected to decide next week whether to resume bombing North Viet Nam now that his peace offensive apparently has failed to open any doors to negotiation.

Some military authorities were reported to have proposals prepared for a revival of air strikes by mid-week and some of these at least were said to favor direct attacks against the area around the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi and its port, Haiphong.

PERSONAL CAMPAIGN BY DOCTORS URGED

Dear Patient: Medicare Bad Medicine

TORONTO (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Medical Association has sent a letter to 7,500 association members urging them to enlist their patients' help in the fight against the federal government's proposed national health plan.

The letter, signed by R. E. Brownridge, assistant secretary of the association, provides doctors with a draft of a letter to be sent to patients.

In an interview, Glen Sawyer, general secretary of the OMA called the letter "an effective way of getting across to patients our views on the proposed medical care scheme."

"A patient appreciates what his own physician tells him," he said. "All patients think their doctor is a great fellow."

The letter, sanctioned by the OMA's executive, suggests doctors tell patients:

"I would become virtually an employee of the government and not be free to care for your family as I have done in the past if the national medical care plan is accepted."

The letter also says doctors' visits would become "shorter and shorter" because more patients will be "demanding more service—in order to get their money's worth from the government."

The letter calls the medical care scheme an "attempt to impose socialism on an unsuspecting populace."

Accompanying the proposed draft letter to patients is a copy of a strong anti-medicare speech by Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta. The OMA said the speech was sent to all members to "inform them about the federal plan."

"The OMA board of directors feel greater use should be made of this speech which reflects the philosophy of the medical profession with regard to medical services insurance."

Also enclosed in the letter to OMA physicians is an association postcard addressed to Prime Minister Pearson protesting the federal medical plan.

In the suggested draft letter, Mr. Brownridge says the main reason for writing is "to warn you (patients) that the Ontario plan might be changed to fit with a national health plan proposed by the federal government.

"Prime Minister Pearson, for reasons best known to himself and his advisers, has said the federal government will contribute funds to provincial medicare plans only if the plans are compulsory for everyone and operated by the government."

Mr. Brownridge says he is "deeply concerned" about the government's proposal because a compulsory government-operated plan "could adversely affect our relationship."

War On Crime Needed, Tory Tells Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Erik Nielsen (PC - Yukon), calling for a royal commission on crime, says Prime Minister Pearson must look beyond the RCMP if he wants to find out why crime isn't being fought effectively.

"If the prime minister wants to find the source of lethargy and lack of interest in the face of criminal infiltration in this country, he must look a little higher than the RCMP," Mr. Nielsen told the Commons Friday during the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

The Yukon Conservative's questions about bail for Lucien Rivard broke that spectacular Commons issue in 1964.

Defending the RCMP, Mr. Nielsen said the force told the federal-provincial crime conference here earlier this month the situation is urgent.

Criminal organizations "connected with the octopus of international crime" had grown tremendously in Canada. They were engaged in narcotics, arson, bankruptcies and organized murder.

"This alone ought to be enough to prod this government into moving," Mr. Nielsen said

WANTS INVESTIGATION

He said the RCMP report emphasizes the need for a royal commission. Bankruptcy frauds had become tremendous in magnitude.

"Not only has the government failed to apprehend the wrongdoers, but they have acted as though the wrongdoing does not even exist."

The government had to do something about documented charges by the RCMP, Justice Minister Wagner of Quebec, responsible organizations and many individuals that a vast criminal network was operating in Canada.

"The present division of authority in the administration of justice will make it difficult to achieve anything," he said.

Under a reorganization last month, Solicitor-General Pennell had become responsible for crime enforcement and rehabilitation. Justice Minister Cardin dealt with administration and Privy Council President Favreau with companies.

"The throne speech promised a revision of the Bankruptcy Act but under which minister will that come?"

The Commons would need a great deal more information before it could take steps to revise and tighten the act.

The only way to get this information would be through a royal commission.

LOSE MILLIONS

"Business is being mulcted of millions upon millions of dollars annually, not only in Quebec but in every province," he said. "Narcotics are being pushed . . . throughout the country.

"In Quebec we have witnessed the wholesale extermination of witnesses.

"In Ontario, Quebec and other provinces there has been evidence of a movement into Canada of individuals . . . well known in the field of crime.

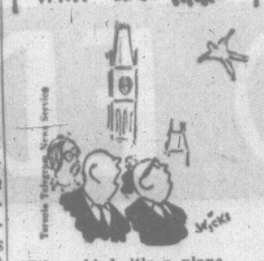

"But where there is evidence of international criminal conspiracy having links with the international Mafia and engaged in a whole gamut of criminal activities, a situation is created that cannot be met by the activities of individual police forces.

"Organized crime must be fought on an organized basis."

Mr. Nielsen said the Mercer report on bankruptcies in Quebec indicated "that it is not so much amendments that are necessary as the manner in which the Bankruptcy Act is to be administered.

"A great proportion of that responsibility lies at the federal level."

FIRST CALL with Bowlks

"It's a bird, it's a plane . . . It's the new dynamic Mr. Pearson."

Manitoba Pilot Awarded Trophy

. . . HOME TAX

that in 1955 the province paid 10.75 per cent of the city's budgeted costs and in 1965 this had grown to 15.65 per cent.

But the budget in the 10-year period jumped from $6.5 million to $12.8 million — an expansion of almost 100 per cent.

So the rate of increase in provincial aid here represented is dwarfed by the percentage increase in the load on the taxpayer.

Why are taxes increasing so fast? Municipal officials say a combination of several factors is at work.

First of all there's the national inflation which affects wages and costs of materials used in civic projects. If that was all we had to contend with however, the added taxes would more or less keep pace with our own salaries and wage rates.

But we are also becoming a more affluent society. More of us are living in better homes. New neighborhoods are opening every day and the initial cost of supplying services is higher than maintenance of services in older areas.

And because we have better homes in many cases, we aren't disposed to wait for services such as sidewalks, street lighting and sewers. We want them now. We want adequate schools and recreation centres and parks.

New municipal halls, fire stations and police station have been blossoming wherever we look in the capital area. More recently voters have considered municipal swimming pools.

Well, why not when we live in a province as rich as British Columbia? But one of the troubles, according to many municipal spokesmen is that we are not arranging things so that those rich provincial resources are paying the cost of our higher communuity living standards.

Let's take this in small bites and examine this aspect of the taxation problem in the next chapter.

Caouette defied the prime minister to try to live on $75 a month. Mr. Pearson, whose annual salary is $40,000, will become eligible for the pension when he turns 69 April 23.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) urged the Liberals to vote for the NDP motion. It might mean an extra $855,000,000 a year, but he was sure the money could be found.

Harry Harley (L — Halton) urged the government to be flexible in implementing a national medical insurance program to respect the rights of the medical profession. He also called for a free vote on "our archaic divorce laws" and abolition of the law banning the dissemination of birth control literature and devices.

Heward Grafftey (PC—Brome - Missisquoi) advocated federal legislation requiring automobile makers and importers to add safety features to all cars as standard equipment.

POLITICAL DISCUSSIONS will mean busy weekend for Italian President Guiseppe Saragat as he searches for new premier to succeed Aldo Moro who resigned Friday. It was considered possible that Moro might be asked to form another government.

Queen Orders Second Commutation

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has ordered the death sentence of a second Negro in Rhodesia commuted.

The announcement Friday night came after the rebel white regime in the breakaway colony had refused to recognize one royal reprieve.

The Commonwealth relations office said royal clemency had been extended to Simon Runyowa, who had been convicted of attempting to set fire to a building in Rhodesia.

The decision to commute Runyowa's sentence was taken before the rebel white Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith had charged that the reprieve to another Negro named Lazarus was an "illegal act."

The two were convicted and sentenced before Smith declared Rhodesia independent in a break with Britain.

Sources here said the rejection of the reprieve in Lazarus' case did not mean that he would be hanged.

The Smith regime accused Britain, however, with trying to "embroil Her Majesty the Queen in politics."

Quebec Demands 'Not Resented'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The great majority of English-speaking Quebeccers do not resent French Canadians asserting themselves, George C. Marler, former federal and Quebec cabinet minister, said here Friday.

"It must be obvious to all Canadians that a vigorous and progressive Quebec is and always will be an asset to Canada," he told the Women's Canadian Club of Vancouver.

Mr. Marler said those who say Quebec has been given a special status among the provinces misundertands the aims of the province.

Referring to opting out arrangements allowed for the Canada Pension Plan and tax sharing arrangements, Mr. Marler said:

"If a province wants to exercise in its own way the powers the constitution gives it, no one ought to object.

STROKE OF GENIUS

"Opting out arrangements were a stroke of genius. They allow federal-provincial programs to satisfy those content to go on as before and those who prefer a do-it-yourself program."

Mr. Marler said opting out arrangements have promoted harmony between Quebec and the rest of Canada while not diminishing the power and prestige of the central government.

He said that English-speaking Quebecers understand the outlook of their French-speaking counterparts.

Past 'Horrors' Now Forgiven

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN (AP)—German churches are joining a highly unusual initiative in central Europe to bring together not only the peoples of Communist and anti-Communist areas but also those much more ancient enemies—the German and the Pole.

German Roman Catholic bishops have accepted an invitation from the bishops of Communist-ruled Poland to help celebrate the 1,000th anniversary next spring of Poland's Christianization.

Acceptance came in a letter signed jointly by the bishop of West Germany and of Communist East Germany. They don't often get together publicly.

With both the invitation and acceptance went warm words of forgiveness for the horrors of the past.

A few weeks ago the Protestant churches of West Germany approved a call for a new spirit of co-operation between Germany and Poland. They urged review of the troubled questions of frontiers, exiles and refugees in "a true dialogue and an expression of the will to reconciliation."

WORDS HAVE IMPACT

This may sound like vague parson's talk in the West. To the Poles whose families were massacred by the Nazis, and to Germans driven from their homes in eastern Europe, it cuts close to the bone.

The trouble goes back for centuries. Poles and Germans have educated, converted, loved, married, despised, brutalized and exterminated one another over the ages.

They have invaded and counter-invaded so many times that arguments over which province should belong to whom are endless and almost insoluble.

The Second World War only made things worse. First Hitler's armies over-ran western Poland, while the Soviets invaded the east. Then the Germans advanced almost to Moscow.

Then the Soviets returned to take all of Poland and eastern Germany as well.

A new Poland was set up, including much land that had last belonged to Germany. Other former German territory was annexed to the Soviet Union. The Soviets organized a large German Communist state.

The present West German government officially recognizes none of these Soviet acts. It stands for a restored, reunited, democratic Germany within the borders it had before Hitler began his conquests.

Until recently, to advocate anything else in West Germany was a sure way of being denounced as a Communist and a traitor

DIET COURSE PROVES FATAL

Confidence

Like a doctor or lawyer, your jeweler holds a position of trust. Confidence in his advice is in a direct ratio to the degree of professional knowledge he possesses. Membership in the American Gem Society is granted only to a select few jewelers who have satisfied rigid requirements as to gemological knowledge and high standards of business ethics. Our firm is understandably proud to share this honor with only some 900 other firms in the U.S. and Canada.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

In coastal areas precipitation from a complex storm dwindled to a few showers by early morning as the system moved off into the northwestern states. Some sunny periods are expected in coastal districts before the next disturbance spreads rain and cloud along the coast Sunday. A minor weather disturbance brought light snow to the interior overnight. There was to be clearing in most valleys this afternoon when the system moves into Alberta.

Visiting Bureau Ends in Black

Victoria Visitors Bureau, for the first time in history, finished 1965 in the black. A financial report presented Friday afternoon at a directors meeting showed a balance as of Dec. 31 of $11,504.

But, said M. E. Heppell, the picture isn't quite as rosy as first appears.

"We have a leaking roof which will have to be replaced and there's water in the oil tank that feeds the furnace," he said. "Both will be fairly costly jobs to correct."

After approving the financial statement the directors voted in favor of a suggestion by Mayor A. W. Toone that city council appoint a convention committee with additional members from the Chamber of Commerce and the Visitors Bureau.

BIG ENOUGH

Les Parkinson, manager of the Empress, broached the subject saying that Victoria was now big enough to employ a full-time convention manager.

He would, said Mr. Parkinson, be in charge of organizing conventions for Victoria "as far as six years ahead."

Mr. Parkinson pointed out that Penticton in the Okanagan already had a convention centre and a full-time convention manager.

"We must move soon or we shall be left behind," he said.

Mayor Toone noted that the city already had under study the possibility of a convention centre though nothing specific had been decided.

ALL ASPECTS

The committee to be formed by the mayor will discuss all aspects of the convention centre program and the feasibility of hiring a manager.

Ron Worley, assistant manager of B.C. Ferries, reported that a recent publicity trip to California had been an outstanding success.

In addition to the goodwill created, Mr. Worley said that Bob Hope had agreed to tape several advertising messages for Vancouver Island for general distribution.

The committee decided to study the possibility of extending a Victoria "feature of the month" now confined to Christmas.

YULE PROGRAM

Mayor Toone said the Christmas festivities and the annual Empress Golf Turnament were so successful that he thought they could be carried on throughout the year.

The directors agreed and will set up a sub-committee to study the idea concentrating at first on the winter months when tourism is light.

CN Appointment

W. D. Piggott has been appointed General Manager of the Mountain Region, Canadian National Railways, Edmonton, according to an announcement made by G. R. Graham, Vice-President. Mr. Piggott was formerly General Superintendent of Transportation at Toronto and has been the Assistant General Manager at Edmonton since June last. He has wide experience in the mechanical as well as the operating field of railroading. His jurisdiction encompasses all CN activities from Biggar, Sask., to the Pacific.

ISLAND COPPER MINE STARTS TO PRODUCE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The latest joint venture of Japanese and Canadian capital, a Vancouver Island copper mine, has started producing 220 tons of concentrate a day.

A Japanese ship will arrive next week to take the first 2,000 tons of concentrates to Japan for smelting.

J. R. Billingsley, general manager of the Yreka mine, said production will soon jump to 250 to 300 tons a day at the mine in the Quatsino Sound area.

Tour Group's Future To Get Vote Test

The thorny problem of who should run the Victoria Visitors Bureau got tossed to yet another committee Thursday when directors met to decide the bureau's fate.

EDGELOW
. . . business tax

Most of the difficulties wtih the bureau stem from financing.

In the past Chamber of Commerce members have expressed the opinion that the bureau should be answerable to some authority.

But in recent studies the chamber was unable to come up with a clear cut decision as to whether it should seek to take the bureau under its wing or whether it should continue to operate separately.

POLL STUDIED

Richard Bower, president of the chamber, told directors of the bureau Friday while complete studies of the problem were not completed the chamber was in favor of asking all bureau members whether they would like to become part of the chamber.

"We recommend that all bureau members be polled to see how they feel about becoming a section of the chamber," he said.

Ron Worley, assistant manager of the B.C. Ferry Authority, said he was hesitant about the chamber taking over.

"They might make a worse mess than it is now," he said.

Mr. Bower said the chamber was not "trying to twist anyone's arm" but just seeking an expression of opinion.

Pat Frumento, manager of Black Ball Ferries, suggested that members of both organizations be polled. His suggestion was approved.

ONLY ANSWER

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he felt the only solution to the bureau's financial ills would come from an increase in the business tax.

"That's where this entire business started," he said. "The city asked the chamber to consider recommending an increase in the business tax slightly. Had this been agreed to the bureau would be getting $100,000 a year instead of the $50,000 it now gets."

The chamber did discuss the city's proposal but rejected it on the grounds that it was not up to the chamber to recommend tax increases.

Split Ruled Out In Steelworker, CLC Quarrel

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Differences between the Canadian Labor Congress and the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) are not expected to result in a split between the two bodies, CLC President Claude Jodoin said Friday.

"I do not foresee that at all," he said in an interview.

Mr. Jodoin was asked to comment on CLC sanctions clamped on the Steelworkers for defying a congress directive to halt raids against the International Molders and Allied Workers Un-Molders and Allied Workers Union (CLC) at Trois Rivieres.

"Eventually, we will find a solution within our constitution to settle amicably that situation," he said. "I am always an optimist."

First-stage sanctions were imposed on the 140,000-member Steelworkers following its displacement of Molders as bargaining agents for 500 workers at a Trois Rivieres plant. A complaint filed by the Molders set in motion machinery for barring raiding between CLC affiliates.

WILL HELP MOLDERS

The initial sanctions suspend the Steelworkers' right to vote in the CLC executive council of jurisdictional matters, prohibit other CLC unions from supporting the raid and offer aid to the offenced union in regaining its local.

Further sanctions could lead to the expulsion of the Steelworkers from the congress.

"I think that the Steelworkers, as such, have accepted the sanctions," Mr. Jodoin said. "We have had no protest on the constitutional steps that were taken."

The congress president refused to discuss possible expulsion. "I do not see that at all." He said the dispute was strictly a constitutional matter which was brought into the open through an "indiscretion" by an individual within the congress, he said.

IWA Warned Against More Wage Boosts

VANCOUVER (CP) — An announcement of wage increases for 5,000 skilled lumber workers was followed this week by an industry statement that no further increases need be expected this year.

A contract between the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) and the forest industry expires in June.

The IWA and Forest Industrial Relations — which represents management—announced the wage increases, which range from 10 to 25 cents an hour for skilled categories, effective Jan. 1, 1966.

L. L. G. Bentley, vice-president of Canadian Forest Products Ltd. and president of Seaboard Lumber Sales Ltd., said the same day in his annual Seaboard report:

"There is no economic justification as far as industry goes for a raise this year.

"I am very worried that this situation is not understood by the general public and our own employees, and this misunderstanding will make the coming wage negotiations very difficult indeed."

New Brokerage Office Opens

A new customs brokerage for Victoria has been opened by the firm of Nelson and Harvey Ltd. at 1006 Government.

It assumes the customs brokerage service formerly supplied here by George Paulin Ltd., whose brokerage manager Jack Murray also joins the new office.

The firm has nine offices located at customs ports in B.C.

Merchants Win Praise

Merchants on the 700 Block Yates Street, came in for high praise from Ald. Hugh Stephen at Thursday's meeting of Victoria city council.

Speaking on a proposal that council appeal to the provincial government to amend legislation to permit a canopy to be erected on the north side of Yates as a local improvement, Ald. Stephen said council should do all in its power to assist the merchants.

If the changes in legislation are agreed to, the city will erect the canopy and charge the cost to the merchants as a local improvement.

Subsequent maintenance of the canopy would be the responsibility of the merchants on the block.

Vancouver Hits Magic Number

VANCOUVER (CP)—The figure 300,000,000 became a magic one for the booming Vancouver Stock Exchange last year.

The exchange announced Thursday for the first time the number of shares traded exceeded 300,000,000 and for the first time their value passed the same mark.

The volume for the 12-month period was 300,502,360 with a value of $302,201,820.

In 1964 the figures were 263,289,883 and $219,784,049.

EXCHANGES NAME CHIEF

MONTREAL (UPI)—Charles B. Neapole, vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada, this week was elected president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Neapole, 60, succeeds George Hees, former federal trade and commerce minister, who has returned to politics.

New Terms Advocated

TRAIL (CP)—A proposal to "reopen" all existing contracts and get major wage increases was approved Thursday at the closing session of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union (Ind.) convention.

The plan was part of a series of resolutions designed to offset the effects of automation and technological advances.

Delegates agreed to instruct local officers across Canada to reopen contracts still in force so that "major adjustments," particularly concerning wages, could be made.

on our economic HIGH SEAS, invest in mortgages or a mortgage company. In this way the chance of loss is far less than most other investments. A mortgage represents only PART of the VALUE of the security, and if the value were to come down for any reason the reduction would be unlikely to be sufficient to effect a loss on the well-placed mortgage investment.

For example, if a $10,000 property with a $5,000 Mortgage upon it were to suddenly drop to $6,000, no loss would be inflicted on the mortgage.

Naturally nothing is 100% safe, but the Mortgage field offers the least amount of risk to the invested dollar.

'WOOLF' A SHATTERING PLAY

A New Approach to the Arts at Simon Fraser

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

"We want to open their minds . . . closed minds make people dangerous and boring."

This arresting statement was made by Michael Bawtree, who is in charge of drama at Simon Fraser University.

I had gone to look over this fabulous new university, and was shown around the impressive 520-seat theatre where the walls and ceiling move at the touch of a button.

It is part of the Centre of Communications, which is another name for the arts, through which, after all, man communicates with man.

'THE LAW IS AN ASS', says an often-used quote, and in his play, One Way Pendulum, N. F. Simpson makes law one of the targets for his acerbic wit. This comedy of the absurb is Victoria Theatre Guild's bid for Dominion Drama Festival entry. It will open at Langham Court Theatre Jan. 29. In this scene are, left to right, Dougal Fraser, John Dreand and Robert Lutes. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

Mr. Bawtree is an immensely tolerant, and wise young man. He is not only a graduate of Oxford University, but also an actor, television personality, writer, scholar and assistant at Stratford, Ontario. He has had the exciting job of turning "three sentences in a brochure" into a university department.

Faculty-student divisions are out of date, he says. Therefore he has set up a new type of university theatre company in which everyone is equal, and it is run as a democracy.

He cited two members of the faculty who are working in the costume and carpentry divisions under student supervisors.

Their first play, A Man for All Seasons (for which they borrowed the props from our University of Victoria), was directed by a student, albeit an experienced one — Tom Kerr, holder of a Dominion Drama Festival Award.

Also at the Centre of Communications is Canada's foremost electronic composer, Murray Schafer, whom Mr. Bawtree calls "one of the most brilliant minds on campus."

Mr. Schafer believes that in 10 years there will be Sunday composers, just as now there are Sunday painters.

Apparently he loves to shock his students, with the idea of releasing their originality.

For example he handed out to his class blank pieces of paper. The students began slavishly to copy down something he had written on the blackboard. He soon inquired what they thought they were doing. This was not the idea at all. The object was to take the piece of paper and make a musical instrument out of it!

Another day he gave them the word "credo" and told them to go home and set it to music.

All this is enormously stimulating to the students. Many of those who are most creative are mature people who have given up good incomes and jobs for the opportunity to acquire just this sort of vision that SFU is offering.

As Mr. Bawtree says, they are getting away from their natural fear of an object and into doing something with it.

Whatever their bent, whether writing plays or music, all concerned agree that the superb architecture of SFU, modelled as it is on the Greek Acropolis and the Roman Forum, is an inspiration in every phase of their endeavors.

★ ★ ★

I realize they're fighting words, but since I don't expect that Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? will ever be produced in Victoria, I went on purpose to Vancouver to see the Arts Club Production directed by John Brockingham.

This shattering play is strong meat. Two university professors and their wives spend the night drinking, talking and sleeping together.

It is shocking not only from the sex point of view, and that things are said and done that have not been said and done before on stage.

But more important it is mentally shocking with a Freudian sub-current and clarity of vision that sweeps aside all artifice and hits below the belt.

It is summed up by one of the four characters . . . "We all peel labels, and when you get through . . . and down to bone . . . there's something inside the bone."

The Vancouver production was superbly done, and far exceeded my expectation. Since it was theatre in the round, it can't have been easy, with the first row of the audience so close that their chairs were on the edge of the carpet which marked the "set."

Victoria's Blain Fairman played the difficult part of the younger man, Nick.

I was told the actors preferred the beginning-of-the-week audiences, who were sophisticated and intellectual enough to appreciate the subtleties to Virginia Woolf.

Weekend audiences, who tended to be more prudish, spoiled with their embarrassed titters the terrific emotional impact of the play.

'ONE OF THE GREATEST'

Former Victorian Returning for Recital

MALCOLM HAMILTON
... recording artist

A native son of Victoria who has become a distinguished artist in the United States, will visit the city Feb. 1 in the course of a recital tour.

The performance of Malcolm Hamilton, harpsichordist, at McPherson Playhouse will be under the auspices of Victoria Musical Art Society.

Mr. Hamilton is now completing his doctorate at the University of Southern California, but his phenomenally busy life also includes recitals and other concert engagements as well as recording sessions.

Aside from the complete Bach "Well-Tempered Clavier," recorded previously for Everest of Hollywood, during the recent Christmas season, Mr. Hamilton fulfilled a second recording contract, this time the complete Handel sonatas for violin and harpsichord in collaboration with noted violinist Henri Temianka.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton of Victoria, the gifted artist was educated at Victoria High School and Victoria College and studied piano with Marjorie Tebo, Stanley Shale, Mary Wood and Mary Munn.

Madame Alice Ehlers, world-renowned harpsichordist, with whom Mr. Hamilton frequently forms a unique (on this continent) duo harpsichord team, has said that the former Victorian is already "one of today's greatest living harpsichordists."

Czech Folk Dancers Offer Vivid Spectacle

The long and beautiful tradition of folk art of the people of Czechoslovakia is a permanent source of inspiration for their artists.

Famous poets, painters and musicians emanated from this tradition as well as the founders of Czech music — Bedrich Smetana, Antonin Dvorak, Leos Janacek and others.

Love of this music and the songs and dances that are traditional among their people, inspired the formation of the Czechoslovakia State Folk Dance Troupe.

The ensemble was founded in the autumn of 1948. Poets, choreographers, composers and other artists have created works based on the contemporary life of the people, especially for the troupe.

Since its first performance the ensemble has given more than 2,000 performances before more than 3,000,000 spectators at home and abroad.

On Wednesday next, the Czechoslovakia State Folk Dance Troupe with their singers and instrumentalists, will make a single appearance at Memorial Arena in company with the Harlem Globetrotters' sensational show basketball team.

Featured artist with the troupe is Eva Bosakova, world champion gymnast.

This petite and charming young athlete, in addition to her three world's championships, silver medal at Melbourne and gold at Rome in Olympic competition, was nine times champion of Czechoslovakia, winner of six golden medals in world youth festivals and gathered 244 medals perticipating in international events in 36 countries.

Spirited folk dance of Czechoslovakia is caught in mid-swirl. Troupe is to appear at Arena.

Astor Hotel Goes

NEW YORK (AP)—When the last guest checks out at the end of the year the Astor Hotel will close down after 62 years and be pulled down to make way for a 40-storey office building.

The hotel, one of Times Square's last ties with its elegant past, was sold Friday to Sam Minskoff and Sons for about $10,500,000.

UNKNOWNS SIGNED

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Producer Ross Hunter has signed four unknowns for the lead roles in "The Pad": Brian Bedford, Julie Sommars, James Farentinlo and Edy Williams, none of whom has played in films before.

VETERAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Green will serve for the eighth time as music director and conductor for the Oscar show to be beamed April 19.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1966—PAG 19

Arthur Mayse

The other day I was called on by a personable newcome Victorian in a back-East topcoat and wool scarf who introduced himself as Jerome Olynyk, renter-out of the usual, the unusual and the fantastic.

"Could you rent me a live trout?" I asked.

"Of course," said Mr. Olynyk.

"Or a hive of bees?"

"If you insist. Will you take delivery here or at your home?"

"Well," I said, "how about an elephant?"

"Gladly," replied my visitor, who lives at 476 Lampson and operates from a Pandora Avenue base, "but I should warn you, the expense will be considerable."

At this point, it occurred to me that I was getting in deeper than seemed advisable, so we settled down to discuss items which Mr. Olynyk has actually rented to Victorians since he arrived among us from Peterborough, Ont., five months ago.

We ran through various useful but prosaic items, including baby cribs that magicked themselves into suitcases for parents on tour, paused at bed-wetting alarms—"I have already bathroom-trained a number of children," said Mr. Olynyk proudly—and arrived at reducing equipment.

"Popular," my guest announced, "especially since Christmas, but it must be handled with tact and delicacy. One lady customer had us withhold delivery of a slenderizing machine to her house until after midnight, so that her neighbors wouldn't see it being carried in."

★

A hair stylist before he ventured into the rent-all business here, Ukrainian-born Jerome Olynyky is thoroughly versed in tact. He followed his earlier trade in various European countries before coming to Canada 12 years ago.

The notion of a store that rents everything didn't originate with him; it spread from New York—where you can now whistle up a giraffe rather more easily than you can flag a rush-hour cab—to other cities of the American and Canadian East.

"I believe, though, said Mr. Olynyk placidly, "that I am the first to set up a rent-all store west of Winnipeg."

I thought for a moment, then rashly asked the ubiquitous pioneer if he could fix me up with a coon-trap, a wishing-well, and a wine press.

He nodded an amiable affirmative; he said, smiling, "One of our first requests was for an Italian wine press. None were available in Victoria, so I had one built by experts in Toronto. Since the first rental, it's been out . . . let's see . . . to about 58 homes."

Victoria's demands keep 37-year-old Jerome Olynyk jumping. More than once he has raided family possessions in an emergency.

★

Last weekend, this cannibalizing reached its ultimate when Mr. Rent-All hired out his own ski pants.

"An error," he said. "The fellow brought them back with a hole in the seat."

"A guillotine?" I demanded.

"In use at the moment. Yours when it's free . . . I can also offer a post-hole auger, or a polaroid camera if you happen to need one."

I asked this Santa-for-a-price if he ever ran into a situation he couldn't cope with.

He pondered briefly. "I was approached quite recently for a mink stole by a woman who wished to wear one to a wedding. So I bought the stole, and she wore it with gratifying effect."

"Well?" I asked, "where's the problem?"

"My wife also has a feeling for mink. The stole is now permanently out of stock."

"Crystal ball?" I put in. "There are times in my business when I need one."

"Not on hand," said Mr. Olynyk, tucking in his scarf, "and accurate ones are difficult to obtain." He hesitated, then asked, a touch wistfully, "You're sure you won't settle for the elephant?"

NEW VOCATIONAL WING at Belmont High School will be opened Monday and school will be able, for the first time, to offer complete courses of vocational and commercial studies. Here two students, Cheryl Kennedy and Wendy McClaughry, prepare pizzas as part of foods 11 program. Extensive shops equipped with modern machinery provide facilities for boys' courses. Bladen Report 'Scared' To Predict True Costs

A UBC economics professor today waded into the Bladen Commission report on financing higher education.

Professor Gideon Rosenbluth said: "Someone has to present the full case for public expenditure on higher education and the commission has not done it."

He was talking to 40 people at a Fabian Forum on education held at the Hotel Sidney in Sidney.

Prof. Rosenbluth said the commission, in its report, seemed to be "scared" of making a more aggressive presentation of the case for equality of opportunity and a more realistic forecast of financial needs.

He suggested the conservatism of the Bladen report seemed to be due to considerations of "political expediency."

But, he said, the commission needn't have been worried.

Prof. Rosenbluth said it is possible an increase in government spending on higher education to a greater extent than recommended by the commission and still reduce taxes substantially.

The main point of his criticism was that the report underestimated future student enrolment and future cost of financing higher education.

He said predictions of inrolment were based on estimates by the Canadian Universities Foundation which have been consistently too low over the past few years.

COSTS ADEQUATE

Prof. Rosenbluth said the estimates of future expenditures "avoided such elementary questions as whether past costs per student were adequate; whether inrolment is a strict guide to costs, and such other factors as the growth of graduate schools which are more expensive to maintain.

Prof. Rosenbluth noted that the Bladen Report itself admitted that its estimates are likely "to err on the low side."

He pointed out that some studies indicate the cost of higher education per student has actually fallen during the last decade. He said that if thee studies are correct then the commission projections are actually based on a declining expenditure in the future.

Wild Party By Youths Nets Fines

A wild party on Cornwall St. Friday night resulted in the arrest of two teen-agers.

Robert James McCrae, 19, of 631 Cornwall, was fined $75 for causing a disturbance by being drunk.

It was at his home the party was held, police said.

Barry Bruce, 18, of 1126 Oxford, was also arrested on an intoxication charge. His $15 bail was estreated.

Court was told teen-agers were climbing trees and breaking beer bottles outside the residence around 8:40 p.m.

When police arrived they found 10-15 teen-agers and three juvenile girls in the living room which was littered with beer and wine bottles.

When Bruce was arrested, McCrae came out of the house and tried to get him away from police, said Const. Ken Horsman.

"Situations of this sort are most disturbing and most disgusting to the public," commented Magistrate Harold Alder.

Command Changes At Dockyard

Several changes in ship command were announced today at HMCS Dockyard.

Commander M. A. Turner, commander of the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan, will proceed on leave in early March before assuming another appointment yet to be announced.

His position will be filled by Lt. Cdr. P. J. Travers.

Saskatchewan will also soon have a new executive officer—Lt. Cdr. T. S. Murphy who assumes his new job March 7.

Just this week, Lt. Cdr. R. D. Okros assumed command of the destroyer-escort HMCS Mackenzie, succeeding Cdr. H. Wade.

And Lt. Cdr. G. V. Hanlan assumed command of the ocean escort HMCS Beacon Hill, succeeding Lt. Cdr. W. A. Hughes.

POLICE CHECKING NW LEADS

Faint Hope Three Still Alive

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine Reporter

There is a faint hope the three missing Victoria boys are still alive.

It stemmed today from a police spokesman.

He said: "We haven't yet closed the case. There are one or two things we have to check out."

During the week, police have interviewed chums of the boys at Oak Bay High School.

Following the interviews, several new leads were checked out, said the spokesman.

Oak Bay police are looking for a second boat.

The 14-foot pleasure craft was reported missing last Monday from Oak Bay Marina.

It was midnight Saturday when the three, Dennis Powell, 18; Ronald Hynds, 18, and Wade Squire, 17, left Oak Bay Marina.

They told parents they were going hunting to Chatham Island only two miles away.

According to searchers, there is no sign the boys ever went to the island that night.

Since then, their boat, along with a small amount of debris, has been found awash at Dungeness Spit, east of Port Angeles.

But there has been no sign of the boys or their bright orange lifejackets.

This fact has led police to follow up the theory that something else may have happened the boys.

Police were out today searching the waters around Dungeness Spit.

In addition to looking for further wreckage, they are keeping their eyes out for the missing boat.

"We just can't seem to locate it," said the police spokesman. "We're very anxious to find it."

The boat, belonging to Shawnigan school teacher T. S. Greg, has a white hull with faded red decks.

It is powered by a 40-horsepower engine.

Meanwhile, a description of the boys has been circulated to police departments in Washington State.

While the main search has been called off—a search involving numerous aircraft, ships and small boats were out in the Spit area today.

MACHINE GUN STOLEN FROM CAR

A 9-mm. Stirling sub-machine gun was stolen from a soldier's car parked Friday night in the Yates Street civic parking garage.

Police said the no-draught window on the driver's door was smashed to gain entry.

The gun belonged to Rifleman William N. Muise, 1255 Balmoral, an army spokesman said.

There was no ammunition taken but the soldier's bayonet and scabbard also were stolen. Rifleman Muise is a member of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

The army spokesman said Victoria Provost Section is investigating.

"Unit regulations stipulate weapons of its men are to be retained in specified secure places in unit lines," the spokesman said.

'We Will Make War On Power Hungry Unions, NDPers'

insurance industry spokesman today assailed the NDP Democratic Party and trade unions for their call for government car insurance.

The comment from Justin Harbord, president of the Insurance Agents Association of B.C., came as petitions began circulating door-to-door in Greater Victoria calling for public rather than private car insurance.

"To ordinary men and women this country are being consistently misled by power-hungry politicians on the one hand and labor union leaders who motive is to take public pressure off themselves by proposing government takeover of private enterprise," he said.

INFLATION, HIGH TAXES

"I intend to recommend to the members of my association that we declare war on the real enemies of our way of life—inflation and high taxes caused by power-hungry politicians and the insatiable demands of big labor—the gimme more for less boys."

If the NDP had its way, said Mr. Harbord, about 5,000 people in and associated with the insurance industry in B.C. would be out of work.

"It's time the public realized that every time wages go up in this country the price of every commodity and service also has to increase," he said.

"An eight-year-old child can understand this but not apparently Messrs Jodoin and Strachan."

This was a reference to Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, and Robert Strachan, leader of the New Democratic Party in B.C.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

The CLC is mounting a national campaign for government car insurance next month.

The NDP's provincial council was meeting in Vancouver today. Secretary Ernest Hall said a decision was to be made on what form a campaign by the party will take to boost government car insurance.

The local petitions are being organized by the party's Victoria association.

In a lengthy statement, Mr. Harbord said the CLC and NDP are either deliberately misleading the public or have a lack of knowledge of the facts.

UP 32 PER CENT

In the last 25 years, the average insurance premium increase has been 32 per cent and living costs rose 300 per cent.

Between 1949 and 1964 inclusive, premiums rose 25 per cent, living costs 36 per cent and claims payments 60 per cent.

In the same period, Saskatchewan government insurance premiums went up 65 per cent.

He attacked the Saskatchewan plan, only one of its kind in North America, saying if it was introduced wholesale into B.C. the good risk driver would pay more, not less, than the free enterprise system.

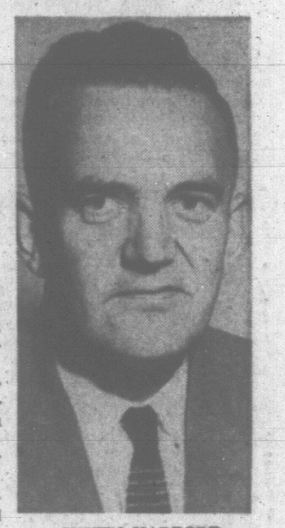

"The cause of higher insurance rates is the irresponsibility of the minority in driving habits plus inflation affecting the cost of repairs, medical and other costs which in turn is caused by the loud-mouthed demands of a few irresponsible major labor leaders," he said.

"Their extremely selfish and incredible demand is give us more but everybody else hold the line.

"Our message to them is—you hold the line on wages and we'll guarantee to keep insurance rates in line with the accident rate which is just plain shocking."

Mr. Harbord said 4,800 persons were killed and 150,000 injured in traffic accidents in Canada last year.

He recommended mandatory jail terms for impaired driving; mandatory jail terms for driving while under suspension, and increasing the minimum driving age to 18 from 16.

CD Takes Look At Boat Rescue

By PETE LOUDON

The British Columbia civil defence organization will give immediate attention to formation of a small boat rescue service in this area.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace, whose office has jurisdiction over the provincial CD framework said today, "This is something civil defence will start looking into."

The idea was voiced earlier this week by department store manager Courtney Haddock, a past commodore of the Victoria Power Boat Squadron.

Mr. Haddock said he would take the matter up with his organization.

Mr. Wallace said he will be in touch with Mr. Haddock to further the idea.

The need for a volunteer group of experienced boat owners was underlined this week by the widespread search for three Victoria youths who failed to return from a boat trip to Chatham Island last Saturday midnight.

Coast Guard, police and private searchers, aided by Air-Sea Rescue planes and helicopters recovered the boat used by the trio, who are feared drowned.

Both Mr. Haddock and Mr. Wallace say a volunteer rescue squadron would be invaluable in future sea searches. But they agree such a group must recruit men who are expert boat operators, who are familiar with off shore waters and communications systems.

Mr. Wallace said the provincial civil defence organization already has formed a CD group of private aircraft operators. He said the role of CD is closely related to all forms of civil disaster and it is well suited to the job of co-ordinating a citizens' marine patrol with the coast guard and the military search and rescue centre at Sea Island.

He said also that CD already possesses communications and rescue equipment which could be made available to organized sea searchers.

Highway Collision Sends 2 to Hospital

Campbell MacDonald, 44, of 1421 Harrison St., Victoria, is in "satisfactory" condition at Chemainus General Hospital following an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway Friday.

MacDonald was a passenger in a car driven by Wayne Harbord, 19, of Duncan, which collided with another car at the intersection of Fullers Road, nine miles north of Duncan.

Harbord was injured when thrown through the windshield. He suffered leg and head injuries but is in satisfactory condition.

Driver of the second car, Robert Norman Murray, Powell River, told RCMP his sports car was struck broadside from the rear as he attempted a left turn into Fullers Road.

He said his car was spun around on the highway.

The Harbord vehicle went over the bank at the side of the highway, into a rock pile, and came to rest against a telephone pole.

Campbell did not regain consciousness until several hours later.

Murray escaped injury in the crash in which damage to both cars was estimated at $1,800.

Atheist Win After the Din?

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

Tories scream,
New Democrats dream.
Grits groan
And Socreds moan.

But when the election is over next week there is a good chance the Christian Atheists will have won.

That is what the serious young politicians at the University of Victoria fear. They are earnestly campaigning for the model parliament to be held on campus Feb. 4 and 5.

Christian Atheists claim to be just as serious about politics as the followers of the old-line parties.

But Pete Gibson, a 19-year-old arts student who is their president, says:

"We want to show that politics can be fun. To do that we have to be different."

That's why they call themselves Christian Atheists.

Their platform in this election is different too. It consists of planks taken from famous Canadian elections of the last century.

★

The issues they will argue are long ago scandals and charges of domination of Canada by the United States.

Says Pete: "We want to show that things have changed very little in this country over the years."

The only matter on which the Christian Atheists agree with the other political groups is that Uvic students are not interested in politics.

Susan Humphries, president of the Liberal Club, says, "They don't give a damn about Viet Nam; or any other political issue for that matter."

She will be overjoyed if 20 per cent of the students vote in the election for the model parliament, the first at Uvic.

Douglas MacAdams, her opposite number in the Progressive Conservative Club, agrees with her. He says the reason for the apathy is that Uvic is a nice place where civil servants can send their daughters.

"The result is there is no academic ferment and no political ferment. There is a general preoccupation with passing tests and getting a degree. No one thinks much about anything apart from their courses."

Liberals in this election are advocating admission of Red China to the UN, a reduction of the voting age to 19, more money for higher education and promotion of bilingualism in Canada to foster national unity.

The Tories want to see Quebec treated like any other province and say it has "no special status." They also advocate a royal commission to study functional illiteracy and under-education. Specifically they advocate a national Canadian university that would provide an "academic focal point" for Canada and be bilingual.

★

Percy Austin, of the New Democrats, says they think the BNA Act should be revised to give more power and responsibility to the provinces and the Criminal Code should be liberalized. In foreign affairs they would like to see Canada adopt a "semi-neutral" position and move to take over leadership of "the smaller non-committed powers."

George Davis says the Social Credit Club advocates monetary reform. He says they think the Bank of Canada should create credit to take care of any future deficit financing.

Socreds also want the UN Charter to be enforced so that any nation delinquent in its annual contribution should be kicked out. They also think Canada should provide foreign assistance only to countries that promote birth-control programs.

A campaing meeting for the election will be held at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Students' Union Building. Voting will be next Friday.

Young-in-Heart Show Takes Over the Plaza

NEW YORK — The Persian Room of the Plaza Hotel is favored, for the most part by elegant, sophisticated couples, who enjoy fine food, an excellent band and top star entertainment. The exuberant uninhibited followers of the "beat" have their own jazz haunts where they throw their youthful energy into the modern dances as if there were no tomorrow.

Damaske

All this was changed last week when the 80-year-old Sears Company joined the "Youthquake" with a kicky young fashion show arranged for fashion writers attending the New York Couture Group Press Week. Within a short period of time each Sears store (including Canadian branches) will have set up a special Junior Bazaar to take care of this tremendous swing to young fashions.

Screens, decked with huge long-petalled white daisies, formed a fresh, appropriate backdrop for the fresh, long-legged, lean, pace-setting under-20 models.

PLAYS PART

We saw many faces of this "under-20 influential", who loves fads and gimmicks, and has the determination to be as different as everyone else is. She's a Courreges girl one minute, a granny the next. Whatever role she's playing, she is it . . . to the utmost. Her skirts are short, shorter, shortest. She adores color . . . the madder the combo, the better.

Pink is a favorite but not a pale, little-girl pink. It's a gay geranium, teamed with grass green, or acid yellow. She wears baby dresses, and smocks with a disarmingly innocent air. She's mad for the poor boy look, in everything from dresses to swimsuits. Her hemlines are flippy . . . skirts and pants rest on the hips.

Many of the designs featured for Sears new Junior Bazaar are creations of designers hardly out of their teens themselves.

Polly Bergen, who is headlining at the Persian Room sang an hour for us after dinner.

Certainly a star in the entertainment world today, she not only has a wonderful voice but she looks the part of a star . . . beautiful, animated and dressed to perfection for the spotlight. For the first portion of her program she wore a clinging gown of silver sequins which appeared to be shading from pale dawn silver to dark night silver. Her second gown, in vibrant electric blue, sparkled as she went from table to table. Both gowns were designed by Scassi of New York, who is a Canadian and began his career in Montreal.

Davidow presented a collection to delight the eye with distinctive fabrics and undated styling. Many of the beautiful woollens are imported from England and Scotland and are so right in weight, coloring and styling for the more conservative good taste of the women of our own part of the world. The classic uncluttered lines of the suits and coats have a timeless elegance.

Misty subtle shadings rather than bold brilliance flatter the woman who has left her very young years behind her. Skirts have an ease of movement . . . whether pleated or gracefully seamed. Jackets are tailored with couture precision . . . understated styling, but always in impeccable taste. Many are buttoned in brass and some have luscious leather buttons with soft leather sash belts en tone. Detail interest is often created by unusual pocket flaps and geometric inserts of self-fabric.

FASHION FAVORITE

Lawrence of London has blazed a trail for raincoats. Once considered utilitarian, rainwear now proudly paces the path of high fashion. Beautiful fabrics of all kinds are now weatherproofed to allow a sudden shower to be a thing of joy.

Pure silk tafreta in imaginative patterns, pure silk broadcloth in a 15-color palette, fine whipcord, Irish linen, worsted wool jersey and pure silk rough-textured tweeds will remain crisply fresh during spring and summer showers —well aware of today's gadabout schedule.

Lawrence of London has built the new collection specifically to fit travel needs. Packable, versatile, climate-crossing, no-weight fabrics are all a part of this recipe. Upper bracket in every way, the Lawrence of London raincoat collection stands out . . . geared for travelling, elegant for cities or practical for country, they are beautifully made in tremendously fitting fabrics.

I saw Ginger Rogers in "Hello Dolly" at the St. James Theatre . . . what a gal! She all know she is no longer an ingenue but she looks marvelous and romped around the stage with all the energy and bounce of a young gal. I did not see the play with Carol Channing, so for me Ginger will always be "Dolly."

Late one evening a group of us went to "Le Club" as guests of Oleg Cassini and here we saw this slender elegant designer dance to his heart's content. There is always a glimpse of his prowess as a dancer when he commentates his show but at this intimate club he really is GO . . . GO . . . GO! The clubs are small . . . the dance floors minute . . . the music blaring . . . the dances wild . . . what a city!

The mood is light and lively . . . at left is seen a coat-dress in window-pane checked white fabric, with lilac insert and bow of a tiny flower print in dark cotton. At right is a sprightly textured cotton knit dress that has a striped bodice in red and white, like a French sailor's middy. The navy skirt is bright with shiny brass buttons. Both are part of the Junior Bazaar collection of Sears.

Discrimination Spoils Career

MONTREAL (CP) — "Being a woman is still a big handicap," said Mrs. J. M. Minifie, wife of the CBC's Washington correspondent, on a visit here.

A professional portrait painter, Mrs. Minifie says she has often lost a commission when the subject finds out she is a woman. "They don't even look at my work. As soon as they find out I'm a woman, that's it."

Nominated—Mrs. C. C. Riach, regent, was nominated as councillor to the National Chapter IODE by the Royal Roads Chapter IODE at the recent meeting in the Victoria Avenue home of Mrs. J. C. F. Blowey. Nominated for councillors of the Provincial Chapter were Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, Mrs. B. T. Shaw and Mrs. Riach. A corsage and life membership in the chapter was presented to Mrs. M. Zabel who is leaving for a tour. Letters from the chapter's adopted schools at Williams Harbor and Kleena Kleen were read by educational convener Miss Helen Rattray. Services convener Mrs. Shaw noted that a hamper had been sent to a needy family. Centennial projects were discussed and voted on by the members.

Guest Speaker—In 10 years, the computer population in the United States has grown from 300 to 30,000, it was noted by Peter Darling when he addressed the Victoria University Women's Club at their recent meeting in the faculty lounge. Mr. Darling, director of the computer centre of the University of Victoria, noted that the modern computer is just coming of age and is much speedier and much more compact than earlier models. Mr. Darling outlined the role of the computer in the present community and business, and also in education. He gave the example of the computer being put to work in analyzing and examining the marks of first-year university students to learn if entrance requirements are correct. He also listed the future opportunities of jobs for university students and high school graduates as being almost limitless. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. A. H. Cameron and thanked by Mrs. H. H. Macartney. Following the meeting, coffee was served by the social committee, headed by convener Mrs. T. C. Evans.

GIRL GUIDES

Bowker District—The annual meeting of the Bowker District Girl Guides will be held in the Oak Bay Guide Hall at 8 p.m. on Tuesday. Meeting will be chaired by recently appointed district commissioner, Mrs. V. A. Smith. The affair is open to guiders, local association members and parents of guides or brownies.

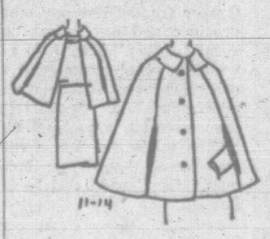

A crepy neck or a double chin can make a fairly young woman look a lot older than she is. Exercise and diet (if overweight is present) and good posture, plus regular lubrication, can add greatly to the beauty of the neck. Do today's exercise. Stand or sit with your hands on your hips. Make circles with your head, reaching as far in each direction as you can. Circle first in one direction and then the other.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

I must tell you about a most attractive cape suite made out of hand-loomed fabric from Scotland. Of course in Scotland, capes are considered standard dress. Capes can be made very tailored as well as full-length and very dressy. The most frustrating thing about them is trying to keep them on your shoulders when you slip your arms out of them in order to be more comfortable while driving a car or shopping or whatever.

The clever idea I saw was a finished strip of fabric about 6 inches long and 1½ inches wide with a buttonhole at each end. Under each side of the fronts, just below the collar was a button where the tab could easily be buttoned.

With this little tab buttoned on, you could slip your arms out of the cape and the cape would still hang nicely on your shoulders. These little things that seem so simple, can often add much enjoyment to wearing a garment.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Big Gamble!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY I know you aren't running a Lonely Hearts Club, but I've nothing to lose but a five-cent stamp, so here goes. I'd like you to help me find a wife. I am 50 years old, never been married and I'm in excellent health. I'm a retired CPO (RCN), get a lifetime pension, have money in the bank and some sure income property. I own a nice little cabin in 12 acres, deep in the woods near a mountain stream. I love to hunt and fish. My wife must be the outdoor type. If she's never skinned a rabbit or filleted a fish, she should be willing to learn. Don't send me any widows with kids, or women under 40. I'm too old to start raising a family, and I don't have to finish raising somebody else's. She doesn't have to look like Sophia Loren as long as she's strong and healthy. Enclosed is my picture. (I look short because I'm standing next to a redwood tree, but I am actually 5 ft. 10 and weigh 180). I'd appreciate any leads you can give me. By the way you don't happen to be single, do you?

WILLING TO GAMBLE

DEAR WILLING Don't gamble on strangers. If you want to take chances, the risk is great enough when you marry someone you know. No, I don't happen to be single, but I wouldn't qualify, anyway because I've never skinned a rabbit and am not willing to learn.

DEAR ABBY My fiance's mother is going into the hospital for at least a week. She has five children. Three of them are young and the two eldest are boys so, naturally, they can't be expected to cook and clean and take care of the little ones. I am in Grade 12 and I hold an after-school job. I offered to stay at my future mother-in-law's home and take charge of things while she is in hospital. She said she thought it was a wonderful idea, but my own mother says she doesn't like the idea at all. What's wrong with it? I already asked if I could be let off from my after-school job for about a week, and was told it would be okay. My fiance and I are trustworthy. He is also in Grade 12 and we could go to school and come back together. Besides, I think the experience would be good for me. I would like your opinion.

ENJOYS RESPONSIBILITY.

DEAR ENJOYS: Your motives may be the highest, but I think your "future mother-in-law" had better find her own replacement. If for no other reason than because your own mother doesn't like your plan.

DEAR ABBY I have been married for seven months and have to put up with about as much crabbing from my husband as I am going to. Here is the problem. My 27-year-old "baby" wants me to wash his back. He claims his mother washed it for him every day when he was home. We have gotten into several fights over this. I don't need anybody to wash my back and I don't see why he needs somebody to wash his. He's just lazy. He claims he has an old back injury and that's why he can't do it himself, but I've seen him put more strain on his back than it takes to wash it. Any suggestions?

NO BACK WASHER.

DEAR NO: Give him the "brush," the kind with a nice long handle on it. And don't forget the soap. (Soft.)

DEAR ABBY "X" and I were secretly married in a civil ceremony in a neighboring province during our freshman year at college. That was in 1964. We never really lived together except for one weekend and a night now and then. It was very unsatisfactory, and we both soon realized it was a mistake, so we just broke off. Now I have met someone else and I am serious about him, but "X" doesn't want to give me a divorce because he's afraid his parents will find out that he was married and there will be trouble. He needs their financial help to finish college and doesn't want to anger them. How can this be handled without publicity? We mean nothing to each other.

SHORT MARRIAGE.

DEAR SHORT: You need legal advice. Trust a lawyer to help you. There is even a possibility that an annulment is in order instead of a divorce.

STAFF FROM LAVAL UNIVERSITY

French Summer Course at UVIC

For the second year in succession, the University of Victoria will offer a seven-week summer course in the French language. This year's course will be held from July 4 to August 19 under the direction of M. Claude Rochette of Laval University. All instructors and monitors will be from the same university.

Using the latest oral-aural method, the course will utilize tapes and pictures prepared by the research centre of Saint Cloud, Paris, so that students will be able to quickly learn the rhythms and intonations of everyday speech.

Students will be required to buy their own tape at $2.60 for the non-credit course. French will be spoken at all times with French-speaking staff directing conversation at meal times, in lounge areas, and during organized activities that will include film showings, sing-songs, soirees, musicales and theatricals.

Minimum entrance requirement is the equivalent of university entrance French. On the first day, an oral test will place students in appropriate groups.

A certificate of attendance will be issued upon request to all who complete the program.

Single and double rooms will be available at Margaret Newton Hall for students wishing to "live in".

Double accommodation will be $300 a person and single $310. All meals will be taken in the campus cafeteria. Those not living on the campus will pay $160 for instruction and will be encouraged to take one meal a day in the Maison Francaise dining room.

A certain number of bursaries of $50 and $100 will be available for Canadian students and teachers and applications for these should be submitted before May 1 to the university's registrar, Prof. R. R. Jeffels. Course registrations should be received by the registrar no later than March 31.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1966—PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

The other day I was called on by a personable newcome Victorian in a back-East topcoat and wool scarf who introduced himself as Jerome Olynyk, renter-out of the usual, the unusual and the fantastic.

"Could you rent me a live trout?" I asked.

"Of course," said Mr. Olynyk.

"Or a hive of bees?"

"If you insist. Will you take delivery here or at your home?"

"Well," I said, "how about an elephant?"

"Gladly," replied my visitor, who lives at 476 Lampson and operates from a Pandora Avenue base, "but I should warn you, the expense will be considerable."

At this point, it occurred to me that I was getting in deeper than seemed advisable, so we settled down to discuss items which Mr. Olynyk has actually rented to Victorians since he arrived among us from Peterborough, Ont., five months ago.

We ran through various useful but prosaic items, including baby cribs that magicked themselves into suitcases for parents on tour, paused at bed-wetting alarms—"I have already bathroom-trained a number of children," said Mr. Olynyk proudly—and arrived at reducing equipment.

"Popular," my guest announced, "especially since Christmas, but it must be handled with tact and delicacy. One lady customer had us withhold delivery of a slenderizing machine to her house until after midnight, so that her neighbors wouldn't see it being carried in."

★

A hair stylist before he ventured into the rent-all business here, Ukrainian-born Jerome Olynyky is thoroughly versed in tact. He followed his earlier trade in various European countries before coming to Canada 12 years ago.

The notion of a store that rents everything didn't originate with him; it spread from New York—where you can now whistle up a giraffe rather more easily than you can flag a rush-hour cab—to other cities of the American and Canadian East.

"I believe, though, said Mr. Olynyk placidly, "that I am the first to set up a rent-all store west of Winnipeg."

I thought for a moment, then rashly asked the ubiquitous pioneer if he could fix me up with a coon-trap, a wishing-well, and a wine press.

He nodded an amiable affirmative; he said, smiling, "One of our first requests was for an Italian wine press. None were available in Victoria, so I had one built by experts in Toronto. Since the first rental, it's been out . . . let's see . . . to about 58 homes."

Victoria's demands keep 37-year-old Jerome Olynyk jumping. More than once he has raided family possessions in an emergency.

★

Last weekend, this cannibalizing reached its ultimate when Mr. Rent-All hired out his own ski pants.

"An error," he said. "The fellow brought them back with a hole in the seat."

"A guillotine?" I demanded.

"In use at the moment. Yours when it's free . . . I can also offer a post-hole auger, or a polaroid camera if you happen to need one."

I asked this Santa-for-a-price if he ever ran into a situation he couldn't cope with.

He pondered briefly. "I was approached quite recently for a mink stole by a woman who wished to wear one to a wedding. So I bought the stole, and she wore it with gratifying effect."

"Well?" I asked, "where's the problem?"

"My wife also has a feeling for mink. The stole is now permanently out of stock."

"Crystal ball?" I put in. "There are times in my business when I need one."

"Not on hand," said Mr. Olynyk, tucking in his scarf, "and accurate ones are difficult to obtain." He hesitated, then asked, a touch wistfully, "You're sure you won't settle for the elephant?"

POLICE CHECKING NEW LEADS

Faint Hope Three Still Alive

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine-Reporter

There is a faint hope the three missing Victoria boys are still alive.

It stemmed today from a police spokesman.

He said: "We haven't yet closed the case. There are one or two things we have to check out."

During the week, police have interviewed chums of the boys at Oak Bay High School.

Following the interviews, several new leads were checked out, said the spokesman.

Oak Bay police are looking for a second boat.

The 14-foot pleasure craft was reported missing last Monday from Oak Bay Marina.

It was midnight Saturday when the three, Dennis Powell, 18; Ronald Hynds, 18, and Wade Squire, 17, left Oak Bay Marina.

They told parents they were going hunting to Chatham Island only two miles away.

According to searchers, there is no sign the boys ever went to the island that night.

Since then, their boat, along with a small amount of debris, has been found awash at Dungeness Spit, east of Port Angeles.

But there has been no sign of the boys or their bright orange lifejackets.

This fact has led police to follow up the theory that something else may have happened to the boys.

Police were out today searching the waters around Dungeness Spit.

In addition to looking for further wreckage, they are keeping their eyes out for the missing boat.

"We just can't seem to locate it," said the police spokesman "We're very anxious to find it."

The boat, belonging to Shawnigan school teacher T. S. Greg, has a white hull with faded red decks.

It is powered by a 40-horsepower engine.

Meanwhile, a description of the boys has been circulated to police departments in Washington State.

While the main search has been called off—a search involving numerous aircraft, ships and small boats was out in the Spit area today.

'We Will Make War On Power-Hungry Unions, NDPers'

An insurance industry spokesman today assailed the New Democratic Party and trade unions for their call for government car insurance.

The comment from Justin Harbord, president of the Insurance Agents Association of B.C., came as petitions began circulating door-to-door in Greater Victoria calling for public rather than private car insurance.

"The ordinary men and women of this country are being constantly misled by power-hungry politicians on the one hand and labor union leaders whose motive is to take public pressure off themselves by proposing government takeover of private enterprise," he said.

INFLATION, HIGH TAXES

"I intend to recommend to the members of my association that we declare war on the real enemies of our way of life—inflation and high taxes caused by power-hungry politicians and the insatiable demands of big labor—the gimme more for less boys."

If the NDP had its way, said Mr. Harbord, about 5,000 people in and associated with the insurance industry in B.C. would be out of work.

"It's time the public realized that every time wages go up in this country the price of every commodity and service also has to increase," he said.

"An eight-year-old child can understand this but not apparently Messrs Jodoin and Strachan."

This was a reference to Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labour Congress, and Robert Strachan, leader of the New Democratic Party in B.C.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

The CLC is mounting a national campaign for government car insurance next month.

The NDP's provincial council was meeting in Vancouver today. Secretary Ernest Hall said a decision was to be made on what form a campaign by the party will take to boost government car insurance.

The local petitions are being organized by the party's Victoria association.

In a lengthy statement, Mr. Harbord said the CLC and NDP are either deliberately misleading the public or have a lack of knowledge of the facts.

UP 32 PER CENT

In the last 25 years, the average insurance premium increase has been 32 per cent and living costs rose 300 per cent.

Between 1949 and 1964 inclusive, premiums rose 25 per cent, living costs 36 per cent and claims payments 60 per cent.

In the same period, Saskatchewan government insurance premiums went up 65 per cent.

He attacked the Saskatchewan plan, only one of its kind in North America, saying if it was introduced wholesale into B.C. the good risk driver would pay more, not less, than the free enterprise system.

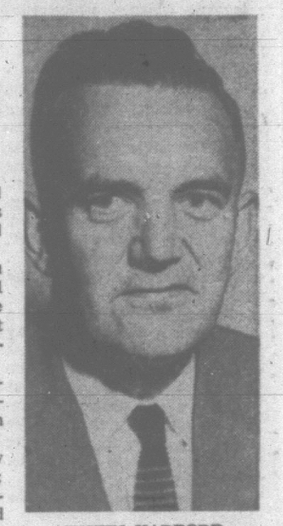

"The cause of higher insurance rates is the irresponsibility of the minority in driving habits plus inflation affecting the cost of repairs, medical and other costs which in turn is caused by the loud-mouthed demands of a few irresponsible major labor leaders," he said.

"Their extremely selfish and incredible demand is give us more but everybody else hold the line.

"Our message to them is—you hold the line on wages and we'll guarantee to keep insurance rates in line with the accident rate which is just plain shocking."

Mr. Harbord said 4,800 persons were killed and 150,000 injured in traffic accidents in Canada last year.

He recommended mandatory jail terms for impaired driving; mandatory jail terms for driving while under suspension, and increasing the minimum driving age to 18 from 16.

MACHINE GUN STOLEN FROM CAR

A 9-mm. Stirling sub-machine gun was stolen from a soldier's car parked Friday night in the Yates Street civic parking garage.

Police said the no-draught window on the driver's door was smashed to gain entry.

The gun belonged to Rifleman William N. Muise, 1255 Balmoral, an army spokesman said.

There was no ammunition taken but the soldier's bayonet and scabbard also were stolen. Rifleman Muise is a member of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

The army spokesman said Victoria Provost Section is investigating.

"Unit regulations stipulate weapons of its men are to be retained in specified secure places in unit lines," the spokesman said.

CD Takes Look At Boat Rescue

By PETE LOUDON

The British Columbia civil defence organization will give immediate attention to formation of a small boat rescue service in this area.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace, whose office has jurisdiction over the provincial CD framework said today, "This is something civil defence will start looking into."

The idea was voiced earlier this week by department store manager Courtney Haddock, a past commodore of the Victoria Power Boat Squadron.

Mr. Haddock said he would take the matter up with his organization.

Mr. Wallace said he will be in touch with Mr. Haddock to further the idea.

The need for a volunteer group of experienced boat owners was underlined this week by the widespread search for three Victoria youths who failed to return from a boat trip to Chatham Island last Saturday midnight.

Coast Guard, police and private searchers, aided by Air-Sea Rescue planes and helicopters recovered the boat used by the trio, who are feared drowned.

Both Mr. Haddock and Mr. Wallace say a volunteer rescue squadron would be invaluable in future sea searches. But they agree such a group must recruit men who are expert boat operators, who are familiar with off shore waters and communications systems.

Mr. Wallace said the provincial civil defence organization already has formed a CD group of private aircraft operators. He said the role of CD is closely related to all forms of civil disaster and it is well suited to the job of co-ordinating a citizens' marine patrol with the coast guard and the military search and rescue centre at Sea Island.

He said also that CD already possesses communications and rescue equipment which could be made available to organized sea searchers.

Bladen Report 'Scared' To Predict True Costs

A UBC economics professor today waded into the Bladen Commission report on financing higher education.

Professor Gideon Rosenbluth said: "Someone has to present the full case for public expenditure on higher education and the commission has not done it."

He was talking to 40 people at a Fabian Forum on education held at the Hotel Sidney in Sidney.

Prof. Rosenbluth said the commission, in its report, seemed to be "scared" of making a more aggressive presentation of the case for equality of opportunity and a more realistic forecast of financial needs.

He suggested the conservatism of the Bladen report seemed to be due to considerations of "political expediency."

But, he said, the commission needn't have been worried.

Prof. Rosenbluth said it is possible to increase government spending on higher education to a greater extent than recommended by the commission and still reduce taxes substantially.

The main point of his criticism was that the report underestimated future student enrolment and future cost of financing higher education.

He said predictions of inrolment were based on estimates by the Canadian Universities Foundation which have been consistently too low over the past few years.

COSTS ADEQUATE

Prof. Rosenbluth said the estimates of future expenditures "avoided such elementary questions as whether past costs per student were adequate; whether enrolment is a strict guide to costs, and such other factors as the growth of graduate schools which are more expensive to maintain.

Prof. Rosenbluth noted that the Bladen Report itself admitted that its estimates are likely "to err on the low side."

He pointed out that some studies indicate the cost of higher education per student has actually fallen during the last decade. He said that if these studies are correct then the commission projections are actually based on a declining expenditure in the future.

Command Changes At Dockyard

Several changes in ship command were announced today at HMCS Dockyard.

Commander M. A. Turner, commander of the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan, will proceed on leave in early March before assuming another appointment yet to be announced.

His position will be filled by Lt. Cdr. P. J. Travers.

Saskatchewan will also soon have a new executive officer—Lt. Cdr. T. S. Murphy who assumes his new job March 7

Just this week, Lt. Cdr. R. D. Okros assumed command of the destroyer-escort HMCS Mackenzie, succeeding Cdr. H. J. Wade.

And Lt. Cdr. G. V. Hartman assumed command of the ocean escort HMCS Beacon Hill, succeeding Lt. Cdr. W. A. Hughes.

Wild Party By Youths Nets Fines

A wild party on Cornwall St. Friday night resulted in the arrest of two teen-agers.

Robert James McCrae, 19, of 631 Cornwall, was fined $75 for causing a disturbance by being drunk.

It was at his home the party was held, police said.

Barry Bruce, 18, of 1126 Oxford, was also arrested on an intoxication charge. His $15 bail was forfeited.

Court was told teen-agers were climbing trees and breaking beer bottles outside the residence around 8:40 p.m.

When police arrived they found 10-15 teen-agers and three juvenile girls in the living room which was littered with beer and wine bottles.

When Bruce was arrested, McCrae came out of the house and tried to get him away from police, said Const. Ken Horsman.

"Situations of this sort are most disturbing and most disgusting to the public," commented Magistrate Harold Alder.

Highway Collision Sends 2 to Hospital

Campbell MacDonald, 44, of 1421 Harrison St., Victoria, is in "satisfactory" condition at Chemainus General Hospital following an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway Friday.

MacDonald was a passenger in a car driven by Wayne Harbord, 19, of Duncan, which collided with another car at the intersection of Fullers Road, nine miles north of Duncan.

Harbord was injured when thrown through the windshield. He suffered leg and head injuries but is in satisfactory condition.

Driver of the second car, Robert Norman Murray, Powell River, told RCMP his sports car was struck broadside from the rear as he attempted a left turn into Fullers Road.

He said his car was spun around on the highway.

The Harbord vehicle went over the bank at the side of the highway, into a rock pile, and came to rest against a telephone pole.

Campbell did not regain consciousness until several hours later.

Murray escaped injury in the crash in which damage to both cars was estimated at $1,800.

Grits groan
And Socreds moan.

But when the election is over next week there is a good chance the Christian Atheists will have won.

That is what the serious young politicians at the University of Victoria fear. They are earnestly campaigning for the model parliament to be held on campus Feb. 4 and 5.

Christian Atheists claim to be just as serious about politics as the followers of the old-line parties.

But Pete Gibson, a 19-year-old arts student who is their president, says:

"We want to show that politics can be fun. To do that we have to be different."

That's why they call themselves Christian Atheists.

Their platform in this election is different too. It consists of planks taken from famous Canadian elections of the last century.

★

The issues they will argue are long ago scandals and charges of domination of Canada by the United States.

Says Pete: "We want to show that things have changed very little in this country over the years."

The only matter on which the Christian Atheists agree with the other political groups is that Uvic students are not interested in politics.

Atheist Win After the Din?

Susan Humphries, president of the Liberal Club, says, "They don't give a damn about Viet Nam, or any other political issue for that matter."

She will be overjoyed if 20 per cent of the students vote in the election for the model parliament, the first at Uvic.

Douglas MacAdams, her opposite number in the Progressive Conservative Club, agrees with her. He says the reason for the apathy is that "Uvic is a nice place where civil servants can send their daughters.

"The result is there is no academic ferment and no political ferment. There is a general preoccupation with passing tests and getting a degree. No one thinks much about anything apart from their courses."

Liberals in this election are advocating admission of Red China to the UN, a reduction of the voting age to 19, more money for higher education and promotion of bilingualism in Canada to foster national unity.

The Tories want to see Quebec treated like any other province and say it has "no special status." They also advocate a royal commission to study functional illiteracy and under-education. Specifically they advocate a national Canadian university that would provide an "academic focal point" for Canada and be bilingual.

★

Percy Austin, of the New Democrats, says they think the BNA Act should be revised to give more power and responsibility to the provinces and the Criminal Code should be liberalized. In foreign affairs they would like to see Canada adopt a "semi-neutral" position and move to take over leadership of "the smaller non-committed powers."

George Davis says the Social Credit Club advocates monetary reform. He says they think the Bank of Canada should create credit to take care of any future deficit financing.

Socreds also want the UN Charter to be enforced so that any nation delinquent in its annual contribution should be kicked out. They also think Canada should provide foreign assistance only to countries that promote birth-control programs.

A campaign meeting for the election will be held at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Students' Union Building. Voting will be next Friday.

In Step With Style — By Nona Damaske

Young-in-Heart Show Takes Over the Plaza

NEW YORK — The Persian Room of the Plaza Hotel is favored, for the most part by elegant, sophisticated couples, who enjoy fine food, an excellent band and top star entertainment. The bouncy uninhibited followers of the "beat" have their own jazz haunts where they throw their youthful energy into the modern dances as if there were no tomorrow.

Damaske

All this was changed last week when the 80-year-old Sears Company joined the "Youthquake" with a kicky young fashion show arranged for fashion writers attending the New York Couture Group Press Week. Within a short period of time each Sears store (including Canadian branches) will have set up a special Junior Bazaar to take care of this tremendous swing to young fashions.

Screens, decked with huge long-petalled white daisies, formed a fresh, appropriate backdrop for the fresh, long-legged, lean, pace-setting under-20 models.

PLAYS PART

We saw many faces of this "under-20 influential", who loves fads and gimmicks, and has the determination to be as different as everyone else is. She's a Courreges girl one minute, a granny the next. Whatever role she's playing, she is it... to the utmost. Her skirts are short, shorter, shortest. She adores color... the madder the combo, the better.

Pink is a favorite but not a pale, little-girl pink. It's a gay geranium, teamed with grass green, or acid yellow. She wears baby dresses, and smocks with a disarmingly innocent air. She's mad for the poor boy look, in everything from dresses to swimsuits. Her hemlines are flippy... skirts and pants rest on the hips.

Many of the designs featured for Sears new Junior Bazaar are creations of designers hardly out of their teens themselves.

Polly Bergen, who is headlining at the Persian Room sang an hour for us after dinner.

Certainly a star in the entertainment world today, she not only has a wonderful voice but she looks the part of a star . . . beautiful, animated and dressed to perfection for the spotlight. For the first portion of her program she wore a clinging gown of silver sequins which appeared to be shading from pale dawn silver to dark night silver. Her second gown, in vibrant electric blue, sparkled as she went from table to table. Both gowns were designed by Scassi of New York, who is a Canadian and began his career in Montreal.

Davidow presented a collection to delight the eye with distinctive fabrics and undated styling. Many of the beautiful woollens are imported from England and Scotland and are so right in weight, coloring and styling for the more conservative good taste of the women of our own part of the world. The classic uncluttered lines of the suits and coats have a timeless elegance.

Misty subtle shadings rather than bold brilliance flatter the woman who has left her very young years behind her. Skirts have an ease of movement . . . whether pleated or gracefully seamed. Jackets are tailored with couture precision . . . understated styling, but always in impeccable taste. Many are buttoned in brass and some have luscious leather buttons with soft leather sash belts en tone. Detail interest is often created by unusual pocket flaps and geometric inserts of self-fabric.

FASHION FAVORITE

Lawrence of London has blazed a trail for raincoats. Once considered utilitarian, rainwear now proudly paces the path of high fashion. Beautiful fabrics of all kinds are now weatherproofed to allow a sudden shower to be a thing of joy.

Pure silk taffeta in imaginative patterns, pure silk broadcloth in a 15-color palette, fine whipcord, Irish linen, worsted wool jersey and pure silk rough-textured tweeds will remain crisply fresh during spring and summer showers. —well aware of today's gad-about schedule.

Lawrence of London has built the new collection specifically to fit travel needs. Packable, versatile, climate-crossing, no-weight fabrics are all a part of this recipe. Upper bracket in every way, the Lawrence of London raincoat collection stands out . . . geared for travelling, elegant for cities or practical for country, they are beautifully made in tremendously exciting fabrics.

I saw Ginger Rogers in "Hello Dolly" at the St. James Theatre . . . what a gal! We all know she is no longer an ingenue but she looks marvellous and romped around the stage with all the energy and bounce of a young gal. I did not see the play with Carol Channing, so for me Ginger will always be "Dolly."

Late one evening a group of us went to "Le Club" as guests of Oleg Cassini and here we saw this slender elegant designer dance to his heart's content. There is always a glimpse of his prowess as a dancer when he commentates his show but at this intimate club he really is GO . . . GO . . . GO! The clubs are small . . . the dance floors minute . . . the music blaring . . . the dances wild . . . what a city!

Women

Women's Editor — Pat Dufour

The mood is light and lively . . . at left is seen a coat-dress in window-pane checked white fabric, with collar insert and bow of a tiny flower print in dark cotton. At right is a sprightly textured cotton knit dress that has a striped bodice in red and white, like a French seaman's middy. The navy skirt is bright with shiny brass buttons. — Both are part of the Junior Bazaar collection of Sears.

Discrimination Spoils Career

MONTREAL (CP) — "Being a woman is still a big handicap," said Mrs. J. M. Minifie, wife of the CBC's Washington correspondent, on a visit here.

A professional portrait painter, Mrs. Minifie says she has often lost a commission when the subject finds out she is a woman. "They don't even look at my work. As soon as they find out I'm a woman, that's it."

Nominated—Mrs. C. C. Riach, regent, was nominated as councillor to the National Chapter IODE by the Royal Roads Chapter IODE at the recent meeting in the Victoria Avenue home of Mrs. J. C. F. Blowey. Nominated for councillors of the Provincial Chapter were Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, Mrs. B. T. Shaw and Mrs. Riach. A corsage and life membership in the chapter was presented to Mrs. M. Zabel who is leaving for a tour. Letters from the chapter's adopted schools at Williams Harbor and Kleena Kleen were read by educational convener Miss Helen Rattray. Services convener Mrs. Shaw noted that a hamper had been sent to a needy family. Centennial projects were discussed and voted on by the members.

Guest Speaker—In 10 years, the computer population in the United States has grown from 300 to 30,000, it was noted by Peter Darling when he addressed the Victoria University Women's Club at their recent meeting in the faculty lounge. Mr. Darling, director of the computer centre of the University of Victoria, noted that the modern computer is just coming of age and is much speedier and much more compact than earlier models. Mr. Darling outlined the role of the computer in the present community and business, and also in education. He gave the example of the computer being put to work in analyzing and examining the marks of first-year university students to learn if entrance requirements are correct. He also listed the future opportunities of jobs for university students and high school graduates as being almost limitless. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. A. H. Cameron and thanked by Mrs. H. H. Macartney. Following the meeting, coffee was served by the social committee, headed by convener Mrs. T. C. Evans.

GIRL GUIDES

Bowker District—The annual meeting of the Bowker District Girl Guides will be held in the Oak Bay Guide Hall at 8 p.m. on Tuesday. Meeting will be chaired by recently appointed district commissioner, Mrs. V. A. Smith. The affair is open to guiders, local association members and parents of guides or brownies.

A crepy neck or a double chin can make a fairly young woman look a lot older than she is. Exercise and diet (if overweight is present) and good posture, plus regular lubrication, can add greatly to the beauty of the neck. Do today's exercise. Stand or sit with your hands on your hips. Make circles with your head, reaching as far in each direction as you can. Circle first in one direction and then the other.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

I must tell you about a most attractive cape suite made out of hand-loomed fabric from Scotland. Of course in Scotland, capes are considered standard dress. Capes can be made very tailored as well as full-length and very dressy. The most frustrating thing about them is trying to keep them on your shoulders when you slip your arms out of them in order to be more comfortable while driving a car or shopping or whatever.

The clever idea I saw was a finished strip of fabric about 6 inches long and 1½ inches wide with a buttonhole at each end. Under each side of the fronts, just below the collar was a button where the tab could easily be buttoned.

With this little tab buttoned on, you could slip your arms out of the cape and the cape would still hang nicely on your shoulders. These little things that seem so simple, can often add much enjoyment to wearing a garment.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY

Vent: a finished opening in a garment, usually found at the centre back or side seams of coats or jackets.

DEAR ABBY . . .

A Big Gamble!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY I know you aren't running a Lonely Hearts Club, but I've nothing to lose but a five-cent stamp, so here goes. I'd like you to help me find a wife. I am 50 years old, never been married and I'm in excellent health. I'm a retired CPO (RCN), get a lifetime pension, have money in the bank and some sure income property. I own a nice little cabin in 12 acres, deep in the woods near a mountain stream. I love to hunt and fish. My wife must be the outdoor type. If she's never skinned a rabbit or filleted a fish, she should be willing to learn. Don't send me any widows with kids, or women under 40. I'm too old to start raising a family, and I don't care to finish raising somebody else's. She doesn't have to look like Sophia Loren as long as she's strong and healthy. Enclosed is my picture. (I look short because I'm standing next to a redwood tree, but I am actually 5 ft. 10 and weigh 180). I'd appreciate any leads you can give me. By the way you don't happen to be single, do you?

WILLING TO GAMBLE

DEAR WILLING Don't gamble on strangers. If you want to take chances, the risk is great enough when you marry someone you know. No, I don't happen to be single, but I wouldn't qualify anyway because I've never skinned a rabbit and am not willing to learn.

DEAR ABBY My fiance's mother is going into the hospital for at least a week. She has five children. Three of them are young and the two eldest are boys so, naturally, they can't be expected to cook and clean and take care of the little ones. I am in Grade 12 and I hold an after-school job. I offered to stay at my future mother-in-law's home and take charge of things while she is in hospital. She said she thought it was a wonderful idea, but my own mother says she doesn't like the idea at all. What's wrong with it? I already asked if I could be let off from my after-school job for about a week, and was told it would be okay. My fiance and I are trustworthy. He is also in Grade 12 and we could go to school and come back together. Besides, I think the experience would be good for me. I would like your opinion.

DEAR ENJOYS: Your motives may be the highest, but I think your "future mother-in-law" had better find her own replacement. If for no other reason than because your own mother doesn't like your plan.

DEAR ABBY I have been married for seven months and have to put up with about as much crabbing from my husband as I am going to. Here is the problem. My 27-year-old "baby" wants me to wash his back. He claims his mother washed it for him every day when he was home. We have gotten into several fights over this. I don't need anybody to wash my back and I don't see why he needs somebody to wash his. He's just lazy. He claims he has an old back injury and that's why he can't do it himself, but I've seen him put more strain on his back than it takes to wash it. Any suggestions?

NO BACK WASHER.

DEAR NO: Give him the "brush," the kind with a nice long handle on it. And don't forget the soap. (Soft.)

DEAR ABBY "X" and I were secretly married in a civil ceremony in a neighboring province during our freshman year at college. That was in 1964. We never really lived together except for one weekend and a night now and then. It was very unsatisfactory, and we both soon realized it was a mistake, so we just broke off. Now I have met someone else and I am serious about him, but "X" doesn't want to give me a divorce because he's afraid his parents will find out that he was married and there will be trouble. He needs their financial help to finish college and doesn't want to anger them. How can this be handled without publicity? We mean nothing to each other.

SHORT MARRIAGE.

DEAR SHORT: You need legal advice. Trust a lawyer to help you. There is even a possibility that an annulment is in order instead of a divorce.

STAFF FROM LAVAL UNIVERSITY

French Summer Course at UVIC

For the second year in succession, the University of Victoria will offer a seven-week summer course in the French language. This year's course will be held from July 4 to August 19 under the direction of M. Claude Rochette of Laval University. All instructors and monitors will be from the same university.

Using the latest oral-aural method, the course will utilize tapes and pictures prepared by the research centre of Saint Cloud, Paris, so that students will be able to quickly learn the rhythms and intonations of everyday speech.

Students will be required to buy their own tape at $2.60 for the non-credit course. French will be spoken at all times with French-speaking staff directing conversation at meal times, in lounge areas, and during organized activities that will include film showings, sing-songs, soirees, musicales and theatricals.

Minimum entrance requirement is the equivalent of university entrance French. On the first day, an oral test will place students in appropriate groups.

A certificate of attendance will be issued upon request to all who complete the program.

Single and double rooms will be available at Margaret Newton Hall for students wishing to "live in".

Double accommodation will be $300 a person and single $310. All meals will be taken in the campus cafeteria. Those not living on the campus will pay $160 for instruction and will be encouraged to take one meal a day in the Maison Francaise dining room.

A certain number of bursaries of $50 and $100 will be available for Canadian students and teachers and applications for these should be submitted before May 1 to the university's registrar, Prof. R. R. Jeffels. Course registrations should be received by the registrar no later than March 31.

NEW TIMES SERIES

Taxes Soaring: Who's Villain?

Are you working longer today than in past years to pay your property taxes? Are they soaring faster than wages and other living costs? Are other provinces ahead of us in needed tax reforms? Times reporter Pete Loudon gets answers to these questions in this series—answers every voter should hear.

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria and district property owners soon will open those dreadfully familiar tax notices—and blink.

If the trend of recent years continues, they're going to be increased again.

Poor blinking taxpayer.

Or is he?

Municipal officials claim they've cut costs to the bone and they're giving good value for every dollar spent on civic services which they control.

Loudon

They say if property taxes seem too high blame the provincial government for not handing over more of those juicy provincial revenues.

On the other hand, Premier Bennett boasts that his government provides municipal aid more generously than any other province.

Who are you going to believe?

The only thing most of us know for sure is that each year we're digging a little deeper. The average homeowner knows of course that he's paying more for everything as a country-wide inflation continues. And most of us are earning more too.

But what is our actual position on taxes in relation to other living costs and income? Are we gaining or losing? And if we're losing, what's to be done about it? And who's the villain in the piece?

These are the questions the Times took to municipal and provincial officials and here are some of the differing replies.

First of all, if you think property taxes are getting worse, you're right.

In Victoria, a home now assessed at $10,000 was taxed $104.89 back in 1950. Fifteen years later, in 1965 the tax, after deducting the $100 homeowner grant, was $266.91.

That's an increase of 154 per cent.

During the same period the average weekly wages and salaries in this area increased from $45.68 to $89.64. That's an increase of only 95 per cent

Three Week's Pay At Stake

This means a man earning the average pay in 1950 could earn enough to pay his property tax in roughly two weeks.

Last year he had to work more than three weeks to settle the bill.

In the same 15-year period that home taxes more than doubled, the cost of living generally (the consumer price index) was increased by only 32 per cent. Taxes far outstripped the upward climb of almost all our other expenses.

Is Victoria an isolated case? Let's look at some figures representing the property tax gross payments for all of British Columbia.

The department of municipal affairs last year published figures showing that between 1957 and 1964 the value of all taxable properties in B.C. increased from $2.3 billion to $3.5 billion.

That's an increase of roughly 50 per cent.

But in the same period tax revenues from this property increased from $78 million to $155 million.

That's an increase of 100 per cent.

The table indicates that the costs of local government have increased at double the rate of community growth.

And where the tax revenues nine years ago represented 3 1/3 per cent of assessed values for all B.C. in 1964 the rate had climbed to 5 1/3 per cent.

The municipalities admit that in recent years the province has been paying an increasing share of costs facing municipalities. Ten years ago, Vancouver City Hall reports, provincial aid represented 44½ per cent of school operating costs. Today the figure is 54 per cent.

Aside from increased contributions to school costs the province also has increased its assistance to other municipal expenditures in the past 10 years.

BULLETINS

Cyclist Hurt

A motor cyclist narrowly escaped death today when he was in collision with a car at Helmcken and Old Island Highway this afternoon.

Colwood RCMP said Ralph E. Foss, 22, of 351 Craigflower, was flung from his bike and landed on his head on the pavement. The motorcycle bounced across the road into a fire hydrant. His crash helmet saved his life, police said. Foss was taken to hospital suffering shock.

Boston Bruins Win

BOSTON (UPI) — Bob Dillabough scored twice today to lead the last place Boston Bruins to a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over the fifth-place New York Rangers.

Wings Clipped

MONTREAL (UPI) — Thieves made off with 50 jerseys belonging to the Detroit Red Wings hockey team while the pullovers were drying after an old-timers' match with the Montreal Canadiens.

The theft, discovered today in the Montreal Forum dressing room, totalled nearly $1,000, a Red Wing spokesman said.

Tunney Released

BOSTON (AP)—Gene Tunney, retired undefeated heavyweight boxing champion, was released from New England Baptist Hospital today after some 10 days observation.

The 67-year-old Tunney told reporters he felt fine.

Margin of Nine Votes Saves Pearson Gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson and his four followers saved the minority Liberal government from defeat in the Commons Friday by voting against a motion for $100 old age pensions.

The Social Credit quintet made the difference as the government survived its first test of the new Parliament by a nine-vote margin. Mr. Thompson said his group favors $100-a-month pensions, but will vote against non-confidence motions to ensure stability and prevent an early election.

A New Democratic motion criticizing the government for failing to boost pensions by $25 and pay them at age 65 immediately instead of at age 69 was turned back 126 to 117.

The NDP maintained its motion should not be considered as one of non - confidence, but Prime Minister Pearson rejected the universal $100 pension as not feasible now and indicated there would be a new election if his party was defeated in the House.

The motion was supported by 39 Conservatives, 20 New Democrats and eight Creditistes. J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres), a former Liberal sitting as an independent, voted with the 120 Liberals present.

FURTHER VOTE TUESDAY

A similar Conservative motion favoring $100 pensions comes to a vote Tuesday night.

Commons standings are Liberals 131, Conservatives 97, NDP 21, Creditistes 9, Social Credit five and independents two for a total of 265.

Friday's vote came on the second day of the eight-day throne speech debate. Backbenchers discussed a wide variety of issues, including organized crime, divorce laws, medical care and safer cars.

Had the five Social Credit MPs voted for the motion, the government would have been defeated 122 to 121. The rules require all MPs present in the Commons to cast a vote, unless they are paired with a member of another party who is absent.

Opposition members hooted, jeered and banged their desks as Mr. Thompson and his four colleagues stood up to vote with the government.

Before the vote, Mr. Thompson said the Conservative motion reflects Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's desire to topple the Liberals and become prime minister again.

The real issue at stake was political stability, not higher pensions.

WILL BLAME THOMPSON

Hugh Horner (PC — Jasper-Edson) said Mr. Thompson should be held responsible if the Commons rejects a motion in favor of $100 pensions.

He and Creditiste Leader Caouette said pensioners can no longer get by on $75 a month because of rising costs. Mr.

Motorist Sees Body In Bushes

BALEWA

LAGOS (Reuters) — Prime Minister Abubakar Tefawa Balewa's body was found Friday 27 miles from here near the western Nigerian town of Abeokuta, it was announced today.

The new military government, which reported the death but gave no details of how Balewa died or where his body was found, ordered offices to close and flags to be flown at half-mast as a mark of respect for "this great son of Nigeria."

Informed sources said the body of the 53-year-old premier was found around Abeokuta, the same area where finance minister Olotie Eboh's body was found with gunshot wounds Wednesday.

Balewa and Eboh were kidnapped and had been missing since elements of the army staged an uprising last Saturday.

Balewa, who was prime minister since 1957, was to be buried today in his hometown of Bauchi, northern Nigeria.

BODY FOUND IN BUSH

His body was seen by a passing motorist lying in a bush about 25 yards from the main road between Ifo and Sango-Otto. Nearby was another body, not identified.

Eye-witnesses said the two bodies were in an advanced stage of decomposition.

They were near a pool where the local village women did their washing, and it appeared they had been brought to the spot Friday. Villagers notified the police and the bodies were removed this morning.

Gen. Johnson Aguiyi - Irsonsi took control of the country following what his military regime called "a general disorder in the Nigerian army," a week ago.

RETURN TO CAPITALS

Meanwhile, the four regional military governors appointed by the new regime now have returned to their capitals after referring in Lagos with Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi-Ironsi.

The West region's Lt.-Col. Adekunle Fajuyi said on arrival in Abadan Friday the country must now embark on reconstruction.

"For too long, peace, which is the fruit of freedom and liberty, has eluded Western Nigeria," Fajuyi said, adding:

"For too long we have lived in fear of one another. I am sure we have all had enough of this.

"I emphasize the supreme commander's order that murder, looting, arson and all acts of public disorder be stopped immediately."

Grim Details Of Killings Described

TORONTO (CP)—The killing last week of Nigeria's Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tefawa Balewa and two other government officials is described in detail in The Star in a story by a staff writer Mark Harrison from Lagos.

Harrison says the three were killed by soldiers who struck at the same time in two different locations in a coup that led to establishment of a military government.

Harrison flew to Lagos last weekend, a few hours after Balewa's government was overthrown. For days, The Star says, attempts to file his story were blocked by censorship. He left Nigeria Friday night and filed his story from London.

Harrison's story on Balewa's killing included these details:

"Armed conspirators broke into the home . . . overpowered his police bodyguard, and carried off the man regarded as one of the most respected leaders of the Commonwealth.

". . . His body was hidden and it was not until Saturday that the new military government confirmed his death.

"Next door, another group of soldiers hauled Finance Minister Festus Okotie-Eboh from his bed.

"The quaking minister pleaded for his life and offered his captors up to $1,000,000 to spare him, but in vain. His bullet-riddled body was found four days later in a shallow grave . . ."

Gov't Falls

PALERMO, Italy (Reuters) —Sicily, like Italy, was without a government tonight.

Its centre-left regional coalition fell because the regional assembly was deadlocked 44 to 44 in a vote on the 1966 budget.

Under the assembly's procedure, this meant the measure was not approved.

THEY'LL SMILE IN U.S.

Pack Up Your Scouse In Your Old Kit Bag

LONDON (AP)—Englishmen contemplating a trip to the United States were urged today to speak up and not be shy, because "the Limey lingo can open every door."

This advice was offered by Alec Snobel, an editor of The Sun, in a column telling his countrymen how to get along while touring the U.S.

"Talk, ask questions. Argue. Chat 'em up. Babble to taximen, bartenders, cops. Speak like Laurence Olivier or Ringo Starr; speak Oxford or Cardiff; speak Cockney, Scots or Scouse (lingo of Liverpool, home of the Beatles.) But speak. The Yanks love a Limey."

Snobel said his English accent "won me juleps in Georgia; daiquiris in Delaware ("Jes' let me hear you say "cawfee" again, feller"); bourbons in Baltimore ("I guess you noo Churchill?"), and more dinner invitations than I could handle in a lifetime."

PERSONAL CAMPAIGN BY DOCTORS URGED

Dear Patient: Medicare Bad Medicine

TORONTO (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Medical Association has sent a letter to 7,500 association members urging them to enlist their patients' help in the fight against the federal government's proposed national health plan.

The letter, signed by R. E. Brownridge, assistant secretary of the association, provides doctors with a draft of a letter to be sent to patients.

In an interview, Glen Sawyer, general secretary of the OMA called the letter "an effective way of getting across to patients our views on the proposed medical care scheme."

"A patient appreciates what his own physician tells him," he said. "All patients think their doctor is a great fellow."

The letter, sanctioned by the OMA's executive, suggests doctors tell patients:

"I would become virtually an employee of the government and not be free to care for your family as I have done in the past if the national medical care plan is accepted."

The letter also says doctors' visits would become "shorter and shorter" because more patients will be "demanding more service—in order to get their money's worth from the government."

The letter calls the medical care scheme an "attempt to impose socialism on an unsuspecting populace."

Accompanying the proposed draft letter to patients is a copy of a strong anti-medicare speech by Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta. The OMA said the speech was sent to all members to "inform them about the federal plan."

"The OMA board of directors feel greater use should be made of this speech which reflects the philosophy of the medical profession with regard to medical services insurance."

Also enclosed in the letter to OMA physicians is an association postcard addressed to Prime Minister Pearson protesting the federal medical plan.

In the suggested draft letter, Mr. Brownridge says the main reason for writing is "to warn you (patients) that the Ontario plan might be changed to fit with a national health plan proposed by the federal government.

"Prime Minister Pearson, for reasons best known to himself and his advisers, has said the federal government will contribute funds to provincial medicare plans only if the plans are compulsory for everyone and operated by the government."

Mr. Brownridge says he is "deeply concerned" about the government's proposal because a compulsory government-operated plan "could adversely affect our relationship."

There's much t' be said fer havin' yer army shoot at other people's prime ministers 'stead o' backin' up th' home product.

Victoria Maple Leafs (we still think it should be leaves) owes three pre-luncheon drinks to whatever group it was that dined at Dominion on Wednesday.

The team had a luncheon the same day and one of the players didn't check the location too closely.

He downed three quickies in the banquet room before he realized the others weren't in his league, then with mounting terror made off for the Ingraham and the correct gathering. Score 3-0 for Victoria.

Gastown, across the strait, is holding a centennial spring carnival March 11 to 20, has pinched the idea and will send daffs to Ottawa with their MPs and to Seattle with a car caravan. To add to their crime, they'll use Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island daffodils.

"The only profit is from the investment of premium monies. Cash taken in and paid out on claims, less overhead, just about balances their budgets."

Past 'Horrors' Now Forgiven

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN (AP)—German churches are joining a highly unusual initiative in central Europe to bring together not only the peoples of Communist and anti-Communist areas but also those much more ancient enemies—the German and the Pole.

German Roman Catholic bishops have accepted an invitation from the bishops of Communist-ruled Poland to help celebrate the 1,000th anniversary next spring of Poland's Christianization.

Acceptance came in a letter signed jointly by the bishop of West Germany and of Communist East Germany. They don't often get together publicly.

With both the invitation and acceptance went warm words of forgiveness for the horrors of the past.

A few weeks ago the Protestant churches of West Germany approved a call for a new spirit of co-operation between Germany and Poland. They urged review of the troubled questions of frontiers, exiles and refugees in "a true dialogue and an expression of the will to reconciliation."

WORDS HAVE IMPACT

This may sound like vague parson's talk in the West. To the Poles whose families were massacred by the Nazis, and to Germans driven from their homes in eastern Europe, it cuts close to the bone.

The trouble goes back for centuries. Poles and Germans have educated, converted, loved, married, despised, brutalized and exterminated one another over the ages.

They have invaded and counter-invaded so many times that arguments over which province should belong to whom are endless and almost insoluble.

The Second World War only made things worse. First Hitler's armies over-ran western Poland, while the Soviets invaded the east. Then the Germans advanced almost to Moscow.

Then the Soviets returned to take all of Poland and eastern Germany as well.

A new Poland was set up, including much land that had last belonged to Germany. Other former German territory was annexed to the Soviet Union. The Soviets organized a large German Communist state.

The present West German government officially recognizes none of these Soviet acts. It stands for a restored, reunited, democratic Germany within the borders it had before Hitler began his conquests.

Until recently, to advocate anything else in West Germany was a sure way of being denounced as a Communist and a traitor

War On Crime Needed, Tory Tells Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Erik Nielsen (PC - Yukon), calling for a royal commission on crime, says Prime Minister Pearson must look beyond the RCMP if he wants to find out why crime isn't being fought effectively.

"If the prime minister wants to find the source of lethargy and lack of interest in the face of criminal infiltration in this country, he must look a little higher than the RCMP," Mr. Nielsen told the Commons Friday during the debate on the Speech from the Throne.

The Yukon Conservative's questions about bail for Lucien Rivard broke that spectacular Commons issue in 1964.

Defending the RCMP, Mr. Nielsen said the force told the federal-provincial crime conference here earlier this month the situation is urgent.

Criminal organizations "connected with the octopus of international crime" had grown tremendously in Canada. They were engaged in narcotics, arson, bankruptcies and organized murder.

"This alone ought to be enough to prod this government into moving," Mr. Nielsen said.

WANTS INVESTIGATION

He said the RCMP report emphasizes the need for a royal commission. Bankruptcy frauds had become tremendous in magnitude.

"Not only has the government failed to apprehend the wrongdoers, but they have acted as though the wrongdoing does not even exist."

The government had to do something about documented charges by the RCMP, Justice Minister Wagner of Quebec, responsible organizations and many individuals that a vast criminal network was operating in Canada.

"The present division of authority in the administration of justice will make it difficult to achieve anything," he said.

Under a reorganization last month, Solicitor-General Pennell had become responsible for crime enforcement and rehabilitation. Justice Minister Cardin dealt with administration and Privy Council President Favreau with companies.

"The throne speech promised a revision of the Bankruptcy Act but under which minister will that come?"

The Commons would need a great deal more information before it could take steps to revise and tighten the act.

The only way to get this information would be through a royal commission.

LOSE MILLIONS

"Business is being muleted of millions upon millions of dollars annually, not only in Quebec but in every province," he said. "Narcotics are being pushed . . . throughout the country.

"In Quebec we have witnessed the wholesale extermination of witnesses.

"In Ontario, Quebec and other provinces there has been evidence of a movement into Canada of individuals . . . well known in the field of crime.

"But where there is evidence of international criminal conspiracy having links with the international Mafia and engaged in a whole gamut of criminal activities, a situation is created that cannot be met by the activities of individual police forces.

"Organized crime must be fought on an organized basis."

Mr. Nielsen said the Mercer report on bankruptcies in Quebec indicated "that it is not so much amendments that are necessary as the manner in which the Bankruptcy Act is to be administered.

"A great proportion of that responsibility lies at the federal level."

Manitoba Pilot Awarded Trophy

OTTAWA (CP)—Wallace Robert Peel, 18, of Foxwarren, Man., has been named winner of the 1965 W. F. Tudhope Memorial Trophy competition of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association. The association, made up of 36 clubs across Canada, said in a statement Friday Peel was judged the association's best amateur pilot last year

. . . HOME TAX

that in 1955 the province paid 10.75 per cent of the city's budgeted costs and in 1965 this had grown to 15.65 per cent.

But the budget in the 10-year period jumped from $6.5 million to $12.8 million — an expansion of almost 100 per cent.

So the rate of increase in provincial aid here represented is dwarfed by the percentage increase in the load on the taxpayer.

Why are taxes increasing so fast? Municipal officials say a combination of several factors is at work.

First of all there's the national inflation which affects wages and costs of materials used in civic projects. If that was all we had to contend with however, the added taxes would more or less keep pace with our own salaries and wage rates.

But we are also becoming a more affluent society. More of us are living in better homes. New neighborhoods are opening every day and the initial cost of supplying services is higher than maintenance of services in older areas.

And because we have better homes in many cases, we aren't disposed to wait for services such as sidewalks, street lighting and sewers. We want them now. We want adequate schools and recreation centres and parks.

New municipal halls, fire stations and police station have been blossoming wherever we look in the capital area. More recently voters have considered municipal swimming pools.

Well, why not when we live in a province as rich as British Columbia? But one of the troubles, according to many municipal spokesmen is that we are not arranging things so that those rich provincial resources are paying the cost of our higher communuity living standards.

Let's take this in small bites and examine this aspect of the taxation problem in the next chapter.

Caouette defied the prime minister to try to live on $75 a month. Mr. Pearson, whose annual salary is $40,000, will become eligible for the pension when he turns 69 April 23.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) urged the Liberals to vote for the NDP motion. It might mean an extra $855,000,000 a year, but he was sure the money could be found.

Harry Harley (L — Halton) urged the government to be flexible in implementing a national medical insurance program to respect the rights of the medical profession. He also called for a free vote on "our archaic divorce laws" and abolition of the law banning the dissemination of birth control literature and devices.

Heward Grafftey (PC—Brome - Missisquoi) advocated federal legislation requiring automobile makers and importers to add safety features to all cars as standard equipment.

POLITICAL DISCUSSIONS will mean busy weekend for Italian President Guiseppe Saragat as he searches for new premier to succeed Aldo Moro who resigned Friday. It was considered possible that Moro might be asked to form another government.

Queen Orders Second Commutation

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has ordered the death sentence of a second Negro in Rhodesia commuted.

The announcement Friday night came after the rebel white regime in the breakaway colony had refused to recognize one royal reprieve.

The Commonwealth relations office said royal clemency had been extended to Simon Runyowa, who had been convicted of attempting to set fire to a building in Rhodesia.

The decision to commute Runyowa's sentence was taken before the rebel white Rhodesian regime of Ian Smith had charged that the reprieve to another Negro named Lazarus was an "illegal act."

The two were convicted and sentenced before Smith declared Rhodesia independent in a break with Britain.

Sources here said the rejection of the reprieve in Lazarus' case did not mean that he would be hanged.

The Smith regime accused Britain, however, with trying to "embroil Her Majesty the Queen in politics."

Quebec Demands 'Not Resented'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The great majority of English-speaking Quebeccers do not resent French Canadians asserting themselves, George C. Marler, former federal and Quebec cabinet minister, said here Friday.

"It must be obvious to all Canadians that a vigorous and progressive Quebec is and always will be an asset to Canada," he told the Women's Canadian Club of Vancouver.

Mr. Marler said those who say Quebec has been given a special status among the provinces misundertands the aims of the province.

Referring to opting out arrangements allowed for the Canada Pension Plan and tax sharing arrangements, Mr. Marler said:

"If a province wants to exercise in its own way the powers the constitution gives it, no one ought to object.

STROKE OF GENIUS

"Opting out arrangements were a stroke of genius. They allow federal-provincial programs to satisfy those content to go on as before and those who prefer a do-it-yourself program."

Mr. Marler said opting out arrangements have promoted harmony between Quebec and the rest of Canada while not diminishing the power and prestige of the central government.

He said that English-speaking Quebecers understand the outlook of their French-speaking counterparts.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

In coastal areas precipitation from a complex storm dwindled to a few showers by early morning as the system moved off into the northwestern states. Some sunny periods are expected in coastal districts before the next disturbance spreads rain and cloud along the coast Sunday. A minor weather disturbance brought light snow to the interior overnight. There was to be clearing in most valleys this afternoon when the system moves into Alberta.
